AL SMITH CANDIDATE AGAIN

GLENN TO FIGHT PATERNALISTIC BUREAU SYSTEM

Costly U.S. Parasites to Be Target.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7.—[Special.]—Senator Otis F. Glenn [Rep., Ill.] disclosed in an interview today that he intends to lead a fight in the senate, when the appropriation bills reach that body, for not only radical reduction of federal expenditures but for the abolition of numerous bureaus, boards, commissions and other agencies engaged in paternalistic, subventionary and regulatory activities. The Illinois senator appealed for public support of a major operation to cut ou the growths on the federal government structure which are sapping the country's financial strength.

"America is face to face with one of the most severe financial crises that ever confronted any government," said the senator. "Every other important nation is in a comparable condition.

"The federal treasury spent approximately a thousand million dollars more than its income for the fiscal year of 1931. The treasury estimates that our government will spend more than 2 billion dollars in excess of its receipts in 1932 and that the deficit will be more than a billion and a half of dollars for 1933. No nation can long continue such practice and remain solvent.

Cutting Expenses Neglected.

"Relief must come from two directions: First, through drastic reduction of expenditures; second, by increasing receipts to an amount which will balance the budget. While the first step would seem the more desirable it appears that it is being largely overlooked and efforts of congress centered on the latter.

"There are two distinct lines of thought as to the steps congress should take. One group believes that expenses should be cut to the bone, the budget balanced, bureaus, boards, commissions, committees and similar federal organizations abolished where at all possible and their wide flung activities severely curtailed when they cannot be completely done away with; that mergers and consolidations and reductions in personnel of the multitudinous departments and divisions of the government should be brought about forthwith; that the activities of the government so widely extended in recent years should be restricted to those vitally necessary to the functioning of our government.

Others Want to Spend More.

"The other group believes that we can 'lift ourselves by our own boot straps' and insure the return of normal times by the expenditure in the immediate future of enormous sums by the government upon various projects—the money to be raised in two ways: First, by the imposition of increased taxes, mainly through the medium of inheritance, gift, profits and sales taxes. Second, by the floating of huge federal bond issues. In my judgment the position of the group advocating economy is the sound one."

The senator paused and indicated a stack of letters on his desk he had received from multitudinous groups of citizens with an axe to grind.

"That federal expenses must be severely cut must be apparent," Mr. Glenn went on. "The cooperation of the general public should be certain and enthusiastic. Yet it is remarkably lacking. Almost every movement for reduction, for elimination, for curtailment, for economy, is met with floods of propaganda addressed to congress from the well organized groups and elements, convinced sincerely of two propositions: First—That congress must reduce appropriations and cut taxes; second—That the appropriations for their favorite undertakings must be increased rather than reduced. Congress is usually responsive to the will of the people. These are not times for selfishness. They are times demanding sacrifices.

Public Must Demand Economy.

"A great national patriotic service and a vitally necessary service can be rendered if the American people will forget for the time being their

1928 NOMINEE OF DEMOCRATS BACK IN FIGHT

Ex-Governor Issues Statement.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 7.—[Special.]—Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith has become an avowed candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination. Emerging from his long silence, the standard bearer of his party in 1928 issued a carefully phrased statement which was in effect an invitation for the boys to get out and go to work. Mr. Smith expressed a whole hearted willingness to "make the fight," but declared he would not make "a pre-convention campaign."

"I don't know how I can stop anybody who wants to do anything for me," said Mr. Smith as he leaned back in his easy chair in his office high up in the Empire State building and chewed on an unlighted cigar. "No, I won't stop them. That would be biting off more than I could chew. I won't do it. I told you boys that when I had anything to say I would say it to you here. Well, here it is."

Issues His Statement.

Mr. Smith grabbed up a handful of mimeographed sheets and began to pass them around. There was silence as the reporters read the following statement:

So many inquiries have come to me from friends throughout the country who worked for and believe in me, as to my attitude in the present political situation, that I feel that I owe it to my friends and to the millions of men and women who supported me so loyally in 1928 to make my position clear.

If the Democratic national convention after careful consideration should decide that it wants me to lead, I will make the fight; but I will not make a pre-convention campaign to secure the support of delegates.

By action of the Democratic national convention of 1928 I am the leader of my party in the nation. With a full sense of the responsibility thereby imposed I shall not in advance of the convention either support or oppose the candidacy of any aspirant for the nomination.

In Race, "If Nominated."

Mr. Smith rocked in his chair, hands crossed over an ample stomach.

"Well, that is brief enough. How about some questions?" some one asked.

"I expected that," he snapped. "Go ahead."

Whereupon Mr. Smith proceeded to answer questions that met with his approval and frowned disapprovingly at others. He barked, "That's exactly what I mean" when asked if the word "lead" in his statement meant that he would make the race for President. Then he grinned and said, "If nominated." To several penetrating questions he replied, "Just read my statement." He replied impatiently "I don't know" when asked what the dominant issue would be in the coming campaign.

Silent on Other Candidates.

The former governor was asked to comment on various statements made by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Newton D. Baker and other Democratic candidates, but replied he had nothing to say.

"That's three months away," reflected Mr. Smith when questioned about his ideas for a prohibition plank in the Democratic platform. "I think we had better stick to the issue before us. I'll talk about that when the time comes."

The room was filled with a number of comfortable chairs and lounges and Mr. Smith's callers were full of questions. There was an informal air that always goes with any room Al Smith occupies. A score or more pictures decorated most of the wall space. A copy of the new book, "Harding's Tragedy," lay on a nearby table alongside a large glass decanter molded in the shape of the Empire State building.

More Serious than Usual.

Mr. Smith teetered in his chair, apparently eager to parry any question fired at him. He appeared rested and in perfect physical condition, but inclined to be a bit more serious than on ordinary occasions.

"After the convention in Chicago," somebody asked, "will you support the nominee, no matter who he may be?"

"The answer to that one is easy," said Al Smith. "I'm a Democrat."

THE CONTRAST

Girl Recruits 2 Gunmen and Spills the Beans

Detectives Thomas Kelly and John Hock of the Desplaines street station, two of the younger and better looking members of the force, were standing at Jackson boulevard and Throop streets last Wednesday. A philandering breeze blew open Hock's coat.

"O, a gun," exclaimed a girl nearby. Kelly and Hock turned around to meet the admiring gaze of Miss Helen Lyons, 21 years old, 303 South Loomis street. The detectives nodded.

"You must be gunmen," ventured Miss Lyons. Hock and Kelly became curious. "We are," they answered, "from Cleveland, and we're tough." Then Miss Lyons became interested.

She Has a Nice Mob.

"Listen," she whispered. "I've got a nice mob. Want to get in with them?" Detectives Hock and Kelly nodded their heads. Right away, they insisted. But Miss Lyons advised them to wait until the next night. She'd meet them on the same corner, she said.

She did. Kelly and Hock mentioned they'd like to meet "her mob" immediately, but learning that only two members were around at the time, suggested they had better wait until next night, Friday. To which Miss Lyons agreed.

On Friday night and again on Saturday night they met Miss Lyons, but each time the introduction of the two detectives to her "nice mob" was put off because of the absence of some of the gunmen. The two candidates for membership were eager to meet them all.

"Lead Us to Them."

Yesterday Hock and Kelly saw Miss Lyons once more. "All the mob are there now," she confided. "Okay," said Kelly and Hock. "Lead us to them."

Miss Lyons led the two "gunmen" to a flat at 1225 West Jackson boulevard. Five men were sitting down, awaiting the two stickup men from Cleveland.

"Hello, boys, glad to meet you," announced the detectives, reaching out their hands. But in their hands were revolvers. The five gunmen leaped to their feet and then put up their hands. Miss Lyons looked on, astounded. The five men, Peter Roberti, Patsy Marciano, Joseph Prisco, Anthony Schullo, alleged members of the "42" gang, and Gus Nordo, were marched to the station. So was Miss Lyons. She looked at Detectives Kelly and Hock.

"A couple of smart eggs," she remarked.

ELOPEMENT OF 2 KANE COUNTY COUPLES TOLD

The elopement of two youths and two girls, all members of well known Kane county families, and their double wedding ceremony New Year's eve at Crown Point, Ind., were made known yesterday by the parents of the brides.

Norton H. Van Sicklen III. married Miss Glenn Lee Egolf, and John Van Nortwick Jr. became the husband of Miss Sue Beckwith.

Van Sicklen is 22 years old and the son of Norton H. Van Sicklen II., head of the Van Sicklen corporation of Geneva. He is an amateur aviator and a student at the University of Wisconsin. His bride is 19 years old and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Egolf of Aurora. Mr. Egolf is general manager of the Chicago, Aurora and Elgin railroad.

Van Nortwick is the son of John Van Nortwick, a manufacturer at Batavia. He is 22 years old and is Kane county open golf champion. Mrs. Van Nortwick, who is 21 years old, is the daughter of Mrs. Everett Beckwith of Aurora.

Parents of the couples said yesterday that they had known of the double marriage since early in January and approved of the alliances. The information was kept from their friends, however, until yesterday.

FIND TWO BODIES IN OPEN HATCH OF SUNKEN SUB

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 8 [Monday].—Divers working on the sunken British submarine M-2 yesterday discovered the bodies of two senior officers trapped between a half opened hatch in the conning tower. A diver half-floating in the conning tower, his torch casting an eerie light, saw the faces of the two dead men.

The discovery confirms the view of authorities that the submarine was just coming to the surface and the door of the seaplane hangar which is forward of the conning tower opened too soon, allowing an inrush of water which caused the disaster.

CONSIDER JACOBS AND WM. R. DAWES FOR NEW TAX JOB

J. L. Jacobs, efficiency engineer now employed by both the city and county, and William R. Dawes, financier, were reported to be under consideration yesterday for the post of assessor of Cook county. Under the terms of the Kelly bill, passed recently by the legislature, both the board of assessors and the board of review are abolished. The board of assessors will be replaced by one assessor chosen by the governor and the president of the county board.

Save 3 Flyers from Sahara After Six Days

ORAN, Algeria, Feb. 7.—[U. P.]—A military airplane cruising over the shifting sands of the Sahara flashed a radio message to Oran today that three French flyers—Jean Reginensi, Robert Lenier and Joseph Touge—had been found alive after six days of suffering in the desert wastelands.

The message brought a triumphant conclusion to one of the most dramatic aerial rescues ever made in the Sahara.

The three flyers, who started early last week to make a record flight between France and Madagascar, had been forced down in the Erg district. They were stranded without sufficient food or water. Airplanes, with which they could communicate by radio, hunted them over thousands of miles of wasteland.

Listen to Radio.

Day after day, as their water supply dwindled and they suffered extreme thirst in the desert hills, the three men sat near their radio, listening to wireless reports made by rescue flyers. The rescuers were handicapped because Reginensi and his companions had lost their directions and could not tell them where to search.

Occasionally they would hear music broadcast from some distant station, but toward the end the utterles of their set began to fail and they were about to lose touch with the world when Col. Vuillemin and Capt. Poulian found them.

The rescuers reported the three men weak but otherwise in good condition when they were found at 7 a. m. The reports indicated that Reginensi's disabled plane had been forced down amid moving sand hills and was almost hidden in a valley between two dunes.

Fail to Find Trail.

Reginensi had attempted repeatedly to find a caravan train which might lead them to safety or at least to a desert well, but he was unable to find a trace of the trail in four trips made out from their plane.

The military authorities had concentrated a large fleet of rescue planes to aid in the search for the flyers, who had been forced far off the regular trans-Sahara air route by sand storms.

Ship with 300 Tourists Cancels Stop at Shanghai

MANILA, Feb. 8 [Monday].—(AP)—The Canadian Pacific Liner Empress of Britain, carrying 300 passengers on a world cruise, on arrival here today canceled its scheduled stop at Shanghai because of the fighting there.

Vincent Coll, N.Y. Gangdom Leader, Slain

New York, Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Vincent Coll, who in a few months had attained nation-wide notoriety as the most ruthless of New York's killers, was shot to death with a machine gun early today when he was trapped by his enemies in a telephone booth in a drug store at 314 West 23d street.

The baby-faced youth—he was only 23 and looked even younger—was alone at the time of the killing. Disregarding his bloody feud with Arthur [Dutch Schultz] Flegenheimer, Bronx beer runner, which has taken more than a score of lives in the last year, he ventured forth without a bodyguard and paid the penalty for his recklessness.

Two on Guard at Auto.

Coll was hunched in a telephone booth at the rear of the small shop, known as the London Chemist's, a few steps off 8th avenue, when an automobile drew up at the curb. Three men stepped out, and while two stood guard beside the car the third walked quickly into the store.

Pointing a small submachine gun of the type known in the underworld as a "tommy gun" at the five persons in the store—two clerks and a woman and two men waiting to give orders—he advised them to "keep cool." He was completely at his ease, they said later.

The gunman walked quietly to the telephone booth unobserved by Coll. Leveling the machine gun at the glass of the closed door, the killer fired ten shots. The door was shattered into splinters and Coll fell to the floor dead.

Policeman Chases Killer.

Still calm, the gunman walked out of the store and nodded to his companions. All three got into the waiting car and sped away.

Patrolman James Sherlock on his beat near the drug store heard the shots. He ran up just in time to see the speeding sedan, and, commandeering a taxicab, he ordered the driver to give chase.

Speeding at a rate estimated by Sherlock at 65 miles an hour, the bandits' car lurched north along Eighth avenue with the cab in pursuit. Sherlock, on the running board, drew his pistol and fired at the gangsters' car, but seemingly without effect. He continued the chase to 50th street, where the bigger car escaped in traffic.

Meanwhile the occupants of the drug store had straightened out on the floor the body of the slain gunman. It was obvious that he was beyond help—he had been shot at least three times through the chest and several other bullets had struck lower portions of his body—but a call was sent for an ambulance.

Chicago Doctor Sees Killing.

Dr. Leo J. Latz, 1654 Larrabee street, Chicago, was standing at the soda fountain sipping a drink when the bandit entered the store.

Scarcely a minute after the arrival of the police a woman ran into the store screaming and pushed her way through those about the body. Recognizing the slain man, she became hysterical. She was Coll's widow, a bride of a mon, who was arrested with him for the shooting last July in which one child was slain and five others were wounded. They were married after Coll's acquittal of that crime.

DEFENDERS FLEE AS DRIVE ON SHANGHAI OPENS

Tokio Warships Lay Down Barrage.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Feb. 8 (Monday).—(AP)—Chinese troops were evacuating the Woosung forts at 12:30 p. m. today. They fell back into trenches about five miles north of Shanghai.

BULLETIN.

TIENTSIN, China, Feb. 8 (Monday).—(AP)—A detachment of Japanese soldiers was surrounded and disarmed by Chinese police here today when it demanded entrance into the military police station for an inspection. The Japanese later were released and returned with a larger force and occupied posts around the station.

[Copyright: 1932; By the Associated Press.]

SHANGHAI, Feb. 8 [Monday].—Japanese troops and bluejackets overpowered Chinese defenders of Woosung today and drove through sleet, snow, and rain toward the forts on the way to Shanghai.

The attackers, for once outnumbering the Chinese troops in front of them, battered them into flight, repaired a Chinese-wrecked bridge, and crossed Woosung creek to occupy Woosung village. Then they marched on toward the forts under a heavy barrage from destroyers in the Yangtze river where it joins the Whangpoo, 16 miles from Shanghai.

Chinese in Flight.

The Chinese were outnumbered more than two to one. Chinese forces in the Woosung area were estimated at only 1,000. There were 2,000 Japanese soldiers and 400 bluejackets in the advancing force.

The Chinese offered little resistance. Only a light exchange of rifle and machine gun fire was heard, in contrast with a withering fire turned on the Japanese in a battle throughout Sunday.

Capture of the Woosung forts, held stubbornly by Chinese troops under days of terrific bombardment from Japanese warships and airplanes, was believed imminent. All effective guns at the forts were silenced.

Chinese Evacuate Forts.

There were no strong Chinese defense lines in the mile and a half of open country between the village and the forts. The Chinese were thought to be evacuating the forts, retreating westward to avoid being hemmed in by the invaders.

The Woosung battle turned virtually all attention from the Chapei front of Shanghai, already devastated by fire and fierce bombardment from both sides.

There was only desultory machine gun and rifle firing over the Chapei area.

But fire destroyed numerous foreign-style villas and other buildings on Kiangwan road in the no man's land north of Chapei. Leveling of the houses and villas by the flames, gave the Japanese an uninterrupted view toward the Chinese front and the country toward Kiangwan and Woosung.

The Japanese said the villas were used by Chinese snipers for vantage points.

Turn Loose All Branches.

They declared all branches of the armed services—navy, army and aircraft—would be turned on the Chinese. They planned to pull up new artillery to bombard the Woosung strongholds, with the big guns of warships and the bombs of airplanes joining in the combat.

Despite the stormy weather the Japanese said they had planned to use a number of three-inch and five-inch field pieces from ships offshore.

Their forces were only slightly hindered by withering machine gun fire with which Chinese raked the creek's banks, although the fog prevented the gunners from seeing their objectives clearly.

Japanese Switch Attack.

Just 24 hours earlier the Japanese had poured a rain of shattering shells into Chapei. Then they switched their major operations to the Woosung forts.

They shelled and bombarded the Chinese trenches and barricades, but the defenders poured lead into the oncoming party, that began fighting as

The Chinese had destroyed the last bridge over Woosung creek, stopping the Japanese short in front of the Chinese guns.

Chinese Are Outnumbered.

As Japanese reënforcements arrived today it looked, however, as if the Chinese might eventually be outnumbered. Japanese naval officers said that whenever Woosung passed into their hands they would turn their attention again to the Chapei-Shanghai front, now comparatively quiet.

They denied any intention of landing soldiers in the foreign quarters of Shanghai, but posted a notice on the Shanghai-Woosung highway closing it to all traffic.

If the Japanese should succeed in capturing the Woosung forts they would establish a base there for the landing and operations of Japanese infantry forces, expected to pour into the country immediately.

Division Off Coast.

One Japanese troop division was reported just off the China coast awaiting transports to bring them ashore. Some troops also were aboard a transport in front of the Woosung forts.

The Japanese forces at Woosung, which yesterday failed to cross Woosung creek in a fierce skirmish and enter the native town, spent an uncomfortable night along the west bank of the creek without shelter of any kind.

Along the more far flung scenes of operations, namely farther up the Yangtze, everything was quiet awaiting better weather. At Paoshan, where fighting occurred yesterday, and farther on to Liuho, the armed forces of Japan and China waited for whatever might be revealed when the fog rolled back.

Japanese naval forces off Woosung, totaling scores of ships, were also helpless before the elements. Observations were impossible and the naval plane carriers sent no bombers into the opaque fog.

The Chinese made feverish preparations to meet the enemy's gigantic encircling movement all through Sunday. Liuho, some 15 miles up the Yangtze from Woosung, was a veritable confusion of trenches, barricades and sandbag walls.

Blast Out Civilian Life.

All Chinese civilian life was blasted out of Woosung by the Japanese warships yesterday. The entire district was pockmarked with shellfire by four seaplanes and 12 land planes as well.

In the intervals of poor visibility occasioned by falling snow refugees scattered and evacuated along the Whangpoo river front.

Strings of men, women and children, clamoring for shelter, struggled unceasingly in the mud to escape the death behind them. Babes in arms screamed every time bombs exploded and shook the district for miles around.

Japanese Aim Bad.

The aerial bombing and the gunfires were concentrated on the fortifications facing the water front where six inch unused guns pointed seawards. Although it was impossible to say what damage had been done, the bombardment appeared somewhat ineffective.

The Japanese repeatedly overshot their marks.

The Chinese, however, were concentrating at Woosung and Liuho, and workmen were driven to the task

WOOSUNG FORT BATTLE FRONT

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Feb. 8 [Monday].—Shanghai fighting zone shifted yesterday when the Japanese landed 2,400 troops on the beach [1] about a mile up the Whangpoo river and attacked the Woosung forts [2], which they have been unable to capture in four days by a frontal attack, from the rear. The attack was resumed today.

[Late reports said the Woosung forts had been captured.]

In addition to the infantry and artillerymen, the Japanese yesterday dispatched 600 marines and eleven armored cars from Japanese naval forces to Shanghai [3], where fighting broke out again today. The marines made the trip along a highway connecting Woosung and Shanghai. This road is protected for its entire distance of fifteen miles by Japanese destroyers on the Whangpoo.

The Japanese attacked Chinese trenches and machine gun nests along Woosung creek [1], a stream about 100 yards wide, south of Woosung, finally effecting a crossing. The Chinese are also heavily entrenched at Liuho [4] where the Japanese landed troops this morning.

of completing a defense system about Liuho. Five lines of fortifications were thrown up during Sunday. Each had separate trenches and barricades and communicating systems indicating to an observer that the town appeared prepared to resist an attack for a long time.

It was also evident that several thousand Chinese troops had concentrated in this area.

200,000 Chinese Evacuate.

Fearing the ravages of hostilities going on in the Shanghai area, 200,000 Chinese refugees have evacuated to outlying communities within the last five days, it was estimated by Chinese and foreign authorities yesterday.

Authorities said most of them fled southward aboard any manner of craft they could find. The roads between Liuho and Shanghai swarmed with refugees, some traveling one way and some another, but all with the common purpose to escape war.

Edwin S. Cunningham, United States consul general and senior consul here, was asked by the head of the international settlement's governing body today to protest to Japanese authorities against flights of Japanese airplanes over the foreign quarter.

At the same time United States army officers said there was a feeling that American infantry forces might be permanently stationed here as an added protection to American business interests. Heretofore only United States marines have been stationed at Shanghai.

At any rate, preparations were made by the newly arrived troops of the 31st infantry, sent from Manila to protect the foreign settlement in the Sino-Japanese conflict, for an extended stay. Officers attached to the regiment made arrangements to send to Manila for their wives.

JAPAN PROPOSES TO STRIP CHINA OF TROOPS IN CITIES

Tokio Will Ask Powers to Revise Treaty.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Feb. 8.—[Monday.]—Japan made a move today for a complete reversal of the Washington nine power treaty, which sought to give China a place as an equal in the family of nations.

A foreign office spokesman announced that Japanese envoys had been instructed to lay before the signatories of the treaty a proposal for the creation of neutral or demilitarized zones, 20 miles in radius, surrounding the principal ports of China —Shanghai, Canton, Hankow, Tientsin, and Tsingtao. No Chinese troops would be allowed in these zones. It is further proposed that the foreign powers shall retain extraterritorial rights in these zones, instead of giving them up as provided in the nine power treaty.

Claims China Has Failed.

The foreign office spokesman said some measure of foreign intervention was necessary for China's own good. The Washington treaty was designed to help China set up a stable central government. Inasmuch as China has been given ten years in which "to prove that she could do this and has failed," Japan proposes that the new scheme be embodied in an international agreement which will supersede the nine power treaty.

However, Japan will insist that Manchuria shall be treated separately as she regards that as a matter to be taken up solely with China. Should Japan not live up to the terms of the open door policy, it expects the powers to protest.

"JAPAN WANTS CHINA"

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CHENJU, China, Feb. 7.—The Japanese military occupation of a thirty mile zone about Shanghai, in accordance with plans announced by Japanese army and naval authorities in Tokio, will lead to the "Manchurianization" of the Yangtze valley, strangulation of trade at the international port of Shanghai, and vast losses to American and European investments built up in the last century.

This declaration was made by Gen. Tsai Ting-kai, commander of the Chinese 19th army, tonight in an interview at his headquarters here on the eve of a battle with the military and naval forces of Japan—a battle which is likely to have fundamental repercussions on international politics in the far east.

Gen. Tsai is a native born Cantonese, 40 years old, six feet tall, thin and wiry. His piercing brown eyes emphasized the earnestness of his words. The interview took place by lantern light in a small room in a ramshackle tile-covered military building within 200 feet of the wreckage of a Japanese bombing plane which the Chinese brought down two days ago.

Entered Army at 15.

Gen. Tsai is every inch a military man. He entered the army when he was fifteen years old and fought his way to the rank of general through the checkered military politics of south China. Two years ago, in cooperation with former President Chiang Kai-shek, now unofficial dictator of China, he led a small army over the Shantung mountains and dislodged the northern rebel forces from Shantung province.

Gen. Tsai's position at Shanghai is not greatly different from that of Gen. Ma Chan-shan, the Manchurian commander who resisted the Japanese but was ultimately forced to evacuate Tsitsihar a few weeks ago and has now switched allegiance to the Japanese forces.

Gen. Tsai pointed out that the present Shanghai situation is definitely and inextricably connected with Japanese politics in the Asiatic continent in that Japanese occupation of Manchuria would be effective only if Japan is able, through an armed force, to suppress all opposition south of the great wall and so enable the creation of a puppet government either at Nanking or Peiping. The Japanese aim, he said, is to place the rubber stamp of approval on Japanese domination of the vast territories in eastern Asia by such a puppet government.

Fears for World Trade.

"The entire world has been startled and horrified by the Japanese campaign of frightfulness in bombing and burning block after block of industrial establishments in the densely populated Chinese residential section of Shanghai," the Chinese general said. "But this is nothing more than what the Japanese army has been doing in Manchuria for the past four months.

"There are some foreigners who think the present Japanese activities will prove beneficial to international trade, but the exact opposite is bound to result. Japan now has 16,000 armed men ashore and afloat at Shanghai. Within a few days this force will be swelled to more than 20,000, which is practically the same size as the force with which Japan started when Mukden was occupied last September.

"It is obvious that Japan is able to land a vast army and by sheer weight of numbers and modern armament crush the Chinese army, but this will not end China's resistance to Japanese might, since the Chinese people will never accept a colonial position similar to that of the Coreans.

"The Japanese may and probably will occupy all Chinese ports, but the Chinese people will merely withdraw to their farms and villages, produce sufficient for their own consumption and cease all world intercourse.'

Will Fight Alone.

"China is fighting alone and will continue to fight alone, but it is about time that the league of nations as well as America realized the real character of the Japanese army which is based on barbaric feudalism.

"The world's need at present is peace, to enable a return to prosperity, but the nations of the earth will never enjoy prosperity until the Asiatic menace to world peace is effectively curbed. It is quite evident that the Japanese militarists are determined to conquer all China, thus creating a jumping board for world domination."

REPORTER FINDS JOBLESS WELL FED IN SHELTER

Only Small Per Cent Are from Out of Town.

Being jobless in Chicago is not so bad if one is able to obtain a card to one of the 24 shelters conducted under the auspices of the Joint Emergency Relief fund. There the men are well fed, obtain clean, dry lodging and every day sees diversified entertainment.

A TRIBUNE reporter, who was assigned to live with the unemployed and get their attitude toward the aid they are receiving, went to the shelter at 1210 South Morgan street. No one at the shelter knew him for a reporter. He explained his assignment to Robert W. Beasley, director of the clearing house of the relief organization, and was given a card under an assumed name.

Comfort in the Storm.

All day it had snowed and most of the men living in that shelter had remained inside. In a long, low basement room the reporter found men lounging. Some were smoking, some talking and some merely sitting. Magazines strewed the wooden benches. A radio furnished music. During the day there had been boxing bouts and in the evening there was to be other entertainment.

The reporter had been assigned to find out two things. Are the men well fed and cared for? Are many of the men from out of town?

"Got a smoke, Bill?" the reporter was asked, the usual greeting to a new man. Tobacco is scarce. "Thanks, fellow. New man? Yeah, it's not a bad place. But if you are new you got to be fumigated."

Following the evening meal, all men in certain designated sections are fumigated. Each man, taking his turn in line, is marched into a driving shower of steaming water. Soap and towels are provided. When he is dried he takes his clothes and his shelter ticket to a checker. His card number is placed on the hanger and his clothes go to a sulphur kiln. In the morning they smell of sulphur and are a little stiff to the touch. But they are germ and vermin free.

A Hearty Looking Bunch.

Every one of the dozen men in the shower when the reporter visited the fumigator could have passed muster in a downtown athletic club. None showed underfeeding. A few were corpulent. A Negro with the flat, slim waist and the shoulders of a boxer splashed suds on a middle aged fat man. He was so flabby he couldn't fight back and slipped on the soapy floor, flopping against the wall.

"Certainly they are healthy and well fed," Beasley said. "We do not wait until a man is starving and is so reduced in physical vigor that he is subject to hospitalization. It is our job to keep them healthy and we intend to do it."

"It would be better to let the unemployed go hungry," he said, "than to feed their bodies alone. Without entertainment, a chance to keep self-respect and encouragement toward personal ambition any man would retrograde until he became a habitual, a detriment to himself and to society. We attempt to feed the hungry and keep up their morale also."

A survey of a sample menu in the shelter shows that the men receive better dietary attention than is provided in many homes. To care for a moderately active man 2,400 calories a day are sufficient, according to scientists.

For breakfast the reporter was given a bowl of oatmeal with milk and sugar, 600 to 800 calories; three slices of bread, 600 calories, and coffee. The supper of bread, coffee, and beans contained 1,600 calories with a single helping. Even for a moderately active man the two meals furnished an excess of energy. The menu is changed as often as possible.

More Work Is Needed.

Staff men, selected from the bread line, who do clerical, janitorial, and administrative work get three meals. The chief need, according to the officials, is for a work program to keep the men occupied. All work available is given to family men.

Facilities are provided for cleaning and pressing clothes, shaving, and other personal needs. The 24 shelters are arranged for segregation. Young and able bodied men are placed in one shelter, where gymnasiums are provided for their use. The old and infirm are cared for in special shelters near hospitals.

The great majority of the men cared for in the JERF shelters are Chicago men. A year in which the individual has been self-supporting makes for a legal residence in Chicago. Of the men in the shelters at the present time only about 5 per cent are from out of town, according to the records of the relief fund. Association with the men in the JERF shelter at 1210 South Morgan street tended to support the 5 per cent figure as accurate.

Out of town men are given bed and board for from three to five days and then are ordered to leave or are removed to their own towns. Fully 50 per cent of these say they do not wish to stay. Chicago is a cross roads.

Last summer the percentage of outsiders receiving help in Chicago ran as high as 10 per cent, according to the charity records. The average for the last four months was: October, 3 per cent; November, 2½ per cent; December, 3½ per cent; January, 4 per cent. The increase of the last two months is blamed on the drive, conducted in other cities, to drive out dependent men.

Weeding Out Outsiders.

The out of town man is almost always discovered at the clearing house. For one thing, he is usually young. Old men do not travel in the winter time. He is often caught in technicalities in his application for help, which includes previous places of residence. He looks dazed, is sleepy, and his unkempt air shows he is a new arrival.

Every type of man is represented in the shelter. Some are content to remain there, living as they can, cadging smokes and doing nothing to better their condition. Others sell flowers, papers, and shovel snow, looking forward to the time they can obtain regular work. The majority are classified merely as unemployed, although there is a small number of tramps, hoboes, and bums. Most of the latter prefer the flop houses.

BANKERS BACK DRIVE TO SELL RELIEF PAPER

Decide Today on Interest Rate.

State Treasurer Edward J. Barrett left for Springfield last night after a conference with a committee of bankers on the subject of disposing of state tax anticipation warrants to the amount of $18,750,000 for use by the Illinois Emergency Relief committee.

EDW. J. BARRETT.

With the governor and state auditor, decision is to be made today on the rate of interest and the denominations in which the warrants will be issued. Mr. Barrett carried with him the recommendation of the conference, which was that the warrants should bear 6 per cent interest and be issued in certificates of $100.

Expect Banks to Lend.

No difficulty is expected in borrowing for immediate need against the issuance of the warrants, now that the legislature has authorized them and the governor has signed the law. Mr. Barrett said the banks undoubtedly would advance money at once for the continuation of relief for the 500,000 Cook county residents who have been receiving aid, the loans being secured not alone by the warrants but by a later exchanging of the warrants for state bonds expected to be approved at a referendum in the fall.

It may take a ten or fifteen day drive of Liberty Loan sale proportions to turn the state warrants into cash, Treasurer Barrett stated. Present plans are for the bankers to solicit business interests and individuals who will make a deposit of 10 per cent on subscribing for one or more warrants. When the entire sum is subscribed, $1,875,000, which is 10 per cent of the whole, it is to be turned over to Treasurer Barrett immediately.

All Must Be Sold.

This sum will not be available for immediate use by the relief committee, it was explained, as Mr. Barrett cannot release any of the money until the entire issue of $18,750,000 is sold and the whole sum put in the treasury.

The committee which will have the duty of using that fund for food, clothing and shelter for the needy as authorized by the legislature has not yet been named by Gov. Emmerson, but the four Cook county members said to have been recommended are Edward L. Ryerson Jr., head of the present emergency relief fund committee; Col. A. A. Sprague, city commissioner of public works; Joseph M. Cudahy, packer, and Victor A. Olander, secretary-treasurer of the Illinois Federation of Labor.

Insull Ready to Help.

They are expected to aid in disposing of the tax warrants, as is Samuel Insull Jr., chairman of the volunteer committee that raised $10,500,000 last fall for emergency relief purposes. Mr. Insull said yesterday his services will be at the disposal of the committee in any coöperation with the bankers.

How much of the $18,750,000 will come to Cook county has not been decided, Treasurer Barrett said yesterday, although it is expected the major portion will be expended here. The counties repay the state for the amount advanced, he said, the repayment to come from future collections of gasoline tax, so that the general public need have no fears that the sale of the warrants will increase taxation.

ASSEMBLY TO ACT ON TAX FUNDING DURING WEEK

The legislature, when it reconvenes Tuesday at Springfield, is expected to pass on five bills sponsored by Rep. A. O. Galvin, designed to give immediate relief to Chicago taxpayers. They provide for partial funding of tax levies through bond issues, and for the installment payment of taxes.

House bill 199 authorizes any municipal corporation to issue bonds to the amount of unpaid taxes, for any tax levy since 1929, provided one fifth of the levy remains unpaid. The measure provides that the succeeding year's levy shall be reduced by the amount of the bond issue. Another bill raises the bonding limits of some of the smaller Cook county corporations to permit them to take advantage of the funding bill.

House bill 30 changes the penalty date for collection of 1930 taxes from Jan. 4 to July 1, and provides that 50 per cent may be paid at that time, 25 per cent Oct. 1 and 25 per cent Jan. 1, 1933. A fourth bill adjusts assessment dates to conform with the new penalty dates.

The fifth bill permits the state tax commission to order a reassessment, if necessary, for 1928, 1929 and 1930.

PRISONERS LOSE THEIR PANTS TO SERVE JUSTICE

Two prisoners in the Oak Park police station shivered in their underwear yesterday because the police had locked up their pants as evidence.

The prisoners were Noble Sylvester Williams, a Negro who was arrested for burglary, and Tony Anulis, who is alleged to have stolen a suit of clothes and $140 from his brother-in-law, John Brazauskas, 230 South Maple avenue, Oak Park. Anulis was arrested, intoxicated, in a flat at 629 West 16th street. He was wearing the stolen suit, but had spent $54 of the money on his spree.

Williams confessed the burglary Saturday night of the home of E. T. Marquart, 509 South Kenilworth avenue, Oak Park, where he stole the suit he was wearing. In his cell he tried to destroy the evidence against himself by tearing up the coat of the suit and exchanging trousers with Anulis. The lockup keeper noticed the change, and the men were stripped of the trousers as a precaution.

RULES CITY MAY TRIM PRIVILEGES OF TAX DODGERS

Grossman Sees Basis for Action by Council.

The city has the power to deny certain privileges to property owners who refuse to pay their taxes, according to offhand opinion of Second Assistant Corporation Counsel Joseph F. Grossman.

J. F. GROSSMAN. [Chambers Photo.]

"I believe that the city has the authority to pass an ordinance which would limit permits to those who have not paid their taxes," said Mr. Grossman. "I have in mind such privileges as permits for driveways, vacation of alleys, approval of subdivisions, erection of signs, use of sidewalk space, and the like."

"Could the city shut off the water of a property owner who has refused to pay his general taxes?" Mr. Grossman was asked.

Special Tax for Water.

"The water system," he explained, "is not maintained by general taxes. The water system is operated and maintained by special tax, and the city cannot refuse to supply water to any one who pays his water bill."

"What about the city's power to curtail police and fire protection, and garbage collection, to those property owners who decline to pay taxes?" he was asked.

"Garbage collection is so strictly a health duty that it must be performed for those who pay as well as those who do not," said Mr. Grossman. "I do not think the city would be sustained if it attempted to discriminate against tax dodgers in the collection of garbage.

"The general public welfare also requires that police and fire protection be supplied to taxpayers and tax-dodgers alike."

Payments Due Sometime.

Some of the large loop property owners have not paid taxes for 1929, which were due last May 15. Most of this class have paid what they deemed fair and have contested the remainder in court.

Public officials point out that, although County Judge Jarecki has declared the 1928 and 1929 taxes void and illegal, eventually every property owner will have to pay something towards the support of the local governments. These urgently need cash at present.

A bill is pending in the special session of the legislature which would give credit on subsequent tax bills for any overpayment now made. It is deemed reasonably certain this bill will be passed, so the property owner who pays now, county officials say, does not run a large risk of loss.

Record Shows Unpaid Bill.

The Lambert Tree estate has paid a considerable part of its taxes for 1929, but item 306 in tax volume 486, which is credited to this estate, shows no payment whatever. This property is valued for taxing purposes at $1,036,758. The unpaid taxes on it total $63,760.62.

A property credited to William O. Trainer as agent is described in tax volume 486, item 520. This property is valued at $598,280. The taxes are $36,794.22, and their collection is prevented by an injunction.

In the tax records there is credited to Tucker Kenworthy company a property valued at $140,390. This property is described in volume 487, item No. 408. The $8,633.99 of 1928 taxes have been protested in court and no part of the tax has been paid, according to the records.

Ten Parcels—No Payment.

To William Waller Jr. are credited in the tax books ten parcels of real estate on which no taxes for 1929 have been paid. All of this property is shown in tax volume 486 and described in detail under items 5, 4, 2, 10, 11, 12, 14, 40, 41, and 43.

The assessed valuation of this property is $987,109, and the unpaid taxes total $60,705.07. Not only were objections filed to these taxes, but an injunction was obtained to prevent the sale of the property for the unpaid tax.

Property described in tax volume 486, item 403, is credited by the records to the Washington Hotel company. The property is valued at $255,313 and the unpaid taxes total $15,701.75.

Item 317 in Volume 486.

Opposite item 317 in tax volume 486, is set the name of the West Washington building corporation. That property is valued at $245,399. No part of its taxes, totaling $8,942.04, has been paid.

Properties in volume 485, items 442 and 914, are credited to K. A. Wells. These are valued at $352,076. No part of the $21,651.89 of taxes has been paid.

The Wells-Van Buren building corporation is credited with being the owner or agent of property valued at $411,624. This is described in volume 487, items 133 and 134. The taxes on the property, due last May, total $25,314.89, and no part of them has been paid.

Boy, 5, Fatally Burned Saving Sister from Fire

Akron, O., Feb. 7.—(AP)—Robert Erow, 5, died tonight, a boy hero. He was fatally burned when his clothes caught fire while stamping out flames that threatened his 18 months old sister, Ruth. The baby had pulled a cloth from a table, throwing an oil lamp to the floor, where it burst into flames underneath her chair. The baby was not hurt.

CITY SEES GREATER SAVING IN DELAYING PASSAGE OF BUDGET

Several hundred city employés whose jobs have been eliminated in the tentative 1932 budget are likely to retain their positions during the first six months of this year if the legislature approves a bill setting back from March 31 to June 15 the date when the budget must be finally approved by the city council.

Estimates have placed the number of jobs to be abolished under the economy budget prepared by J. L. Jacobs, efficiency expert, at 2,000 to 2,500. The elimination of these jobs accounts largely for the $9,000,000 saving Jacobs has proposed for this year as compared with appropriations for 1931.

Pending the passage of the budget the city operates under the provisions of a continuation ordinance. This ordinance, now in effect, keeps all the city employés working who were on the pay rolls in December.

"The saving for January was more than $1,000,000 under the continuation ordinance," said one member of the council. "That is a larger saving than would have been made if the tentative budget were operative.

"If we delay passing the budget until June the city will save more money than proposed in the budget and employment will be given for six months to those employés who otherwise would be out of jobs."

SCHOOL EXPENSE BOOSTED ABOVE PROSPEROUS ERA

Trustees Seek to Justify Budget Today.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The school board expects to make an effort today to justify to the D. F. Kelly committee its proposed $93,820,140 appropriations as a sincere effort to attain economy in the 1932 budget. This is a cut of 7.45 per cent under last year's budget.

To get the $93,820,140 budget on a basis by which it can be compared with expenditures of previous years, it is necessary to eliminate the item of $6,488,888 appropriated for bonds and interest, $188,985 for lunch rooms and $21,000 appropriated this year from trust and special funds.

Other Years Compared.

On that comparable basis, the school board proposes to authorize the spending of $8,020,425 more this year than it actually spent in 1930. The trustees propose to authorize the spending of $18,585,707 more this year than the system spent in 1929.

The present budget is $15,140,721 more than the expenditures in 1928 when business was prosperous. It is $24,339,450 more than the expenditures in 1927.

Year. Expense.	Amount.
1932—Appropriations	$87,120,767
1930—Expenditures	79,100,342
1929—Expenditures	68,535,060
1928—Expenditures	71,980,046
1927—Expenditures	62,781,317
1926—Expenditures	66,317,992
1925—Expenditures	56,072,524

Suspect $1,000,000 Wasted.

In the educational fund, from which the janitors and engineers are paid as well as the teachers, the D. F. Kelly committee, which is working to restore the credit of the local governments, has suggested that there is $1,000,000 or more of waste for the operation of school plants.

From the education fund in 1932, the board proposes to spend $55,055,087, as compared with $53,299,169 spent in 1930, $51,607,394 in 1929, $48,205,937 in 1928, $42,831,353 in 1927.

From the playground fund the board's budget proposes to expend $901,666, as compared with $664,339 expended in 1930, $641,130 in 1929, $665,996 in 1928, $575,033 in 1927, $488,434 in 1926 and $486,325 in 1925.

Boost Building Expenditures.

From the building fund this year the board's budget calls for the expenditure of $28,905,217, including $19,135,535 for new buildings, as compared with expenditures of $23,216,134 in 1930, $15,304,254 in 1929, $21,637,924 in 1928, $17,924,470 in 1927, $23,952,403 in 1926 and $15,135,803 in 1925.

For the six previous years for which official records are available, the board has spent an average of $19,528,000 a year from it building fund, while this year it proposes to spend $28,905,217, an increase of 48 per cent over the average.

The suggestion of the D. F. Kelly committee that the board further reduce its budget $9,550,000, and, in addition, close the Crane Junior college for which no estimated saving was presented, is mild in comparison with some of the statements reported to have been made by members of the Kelly committee.

Shot by Gunman as He Sits in a Barber Shop

Charles Chappatta, 46 years old, 3118 Davlin court, was seated in a chair in a barber shop at 1215 South Damen avenue last evening when a stranger entered, aimed a pistol at Chappatta and fired. The bullet struck him in the chest. At the county hospital the victim denied he knew his assailant.

LABOR BODY BACKS QUIZ INTO COUNTY'S SCHOOL OF NURSING

The Chicago Federation of Labor yesterday adopted a resolution introduced by the county employés' union indorsing the investigation being conducted by County Commissioner Charles Weber into alleged extravagance in the administration of the Cook County School of Nursing. The resolution asserted that responsibility for the extravagance charged should be placed upon Frank S. Shaw, president of the school, and Miss Laura R. Log..., dean of nurses, and not upon the nurses in the school.

SLASH EXPENSES TO SAVE CHICAGO, EXPERT WARNS

Rees Explains Plight of Local Governments.

Among those who fully appreciate how serious are the financial difficulties of the city, county, schools, and other local governments, is John O. Rees, director of the Joint Tax commission.

Asked his view on the situation yesterday, Mr. Rees made the following statement:

"If the 1930 and 1931 assessments are sustained in the courts, and the taxes for these years collected in 1932 and the early part of 1933, they will cause 25 per cent of the real estate in Cook county to be forfeited to the state for non-payment of taxes. When property is forfeited it ceases to pay taxes for many years. This result will practically destroy the revenue system, beyond possibility of revival, for many years to come.

Points Out Immediate Needs.

"These inevitable heavy forfeitures can be minimized and the revenue system saved from complete collapse if three things are done at once. These are:

"1. A reduction of at least 30 per cent in the 1932 budgets, expenditures and total tax levies within Cook county.

"2. The payment of 40 per cent of the 1930 and 1931 obligations by the exchange of bonds for outstanding tax warrants and other obligations, and the collection of the remaining 60 per cent of the taxes for each year.

"3. The immediate centralization of the assessment organization and simplification of the assessment procedure.

"These three things should make it possible to sustain the 1930 and 1931 assessment rolls against legal attacks, and should create conditions of reasonable safety for the extension of limited temporary credit.

"If these recommendations are followed taxes for 1932 would be lowered about $80,000,000 by reason of the reduced expenditures; but there would at the same time be an increase in taxes of about $17,000,000 by reason of the issuance of bonds to take the place of tax warrants and other obligations."

Dr. Herbert D. Simpson, professor of economics at Northwestern university, who has made an extensive study of local taxes, believes that 30 to 45 per cent of the past expenditures could be saved.

Referring to the announcement of Mayor Cermak that he plans to reduce city expenses about 15 per cent, Dr. Simpson said:

"The amount that could be saved by anything approaching a rock bottom governmental organization for honesty, economy and efficiency would be two or three times this 15 per cent.

"There is enough money wasted in government expenditures to make up all of the existing deficits and still afford a substantial reduction of tax burdens."

Three Named as Robbers at Showup of Suspects

5 DAYS' PAY FOR SIX DAYS' WORK VOTED BY COUNTY

Five days pay for six days work was voted by the county finance committee last night for 4,442 county employés. The retrenchment program is to become effective March 1.

In effect the plan cuts salaries 20 per cent for the last nine months of the year. Spread over the year the cut is 15 per cent. The reduction is expected to save $950,000. In addition the committee hopes to save $180,000 by its previous action in reducing the wage scale of 600 extra employés from a daily rate of $6.40 to $5.25.

Wrangle for Five Hours.

The action was taken after five hours of wrangling in preparation of the county 1932 budget. During bitter debate over five retrenchment programs President Emmett Whealan walked out of the session. County Efficiency Expert J. L. Jacobs expressed himself completely disheartened by the attitude of the committee on his plan. Miss Amelia Sears and Mrs. Glen E. Plumb, women commissioners, denounced the adopted plan as "protecting pay rollers."

Parliamentary rules were forgotten in the heat of argument. Motions followed motions without being put to a vote. Votes were changed. Personalities were exchanged. A veteran clerk characterized the session with "All is confusion."

Stresses Budget Law.

The session opened quietly with the announcement of Commissioner William Busse that "the eyes of Cook county are on us." He stressed the necessity of passing the budget during the meeting to comply with the new budget law. The law requires ten days publication before the budget is finally adopted on March 1. He pointed out that three days are necessary to prepare the budget for publication and with two holidays barely enough time is left to meet the requirements.

Commissioner Peter M. Kelly then presented his program. It comprehended a scale of salary reductions of from 2 per cent on salaries up to $100 monthly to 20 per cent on salaries above $350 a month. He moved for immediate adoption.

His motion was lost when union officials appeared to protest against pay cuts of union employés. The officials and commissioners argued over the union men's disinterestedness in the plight of other county employés and the financial condition of the county.

Delay Adoption of Budget.

In this discussion the commissioners voted to delay final adoption of the budget until today regardless of the press of time. The union officials were invited to return with their protests this afternoon.

Commissioner Walter La Buy then presented his plan for five days' pay for six days' work. Under the county system of finance a salary is computed on the basis of 30 working days a month. He suggested the pay be alloted on a 24 day basis.

Commissioner Frank J. Kasper moved for a ten and one-half months budget—two weeks payless vacation and a working month without pay. Mrs. Plumb moved for a flat 10 per cent pay cut. Each commissioner pressed his program but was unable to bring about a roll call.

In the jockeying for support of the plans, commissioners frequently changed positions and at times proponents of a program switched allegiance. As talk was carried on in four separate circles Commissioner William Busse gained the floor. He declared employés expected a cut, the public demanded reduction and finances compelled a slash. He urged orderly consideration of each plan.

Jacobs Tells His Stand.

Chairman Maurice F. Kavanagh called on Jacobs, who had not contributed to the conversation. Jacobs proposed the discharge of unnecessary employés. He pointed out while the judges have granted 1,951 employés to the fee offices, the offices can function with 1,666. The judges have not made a final report, but have indicated they will stand on the 1,951 limit, a reduction of 43 jobs on the 1931 pay roll.

The Jacobs plan was voted down. The majority of the commissioners expressed the belief they might be in contempt of court by not following the judges' order. Jacobs pointed out that lawyers are divided on the question of legality of a reduction by board action from the number set by the judges' help committee. However it was voted that increases granted three departments be levied against the pay roll of the department. It was estimated this move will save $10,000.

After the vote on the fee offices Jacobs went over each office under control of the board to recommend dropping of 136 employés. He estimated the personnel reductions would save $1,000,000. The commissioners quarreled with Jacobs on individual jobs until Chairman Kavanagh explained that Jacobs was merely making recommendations.

Whealan Leaves Meeting.

When Jacobs finished a vote was called for his entire program. President Whealan walked out after a skirmish with Mrs. Edward J. Fleming, which began when she asked for an expression of his position as president of the board. He replied he would give expression when his leadership was followed.

The second Jacobs recommendation was voted down after a motion for a vote on individual departments was forgotten. Mrs. Fleming, although she voted no, demanded to know why Jacobs was retained when his suggestions were not adopted. Jacobs rose to proclaim he was disheartened.

Mrs. Plumb rose to protest against "railroading through a vote against the recommendation."

Consider Other Plans.

After more debate the commissioners returned to consideration of the 10 per cent pay cut. It was defeated. The ten and one-half months budget was also defeated. The Kelly plan was ignored. Only the LaBuy five day pay plan remained. It was put to a vote after frequent explanations that the plan was not a 20 per cent cut for the entire year, but for nine months.

Objections that union employés would refuse to work the extra day and that elected officials might refuse to take the cut were dismissed with almost no debate. Miss Sears and Mrs. Plumb held that possible failure of union employés to work the extra day made the plan unfair to other employés.

"The proposal is disloyal to more than 3,000 employés," Miss Sears said. "It shows a lack of consideration for the public interest."

The plan was carried against the dissenting votes of Miss Sears and Mrs. Plumb.

Retain Public Defender.

The commissioners expressed satisfaction at having accomplished something in the session. More leisurely they considered abolition of $20,000 for the behavior clinic at the county jail and retention of the office of public defender. The clinic was created to study criminals with a view to turning youthful offenders toward useful and righteous lives.

The commissioners voted to retain the public defender and a vote on the clinic resulted in a tie. It was agreed that the latter department is useful, but held it unnecessary in view of the county's financial plight.

INTERNES AT COUNTY HOSPITAL MOVE TO GUARD THEIR RIGHTS

Internes at the county hospital yesterday passed and forwarded to the warden and members of the hospital staff a set of resolutions designed to protect the rights of internes against the intrusion of medical and surgical associates now appointed by the staff members.

Several months ago, at the request of medical colleges, it was arranged that each attending physician should appoint one associate. These associates, according to the internes, have taken the rank that formerly was held by the interne. As an example, the associate would be first assistant to a surgeon performing an operation and the interne would be deprived of the training he would obtain by acting in the capacity of assistant.

The resolutions request: First, that the advent of associates in surgery and surgical specialties shall not interfere with recognition of the duties and privileges of surgical residents and internes as first and second assistants, respectively; and second, that an attending doctor and his associate shall not scrub or operate together on any given case. A. I. Ramenofsky is president of the interne group which has, including the surgical residents, a membership of 100.

FOREST PARK SEEKS $25,000 TO RUN SCHOOLS

A drive to raise $25,000 and keep Forest Park's four elementary schools open through the sale of 1931 tax anticipation warrants was begun yesterday at a mass meeting, attended y 400 persons, in the Grant White school auditorium. The speakers were State Senator Arthur Huebsch; C. F. Herzog, school board president; W. F. Dimmett, school superintendent; Mrs. John B. McEwan and R. J. McAuley.

Pledges for the sale of $5,000 worth of warrants were obtained immediately, insuring the operation of the schools throughout February. A feature of the drive is that the warrants will be sold on the deferred payment plan.

According to Superintendent Dimmett, Forest Park school employés have not received cash salaries in nearly four months. They have been paid in orders, a form of paper corresponding to scrip.

DON'T PERMIT WAR TO HAPPEN AGAIN! WOUNDED PLEAD

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

GENEVA, Switzerland, Feb. 7.—The disarmament conference will get under way tomorrow.

It has already heard the French proposal for the establishment of peace on earth by the creation of an international air force and placing all heavy armaments under the control of the league of nations. It has listened to world opinion through the voices of those who yesterday presented the petitions of women and young men and from both the intellectual and manual workers of the world for a relief from taxation and a relief from fear.

Britain and France to Speak.

Tomorrow it will hear what proposals Great Britain has to make for further disarmament. It will hear, too, what Andre Tardieu has to say further in advocacy of France's double plan of immediate action on the basis of the draft convention drawn up by the preparatory conference and her ultimate plan, set forth in Friday's memorandum and defended by Tardieu tonight in a speech directed to Americans.

On Tuesday Ambassador Hugh S. Gibson, acting head of the American delegation, will lay American's contribution before the conference and Chancellor Bruening will speak for Germany.

Tonight Arthur Henderson, president of the conference, struck a hopeful note when he received the international board of the federation of disabled soldiers of all nations. He, at least, is optimistic.

All Gravely Wounded.

His audience was composed of men from eleven European countries who had fought in the war. There was not one who had not been gravely wounded. Most had lost arms or legs; three were blind. One was blind and had lost both hands. Several of them are members of the parliaments of their countries. They represented 3,500,000 men mutilated in the great war and to them Mr. Henderson, whose oldest son was killed on the Somme, spoke with deep feeling.

"You have come to me," he said, "asking for the hope that what has happened to you will never happen again. I will say this, that I have never lost the hope that out of this conference much may be secured, and that hope has been strengthened rather than otherwise in the past week.

"I have found the desire for accomplishment strong among all the delegates. Fate is in many ways working for us. For in this period of acute depression there is no country and no government which is not eager to cut from its budget some part at least of that enormous amount which all are spending on armaments. There must be no saving on your pensions and on the pensions of the widows and orphans of those who fell in the last war. But there must be a saving on the provision for future wars."

Bruening Visits Henderson.

Ten minutes after he had made this speech Mr. Henderson was visited by Chancellor Bruening, who had just arrived at Geneva. Later in the evening, at a private house, Tardieu and Bruening met.

So the stage is set for this coming week, when each nation in turn will lay before the conference not only its hopes and vague aspirations but also its plans for the reduction and limitation of armaments. That is what the delegates of these nations have come here to do.

That many of these plans will conflict is certain. Germany will urge justice. Russia will advocate general disarmament. Italy will demand an immediate reduction in everybody's war budget. Most of Europe's little powers will follow the leaders in the camps to which they belong.

Japan Warned Soviet Russia Is Moving Troops in Siberia

TOKIO, Feb. 7.—(AP)—The Japanese consul general at Vladivostok, Siberia, reported to his government today that the Siberian seaport had taken on "an atmosphere which may be described like that of wartime," and that movements of soviet troops and horses there had greatly increased. Transportation of munitions, he said, was much in evidence.

While the consul general was inclined to discredit reports that the soviets were massing troops at Vladivostok, he said the Russians were carrying out wholesale arrests of "white" Russians, who were being deported in large numbers because the prisons were filled to overflowing.

Act as a Precaution.

The military activities of the soviet were merely precautionary, the report indicated. Those deported were compelled to embark for points outside the far east.

The insistence of the soviets that the "white" Russians leave the orient was interpreted here as showing fear that they might join white Russian communities in Manchuria, where a coup has been feared for some time.

Although the Japanese consul general avoided mention of this fear, it was observed military activities in Vladivostok coincided with the period of the Japanese drive on Harbin. Nevertheless, the preparations were regarded in authoritative quarters as not aimed directly against Japan, but due to soviet fears that the Japanese northward advance might encourage white, Russians in Manchuria to attempt some form of military coup in eastern Siberia.

Attention here was also directed to a reported switch in allegiance by Gen. Ma Chan-Shan, the Chinese commander who was driven out of Tsitsihar by the Japanese in their Manchurian drive.

Gen. Ma, whose position has been doubtful during the later Japanese drive on Harbin—the Chinese claiming he had reaffirmed his loyalty to Nanking (Honanfu)—evidently has returned to the Japanese camp following Gen. Jiro Tamon's occupation of Harbin.

The Rengo (Japanese) news agency in dispatches from Harbin said the erstwhile Chinese hero of Nonni river bridge and Tsitsihar had gone to Harbin from his base at Halun on Saturday night seeking an interview with Tamon.

Have Champagne Party.

The Japanese agreed and the pair met in the Japanese headquarters for a long conference. It was understood that Gen. Ma had pledged loyal coöperation with the Japanese in northern Manchuria. Shortly thereafter Gen. Tamon entertained his guest at a Sunday luncheon where much champagne flowed.

Shortly after the revelation of the entente cordiale, Gen. Ma was expected to proceed to Tsitsihar to assume governorship of Heilungkiang province.

Meanwhile Japanese airplanes today continued their destructive bombing and machine gun sniping at the retreating forces of Gen. Ting Chao, who was driven out of Harbin last week. The Japanese claimed they had scattered two large enemy groups in the districts north of Harbin.

2 More Tremors Shake Santiago; Little Damage

SANTIAGO, Cuba, Feb. 7.—(AP)—Two more earth tremors shook this city early today, but little loss was reported. One wall of the four story Sarreno apartment building, shattered by Wednesday morning's disastrous quake, fell outward.

MRS. JUDD'S FATE HINGES ON HER INSANITY PLEA

Phoenix, Ariz., Feb. 7.—(AP)—Twelve jurors and Superior Judge Howard C. Speakman assumed the lineaments of fate today for Winnie Ruth Judd.

By the thread of her disputed insanity and the court's instructions to the jury her life and her future are suspended. The all male jury, having yet to hear only the summing up of evidence for and against the slender woman accused of the "trunk slaying" of Agnes Anne Leroi, was expected to retire late tomorrow.

Judge Speakman is working overtime to ascertain whether, if the jury agrees with Mrs. Judd's counsel that she was insane last Oct. 16 when Mrs. Leroi and Hedvig Samuelson were slain, it may return a verdict of "not guilty by reason of insanity," committing her automatically to an asylum, or must return a simple acquittal.

The court is also pondering whether the jury may return a verdict less than murder in the first degree in the event they find her sane and guilty of the murder of Mrs. Leroi.

The state has based its hopes of conviction on expert testimony that she was sane when the slayings were committed.

SHOT TO DEATH IN HIS HOME.

Kewanee, Ill., Feb. 7.—(Special.)—Kewanee police today are investigating the mysterious death of Louis Wuctir, 43, who was found dead last night on his bed with a bullet in the back of his head. Dresser drawers were ransacked. Robbery was believed to have been the motive.

CHINESE POLICE HOLD STATION IN OCCUPIED AREA

Telephone Operators Keep On with Work.

[Copyright: 1932: By the Associated Press.]

SHANGHAI, Feb. 7.—Refusing to be dislodged by a rain of stray shells, Shanghai's settlement police continued to operate the west Hongkew police station today in the heart of the Japanese occupied territory.

The grounds of the station have been struck many times by shells and bullets, but, remarkably no one has been injured there. Today a shell bored a hole in the wall, but failed to explode.

Likewise thirty foreign telephone operators including a few Americans were carrying on at North Exchange, just inside the settlement boundaries. With war going on within 200 yards, the girls have worked for more than a week with little sleep in this hot-spot of exploding shells. They have been unable to go home because of the menace of snipers' bullets, and their ready-cooked meals have been brought to them at great risk through the Japanese occupied area.

One Bullet Finds Mark.

The telephone building luckily escaped being hit by gunfire although a bullet once passed through a window and crashed into the wall of the exchange room.

The food problem was most difficult. War or no war, soldiers must eat and with thousands of foreign troopers pouring into Shanghai, they have brought great demands on already undersupplied food markets in the city.

Ten thousand loaves of bread daily was only part of the order of the American forces presented at the local American bakery and wholesale grocery. Additional items included tons of onions ond potatoes that soldiers' stew may not lack substance.

War Prices in Effect.

Additional orders confronting these American bakers were twenty thousand loaves of bread daily for Chinese troops, and paradoxically, heavy Japanese demands on the same bakers caused many orders to be turned down because they could not be filled.

Although food continued to arrive from various sources local supplies were seriously curtailed and as a result prices were still sky-rocketing.

Shanghai's hotels were doing a land office business with the influx of the military officials and foreign refugees. Accomodations were difficult to obtain, and the hostelries were constantly crowded with excited, speculating and often frightened guests, endlessly talking about the battles so near at hand.

BRITISH ADMIRAL ACTS TO SETTLE SHANGHAI WAR

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

SHANGHAI, Feb. 7.—Vague peace rumors today materialized into a definite movement headed by Admiral Sir Howard Kelly of the British fleet, who launched a movement attempting to secure a Chinese-Japanese agreement to accept the proposition that each retire, creating a neutral zone, before the Japanese army clashes irrevocably with the Chinese forces.

Sir Howard, who today was in prolonged conference with Vice Foreign Minister Quotaichi, T. V. Soong, Eugene Chen, Dr. Sun Fo, and several other leaders of the various Chinese factions, tomorrow will confer with Japanese diplomatic, naval, and army dignitaries.

JAPANESE PUBLIC GETS BELATED NEWS THAT ARMY IS IN SHANGHAI

TOKIO, Feb. 7.—(AP)—The Japanese people first became aware that they were sending a Japanese army expedition to the Shanghai area through the Sunday newspapers.

A few hours later extras announced that the vanguard of the expedition had landed at Woosung and was already in action beside their naval comrades.

A naval communique describing Sunday's action at Woosung ended by saying the Chinese had resisted stubbornly and were holding entrenched positions around the town.

The announcement that soldiers were fighting on Chinese soil was received calmly by the people of Tokio and other cities. All activity was normal. Practically every Japanese dwelling in the capital, however, displayed a national flag with black streamers in memory of the 25 soldiers of the imperial body guard division lost in action in Manchuria.

SHANGHAI REPORT MADE TO LEAGUE; CONTENTS SECRET

Is Believed Similar to Press Reports.

GENEVA, Feb. 7.—(AP)—The league of nations commission of inquiry at Shanghai has made a report to Secretary General Sir Eric Drummond, it became known today, but its contents were closely guarded.

SIR ERIC DRUMMOND.
[Acme Photo.]

It was authoritatively believed, however, that the report was of minor importance as compared with the negotiations now progressing between America and other great powers for settlement of the Sino-Japanese dispute. The document undoubtedly contained in official form much information previously reported by the press and other unofficial sources.

Council May Not Meet.

It was thought probable tonight that the league council would not even be convened tomorrow to hear the report.

The Japanese held the attitude that the council should await the great powers' mediatory efforts and the councilors appeared to agree with this view. The council might be summoned, however, to hear other matters.

The Japanese delegation presented to the secretariat Tokio's new declaration of policy in the Pacific and the Shanghai area particularly. The Japanese apparently were sticking by their demands that the Manchurian question be kept separate fom the Shanghai incident and that they shall not be treated under article XV. of the league covenant.

Rule Directs Procedure.

[Article XV. provides that in a dispute among league members not submitted to arbitration or judicial settlement, the matter will be submitted directly to the council.]

The echo of the Tokio report that Japan would withdraw from the league if her view in this matter was not respected was heard in unofficial Japanese quarters, but such a determination was not officially confirmed.

4 BRAVE BULLETS TO KEEP WORLD TIED TO SHANGHAI

SHANGHAI, Feb. 7.—(AP)—Four lives are constantly in jeopardy in the effort to keep unbroken the lone remaining cable thread between Shanghai and the outside world.

At the cable heads of the Great Northern Telegraph company where land and sea lines join, two men, a woman and a child are sticking to their post while war rages nearby.

The cable heads are within a mile of Woosung village, where all today Japanese bluejackets launched a terrific attack on the Chinese forts of Woosung just beyond.

Although the air was singing with bullets and shells were bursting near by while the Japanese fighting men swarmed through the neighborhood, Cable Superintendent E. M. Kiremo and his assistant, A. A. Anderson, and his wife, refused to desert their post.

A launch has been placed at their disposal, but they were fully aware that if they left the cable head untended it would be exposed immediately to damage by fire or prowlers, and the rest of the world would be cut off from Shanghai except through restricted official channels.

Their position was made even more dangerous by a huge fire roaring through the railway yards a thousand yards away. An armored car manned by Japanese bluejackets stood constantly at the entrance to the cable depot apparently intending to guard this last connection with the world.

GERMANY ASKS LEAGUE TO ACT IN MEMEL 'SEIZURE'

Bruening Reaches Geneva; Assails Lithuania.

GENEVA, Feb. 7.—(AP)—Chancellor Heinrich Bruening of Germany came to Geneva for the first time in an official capacity today to attend the world disarmament conference and announced he would insist on a meeting of the council of the league of nations at once to consider the "Memel question."

The deposing and arrest of Otto Boettcher, German president of Memel, an "international city" in Lithuania, were described by the chancellor as a flagrant violation of the Memel statute drafted by Norman Davis in 1924 and guaranteed by England, France, Italy, and Japan.

Herr Bruening said that "Germany is extremely agitated over the Lithuanian government's action, which it considers one of the most serious cases of violation of league obligations which has yet come before the league of nations."

Will Occupy Germany's Seat.

"If the meeting is called before Tuesday, as I confidently hope it it will," he said, "I shall personally occupy Germany's seat in the council meeting. That in itself will indicate what importance we attach to the question."

He added that a note would be prepared tonight for presentation to Secretary General Sir Eric Drummond tomorrow, containing Germany's demand for an early session.

[Memel is in southwest Lithuania near the German border and has a population of more than 35,000 people, principally of German descent. By the treaty of Versailles Germany ceded the town and the territory east of the river to the allied powers and it was administered for three years by French military forces. It was seized by Lithuania in 1923. Under the direction of the league of nations a commission of inquiry constituted the Memel territory in 1924 as a unit within the sovereignty of Lithuania and provided that a governor should be appointed by the president of the Lithuanian republic.]

May Try Him for Treason.

KOVNO, Lithuania, Feb. 7.—(AP)—President Otto Boettcher of Memel, who was deposed and arrested yesterday by Lithuanian authorities, was expected today to be tried on a charge of treason. Dispatches from Memel indicated that Herr Boettcher had given offense to the Lithuanian government by visiting Berlin and conducting negotiations with German officials. A council composed solely of Lithuanians has been appointed to rule Memel.

Memel Is Closed City.

TILSIT, Germany [on Prussian-Memel Border], Feb. 7.—(AP)—Memel was a closed city tonight. Border police refused to permit newspapermen to pass and telephonic communication was barred in consequence of the arrest of President Otto Boettcher. The whereabouts of Herr Boettcher were unknown here. Some reports said he was confined to barracks in Memel, and others were that he had been spirited to Kovno.

CHURCHILL PLEA WINS CHEERS FOR ANTI-RED UNION

Tells Mission of English Speaking Nations.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

Round upon round of applause, spontaneous and vehement, followed the closing words of the Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill's plea at Orchestra hall yesterday afternoon for a closer union of the English speaking peoples against "communism and the disintegrating forces of a disunited Europe."

WINSTON CHURCHILL. [A. P. Photo.]

The handclapping was so prolonged and the attitude of the audience so manifestly intimate and affectionate that the English statesman felt impelled to rise again and utter a few words expressive of his gratitude for the cordial and understanding reception which Chicago has given him in recent days.

A Brotherly Discourse.

His words of farewell were brotherly and so was his formal discourse which filled an hour that was at once genial in spirit and provocative of serious thought.

"We hear," he said toward the close of an address entitled "The Pathway of the English Speaking Peoples," "always we hear when we draw closer together in international affairs the whisper—and sometimes the cry—'Ah, look! The English and Americans are working together!'

"Well, why should we be ashamed of that? Why should we not frankly recognize that there must be some source of doctrine and authority to rescue the nations from confusion?

"Remember, I beg of you, remember, that, vast as our resources are, there is another power coming into being which makes its appeal to certain classes in all countries, and which has its agents in all countries.

"I mean the force of international communism."

Lone Heckler Hissed.

One of Mr. Churchill's references to communism as a subversive force touched off a lone heckler in the gallery. He discharged a vehement "No," to which the reply was a hiss from the main floor.

Otherwise peace reigned, and the right honorable gentleman, who was in his happiest mood of brotherhood, went blandly on, unconscious that he had for an instant disturbed the peace.

"I see," he said, "two imminent forces that will be brought to bear in the shaping of mankind's destiny—the armed Asiatic conception of communism and the English speaking ideal of individualism. Our disunion may make the struggle end the wrong way. That the struggle will come, I have no doubt.

"May it, therefore, not be our time now to raise together, with our united hands, the standards of the home, of the family, of individualism, of God? This we can do not with our hands against the rest of mankind but with our hands clasped.

Quotes Plea of Poet.

"I give you the spirit of the pact in the simple plea of the Australian poet, Adam Lindsey Gordon, that amid an existence that is 'mostly froth and bubble' two things abide, two things endure, 'kindness in another's trouble, courage in your own.' Simple that plea is but it is fundamental in the largest issues:

Life is mostly froth and bubble;
But two things stand like stone;
Kindness in another's trouble,
Courage in your own.

"Moving in harmony with that spirit, we of the English speaking lands will travel more prosperously and travel farther if we tread the path together, like good companions." [Prolonged applause.]

Introduced by Insull.

Mr. Churchill, accompanied to the platform by Samuel Insull, British Consul Haggard, and Graham Aldis, was introduced by Mr. Insull as "one whom to introduce at all is rather a super-obligation."

"He comes on the paternal side," said Mr. Insull, "of a family distinguished for many generations in the history of Britain. On his mother's side he goes back to Valley Forge. But always he has made his own career. From journalism he advanced to authorship and from politics to statesmanship. From the time of his entrance into parliament thirty years ago, at the age of 27, he has been in the very best sense one of Britain's public servants."

Catching up Mr. Insull's reference to Mr. Churchill's ancestors and their part in the American revolution, the guest said, "I don't say I agree with them, but I do understand their point of view."

He thought in any case that it was time, as he put it, to "draw the sponge of oblivion across the injuries of the past," adding:

"And it was with that thought that the English approached the Irish question in 1922. We thought that if the Irish question could be settled—and it has been settled—one of the greatest causes of friction between England and America would be removed—and it has been removed."

Approaches World Problems.

The effect of approach to the problem in such a spirit having been thus beneficent, the speaker made no doubt that approach in a similar spirit to the tremendous problems now shaking and vexing mankind would be of incalculable benefit.

Upon the gravity of the problems he was insistent, saying:

"Under Augustus Cæsar the peace of the world was maintained by 800,000 armed men. But today twenty million trained reserves are required to guard the jigsaw frontiers of twenty jealous, impoverished and truculent nations of the continent of Europe. This cannot continue indefinitely without leading from the conflicts of countries to conflicts of continents.

Tells Britain's Duty.

"And it is here that Britain has her part to play in Europe. We can never lend ourselves to the antagonisms of continents, for we belong to all continents. We belong to both hemispheres. And here, to be specific, the significance of Canada appears. It is dear to us, and we to it, by many sentimental ties. It is a magnet drawing Great Britain and the United States closer to itself and therefore closer to each other."

A relationship, Mr. Churchill thinks, that is equally firm in good will and good understanding as is the relationship of Britain, Canada and the United States should be sought in all the continents by the English-speaking peoples.

"The conception," he said, "of a United States of Europe is right and should not be obstructed. Every stride toward European cohesion will be for the general welfare, and sinister manifestations in Europe could be restrained by Britain and the United States moving in concord along the pathway of the English-speaking peoples."

But, he granted, an infatuated recourse to pure idealism would not be effective in restraining "sinister manifestations" among truculent nations.

"Peace loving, kind hearted, pussy-footed people," he said, "have been so busy disarming English speaking peoples that they have developed a new naval power in the far east. Why should the English speaking peoples not build new ships for their fleets? We know that those fleets will never be used against one another. They are far more likely to be needed against a common enemy. If the United States wishes to build a new ship I would say, 'Build it, and God bless you'."

A Thought on Prohibition.

Touching on prohibition he said:

"We have, I think, been a little more successful than you have been in attacking the evil of intemperance. We have attacked it as you have, it is true, by state interference with the liberty of the individual, but the attack has been by high taxation and strict regulation — strictly obeyed. [Laughter.] Our people drank last year one-half the beer and one-fourth the spirits that they did at the opening of the century. When I was chancellor of the exchequer I received 655 millions—in dollars—in excise on beer spirits and wine. What a help that was! When I see you here looking about"—here the speaker went through a brief but very comical pantomime of "looking about"—"for something new to tax, I cannot but think how helpful you, too, would find ten or twelve millions in taxes on beer, spirits and wine which would be collected by the tax gatherer instead of, as now, by less desirable hands. [Vigorous and prolonged applause.]

Winston Spencer Churchill urged the young men of America to go into politics, as, he might have added, all the Churchills and Spencers who have amounted to anything have been doing since the time of the great duke who founded the greatness of the two families 230 years ago.

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. Then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

SMITH IN RACE FOR PRESIDENT, HE ANNOUNCES

Long Silence Is Broken by 1928 Candidate.

cheeks grew rosier than ever when he was asked if prospects for a Democratic victory were brighter now than in 1928. Mr. Smith was badly beaten by Mr. Hoover that year and the recollection has not softened with the years.

"Better?" responded Mr. Smith unsmilingly. "Of course they are better. The prospects are decidedly brighter than four years ago."

Roosevelt Backers Stirred.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 7.—[Special.]—Stirred by former Gov. Alfred E. Smith's announcement of his willingness to become a candidate, the forces backing Gov. Roosevelt prepared today to gird themselves for a stiff fight for the Democratic nomination for President. Gov. Roosevelt would make no comment on the Smith declaration, asserting that he had not seen it.

While the governor steered clear of any statement on the announcement that his supporters interpreted as a clear cut avowal of candidacy it was learned that the strategists of the Roosevelt camp were making ready to battle to the limit for their candidate.

See Task More Difficult.

In the eyes of the Roosevelt advisers, the Smith statement constitutes the first serious threat to the nomination of the New York executive on an early ballot at the Chicago convention. While they still remain confident of victory for Gov. Roosevelt, they acknowledge that the task has been made more difficult.

Ex-Gox. Smith's statement, it is pointed out, gives to the anti-Roosevelt group a definite personality around whom to rally a body of delegates large enough to block a two-thirds majority for the New York governor. Up to former Gov. Smith's declaration, the opposition had been somewhat aimless in its efforts to head off Gov. Roosevelt.

COMMENTS ON STATEMENT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7.—[Special.]—Al Smith's statement indicating that he is a receptive candidate for the Democratic nomination for President created jubilation here among Republicans and aroused mixed emotions in the breasts of the Democrats.

The Republicans were cheered by the prospects raised by the Smith statement of a battle over the Democratic nomination equal in ferocity to that in Madison Square Garden in 1924, which left the party disorganized and an easy prey for the Republicans. For Republicans who have been gloomily contemplating the unpopularity of President Hoover, the Smith pronouncement is the first ray of hope.

Walsh Welcomes News.

Democrats that were interviewed interpreted the statement variously, but only two—Senator David I. Walsh and William P. Connery Jr., both of Massachusetts, welcomed Smith as a candidate.

Comments on Statement.

Comments in brief on the Smith statement follow:

SENATOR J. H. LEWIS [Dem., Ill.]—This open action of the governor presents him as a candidate. No doubt the governor has had brought to his attention that President Cleveland, nominated in 1888 and beaten in that year by President Harrison, was renominated in 1892 and on the same issues of 1888 President Cleveland was elected. I assume Gov. Smith feels that he could repeat the experience of his predecessor in New York, Grover Cleveland.

SENATOR THOMAS P. GORE [Dem., Okla.]—I accept Gov. Smith's statement to mean that he will not be an aggressive candidate in 1932. I am glad because that would unleash all the hell hounds of hate and intolerance once more.

SENATOR H. L. BLACK [Dem., Ala.]—That makes Gov. Smith a candidate. I think the Democrats in my state will support some one else.

Show Worth Seeing! Fess.

SENATOR JOSEPH T. ROBINSON [Dem., Ark.]—I think he is wise in announcing that he will not engage in a campaign for the nomination or support or oppose other candidates for that recognition.

SENATOR SIMEON D. FESS [Rep., O.], chairman of the Republican national committee—A convention of Democrats so constituted, that their leader, if he can't win for himself, nevertheless can nominate the candidate, will provide a show worth seeing, the results of which will be awaited by the country with more than ordinary interest.

SENATOR W. E. BORAH [Rep., Idaho]—Ex-Gov. Smith's statement will make some people very happy, but some people very sad.

SENATOR D. I. WALSH [Dem., Mass.]—Mr. Smith stands ready to take renomination but does not propose to seek it. The members of his party who favor his nomination are free to work for that end. Indeed the delight of his statement is his clearly indicated course. He's the first choice of an overwhelming majority of the Massachusetts Democracy today.

SENATOR S. W. BROOKHART [Rep., Ia.]—This statement is about the biggest fool thing ex-Gov. Smith ever did. If he's a candidate why didn't he say so? His talk about being the titular leader of his party makes me laugh.

REPRESENTATIVE JOHN GARNER [Dem., Tex.], speaker of the house—I have no comment to make.

Rainey Noncommittal.

REPRESENTATIVE HENRY T. RAINEY [Dem., Ill.]—Mr. Smith has thrown his hat into the ring. I expect to support whoever is nominated. I have nothing to say at present as to the propriety of Mr. Smith's declaration.

REPRESENTATIVE WILLIAM P. CONNERY JR. [Dem., Mass.]—Ex-Gov. Smith is my choice. His statement was fair and his attitude proper. Massachusetts is for Mr. Smith.

REPRESENTATIVE CLAUDE V. PARSONS [Dem., Ill.]—It is evident that his brown derby is still in the ring. I am glad to know, however, that he is not to make a preconvention fight. I do not believe that the nation wants Smith as a candidate. His statement leaves the convention free to choose its own candidate.

SENATOR PITTMAN [Dem., Nev.]—It is plain from Gov. Smith's statement that he is a candidate. There is another able and patriotic statesman added to the list of possible presidential candidates.

Move to Stop Roosevelt: Glass.

SENATOR CARTER GLASS [Dem., Va.]—Most persons will interpret the statement to mean that Gov. Smith is determined to participate in the movement to stop Roosevelt. As to that, there are other persons who will hope that the effort will succeed. Beyond accomplishing this result I am unable to see that the statement is particularly significant.

SENATOR J. E. WATSON [Rep., Ind.], Republican leader of the senate—In 1928 Gov. Smith got 15,000,000 votes—more votes than were ever polled by any Democratic nominee for President. How many of his supporters have left him is conjectural, and how many of those who voted for Hoover for one reason or another have since been alienated from him is also problematical. But in my opinion Gov. Smith, as the acknowledged leader of the Democratic party in the nation, still occupies a position of power in his party and among his followers.

Sheppard Regrets Action.

SENATOR B. K. WHEELER [Dem., Mont.]—I think that statement is clearly a declaration that he is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President.

SENATOR MORRIS SHEPPARD [Dem., Tex.]—I regret that Gov. Smith has virtually entered the race That his nomination would again involve the party in dangerous controversy is beyond all doubt.

Why the Automobile Industry welcomes the NEW SILENT NON-SKID Tire

"Our 1932 models" they said, "are being engineered first of all for safety—with better controls, stronger frames, more powerful brakes to handle increased speed and power.

"But we're after new silence too—so quiet are engines, gears, carburetors, bodies, the sound of non-skid tires whirling against the road can be heard by passengers.

"You build the outstanding safety tire—can't you keep that safety and give us silence besides?"

Now Goodyear Offers Noiseless Non-Skid Traction

On an impressive number of the new 1932 motor cars you will now see the noiseless non-skid tire the automobile engineers asked for.

There are no "sled-runner" ribs of rubber in the tread center to displace grip with slip when the brakes take hold.

But the noise has been engineered away—there is no hum or rumble—you get silence plus safety!

The motor car industry has given this remarkable new Goodyear a heartfelt welcome—calling it "the smartest piece of tire engineering in years."

We promise you it will put a brand new sensation of quiet luxury and security into the new car of your choice—just take the wheel of a Goodyear-shod 1932 model and see!

Safety with Silence

Non-skid treads are vital to safety, and the new Goodyear Silent All-Weather gives you that safety, yet ends all noise and vibration by the shifting of a fraction of an inch of rubber in the husky blocks of the design, so that blocks of the same size never follow each other. The result is the quietest, smoothest-running non-skid tread that ever gripped a highway

PAPERS EXPRESS THEIR VIEWS ON AL SMITH MOVE

Varying Reactions Noted in Editorials.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Widespread editorial comment was made today on the announcement of Alfred E. Smith that he would accept the Democratic presidential nomination again.

MACON [Ga.] TELEGRAPH.—Smith is throwing to the Democrats the bone over which they will snarl and fight from now until after the November election. If the Democrats lose the presidency this year they may date the beginning of the end of their hopes from today.

BALTIMORE SUN.—The happy warrior whom Franklin D. Roosevelt hymned four years ago in Houston does not appear in the statement that is read today by every American. Yet, despite feud and frustration, this statement from Alfred E. Smith is a thing of health for the Democratic party and for the nation, because it promises clash of opinion and the purification of fire.

KANSAS CITY STAR.—Whatever Mr. Smith's underlying motive, his announcement means the beginning of a desperate drive of the anti-Roosevelt forces to deadlock the next Democratic convention under the two-thirds rule. The Democrats are in no mood to repeat the blind idolatry that held them behind Bryan after he had been badly defeated. The swing is toward the man they think easiest to elect. That man seems to be Roosevelt.

LOUISVILLE COURIER-JOURNAL.—Mr. Smith's announcement is unfortunate for the Democratic party, for it means a struggle which may result in leaving the party so factionally embittered as to conduce to the election of Herbert Hoover.

RICHMOND [Va.] TIMES-DISPATCH.—Mr. Smith has been keenly alert for anything that might be interpreted as a call from the party to become a candidate again, but none has come. It is so unnecessary as to be slightly pathetic.

DES MOINES REGISTER.—The announcement . . . is made at a time calculated to affect most disastrously the effort of the Franklin Roosevelt management to roll up a decisive vote before the convention approaches.

PITTSBURGH POST-GAZETTE.—No one can question the fact that the man who received 15,000,000 votes, more than was ever given to any Democratic candidate in history, must be considered a serious contender for the nomination.

ROANOKE TIMES.—Smith's statement settles one thing definitely. It is a masterful statement, able, rather than adroit. As a result, Smith's influence and position in the party are enhanced, rather than impaired.

BIRMINGHAM AGE-HERALD.—Without reference to the New York governor's candidacy, there is reason to regret Smith's pronouncement of receptivity—he has put himself definitely in the race. And that is not a good thing for the party or the country.

HARTFORD COURANT.—Mr. Smith doubtless knows the nature of the opposition that would inevitably raise itself against him. In all likelihood he envisions himself less as the nominee of the convention than as its dictator, with the power to name a nominee other than himself.

NEW YORK TIMES.—Alfred E. Smith's ambition is honorable. He can scarcely be blamed for believing that he is entitled to another shot at the White House. Something else, however, will come back if he is nominated. It is a revival of those religious prejudices which so distressed thoughtful men in 1928. If that abhorrent and un-American dragging in of religion were to be witnessed again so soon, it would be a cause of dejection and grief to multitudes.

PHILADELPHIA INQUIRER.—He [Smith] has not thrown his hat into the ring but he has left it lying conveniently near. He has thus in reality left the situation pretty much as he found it.

PHILADELPHIA RECORD.—The Record regrets the attitude taken by Alfred E. Smith. It can have only one practical effect: Deadlock of the convention between Smith and Roosevelt and nomination of a pale compromise conservative of the Garner-Robinson type who would out-Hoover Hoover.

N. Y. HERALD TRIBUNE.—It seems well within the range of reason that he [Smith] and his friends will be in a position to control the nomination. The former governor's frankness and directness are in sharp contrast with the pussyfooting and evasive tactics of Franklin D. Roosevelt. For Mr. Roosevelt to lose [if he does] the prize may point a moral to future aspirants who might believe it better strategy to evade than to meet an issue.

SYRACUSE POST STANDARD.—Former Gov. Smith has split the Democratic party so badly by announcing his candidacy that it will be able to present only the illusion of a united front during the campaign.

LOS ANGELES TIMES.—Smith's announcement is a political bombshell. It knocks into a cocked hat the chances of Gov. Roosevelt to obtain the nomination.

Moslems Attack Police in Hindu War; Two Killed

SRINAGAR, Kashmir, Feb. 7.—(AP)—Thousands of howling Moslems attacked police today at three places in Kashmir. Two Moslems were killed and eight persons wounded, including two policemen.

The disorders occurred in Kashmir's internal strife between Moslems and Hindus, the Moslems agitating for the overthrow of the Maharajah, Sir Harisingh.

CERMAK IS FOR LEWIS; THAT IS HIS VIEW ON AL

"I'm with Senator James Hamilton Lewis for President," said Mayor Cermak yesterday when asked his views on the announcement by former Gov. Al Smith of New York regarding his candidacy. "It makes no difference here what Gov. Smith said. We have agreed to support Senator Lewis and I think the delegation from Illinois will be pledged to Lewis."

The mayor would not comment on whether he thought the Smith announcement was detrimental to the presidential candidacy of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York.

Representative Michael L. Igoe, Democratic national committeeman for Illinois, candidate for governor, said he believed Roosevelt's candidacy had previously fallen by the wayside and therefore was not further harmed by the Smith announcement.

"Smith, more than any other candidate, speaks the language people understand," Igoe said. "There is plenty of Smith sentiment in Illinois."

SHOOTS SELF ACCIDENTALLY.

URUGUAY HALTS COMMUNIST PLOT AND NABS CHIEF

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Feb. 7.—(AP)—The government today took strong measures to prevent a threatened communist outbreak, and with the arrest of Neponuceno Saravia, its reported leader, announced that "all danger was past." However, troops were restricted to their garrisons in Montevideo and machine guns were placed at strategic points, while soldiers patrolled the suburbs.

Saravia, estranged regional leader of the Nationalist (minority) party, was arrested on his arrival here today and charged with buying arms and trying to induce people to join a subversive movement. It was understood the communists planned their coup at the opening of the carnival, which began last night, starting with an attack on the light plant and hoping to accomplish their feat in the ensuing confusion.

The sudden change of South America's smallest republic from a haven and forum of communism to an enemy land began a week ago, when arms smuggling was uncovered on the northern border.

Would You Be a Nervous Wreck after Fire Chief Duffy's Horrible Experience?

Read in His Own Words How Explosion Killed Three, How He Could Not Sleep or Eat for Two Years, then Regained Health

"For 32 years I have been a member of the Kansas City Fire Department," says Fire Chief E. J. Duffy, of Kansas City, Mo., 3608 Prospect, "and up to August 5, 1929, which was the date of the awful explosion and fire on Prospect Avenue which killed three of my firemen, I enjoyed almost perfect health. That explosion just wrecked my health, and I didn't know what it was to enjoy a decent night's sleep for more than two years. I was so nervous I couldn't sit still for five minutes at a time, and to read or do any writing was misery. I lost my appetite and my health. I tried many medicines but nothing helped me and I began to get discouraged about ever getting well. A friend of mine told me of the wonderful results Wenvo was giving others, so I decided to give it a trial. I felt an improvement right away, and since continuing the treatment I am glad to be able to say that I now eat anything, am gaining weight, and sleep like a baby. "The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

A VICTORY FOR DECENT POLITICS AND HONEST GOVERNMENT.

The decision of Chief Justice Fisher and his associates, sitting in the case of the state against former President Crowe and other trustees, cannot but have a tonic effect upon the community's morale, an effect much needed. The covert resistance to the prosecution was powerful, and its failure would have gone a long way in supporting the widespread belief that corruption in politics cannot be punished. It is not good for our citizenship to despair of its own ability to put government upon a foundation of integrity. Discouragement and a cynical defeatism are unnecessary and fatal to responsible self-government.

The trial has, indeed, been a striking revelation of conditions in politics and public office which are neither tolerable nor inevitable. The panorama of unscrupulous greed it has spread before the people has certainly deeply shocked the moral sense of the community and, we believe, has created a determination to put our civic household in decent order. It can be done, and the decision of Justice Fisher and his colleagues, Judge James J. Kelly and Judge John Prystalski, will support that determination.

The public will be especially grateful to First Assistant State's Attorney John E. Northup, who, with great professional ability and, better still, with splendid courage and resolution, has fought the cause of the people through to this victory in the teeth of bitter and powerful resistance. He will go down in our history as a fighting champion of official responsibility and integrity. We have also to be grateful to State's Attorney Swanson, who stood loyally by Mr. Northup; to Mr. Loesch, who began the investigation and prosecution; to Mr. Northup's aids, and to the judges who fulfilled their duty in the application of the law to the facts.

The judgment will, it is said, be carried up for review, but in the meantime a memorable victory has been won for good government. We have only to recall other instances in which the powers of politics that prey upon the community have been able through the exercise of subterranean influence to disappoint justice and insure the profits of official robbery to realize the importance and benefit of Mr. Northup's labors and success. Public plunder has received a heavy blow. The cynical theory that politics is a system of profit which is not governed by either the law of man or God has been successfully challenged. Robbing the public will not seem quite so safe a privilege of political and official power. The leadership and elements of good citizenship will be heartened to go forward in the good fight.

ON THE WAY DOWN.

Lately Milwaukee has attracted a special attention as a model of fiscal sanity. Dan Hoan, the successful and Socialist mayor, has attributed Milwaukee's position to sound judgment in keeping a Socialist at its head. The Nonpartisans, as the opposition party is named, claim credit by reason of their continued watchfulness of municipal expenses, and another group claims it is because of the biological soundness of the population.

But Milwaukee, like Chicago and other cities whose economic destiny is to a greater or less degree controlled by a political unit other than itself, can be so bled that it may find itself at any time no better off than the poorest. Signs are not lacking that Milwaukee already is beginning to feel the demands put upon it by the state legislature.

Special state taxes last year exacted more than $12,000,000 from taxpayers of the metropolis to be spent in uplift and improvement, either by the state government or distributed for state aid projects among the poorer and less thickly settled upstate counties. Milwaukee pays 50 per cent of the total state income tax, one-half of which goes to the state or counties away from Milwaukee. The 4 cent gasoline tax, the inheritance tax, the motor license tax, all drain millions from Milwaukee for the benefit of other residents of Wisconsin.

The state legislature now, under the lead of Gov. La Follette, wrestled for weeks with a tax bill, one of the difficulties of which was to determine just how many millions could be taken from Milwaukee for state enterprises.

This constant drain on Milwaukee taxpayers, together with faults common to municipal governments to which Milwaukee is by no means immune, has been, and is, a terrific load. The golden goose still struts, but there are those who say she is beginning to stagger.

Last year there was a total of more than $12,000,000 extended and delinquent taxes in Milwaukee county. The city of Milwaukee, although it has $4,000,000 in cash on hand and is paying its current obligations, has a bonded debt of around $48,000,000, which is near its constitutional limit.

Milwaukee county, with its $10,000,000 courthouse and a bonded debt of $30,000,000, is still well under its debt limits, but it had to go to the banks this month to borrow $2,000,000 to meet current expenditures. The supervisors uttered groans of pain when they found the banks exacting 6 per cent for the loan, but learned that numerous sources had been canvassed and none of them was willing to make the loan at the 2½ per cent that previously had been the prevailing and popular rate of interest.

The 6 per cent rate was attributed variously to hard times, economic depression, and chain banks, but the well informed agreed the higher rate of interest meant that financiers no longer were finding Milwaukee county as choice a credit risk as formerly.

A combination of free handed expenditures and $12,000,000 tax delinquencies in the city and county and a $12,000,000 drain on the city taxpayers for state activities are not consistent with Milwaukee's position as a city immune to financial pains, and the banks are quick to see it. Milwaukee can hold its position as a financial model for American cities only so long as its expenditures and taxes and the burden of state support are held within the capacity of the people to pay. Even in Milwaukee it is apparent the limit has been about reached.

THE HIGH COST OF NEW SCHOOLS.

The school board's budget for 1932 as it now stands appropriates $19,135,000 for new schools. Last year the appropriation for new buildings was $15,700,000. It would be difficult to justify so large an increase as $3,400,000 in any year, but this year, when taxes are insupportably high and the incomes from which taxes must be paid are at a low ebb, the taxpayers are justified in demanding a sharp revision downward of the building budget.

The board, of course, can show that a certain number of new schools are required each year and can say that this year is no exception to the rule. But that is not a sufficient answer. A number of competent architects and engineers who have examined school plans have said privately that the schools are costing far more than they need to. One architect of experience has asserted that in his opinion the costs of schools could be reduced as much as 40 per cent below the estimates without reducing the size of a single room, without reducing the number of rooms and without the removal of a single facility now included in the drawings. He intimated that these savings could be achieved by more economical planning, by improved building methods and, of course, by honest contracting.

If that is true, the taxpayers of Chicago are being asked to provide $19,000,000 for buildings which need cost less than $12,000,000. Perhaps the estimate of possible savings is exaggerated, but until the board of education has obtained competent and disinterested architectural and engineering support for its estimates of cost the public will be warranted in suspecting that the present building appropriation is excessive and insisting upon a sharp reduction.

THE MYSTERY OF TWO EDITORS.

The Curtis Publishing company issues the Saturday Evening Post and the Ladies' Home Journal. The late Edward Bok edited the Journal. Loring A. Schuler edits it now. George Horace Lorimer edits the Post. The Post is a roaring old style American publication and a pain to the intellectuals, internationalists, cancellationists, radicals, and the Geneva teacup school of foreign relations. The Journal is a breath over Eden.

Just at present the Journal is circulating a five point plan for peace which will be sent to Dr. Mary Woolley, American representative at the disarmament conference, to guide her in moments of doubt. The plan seeks out American interest wherever it can be found and then goes against that interest. The Post aims to reach the solid, sometimes solemn, generally sober, nearly always modest American citizen who is conscious that he has a stake in the country and who does not believe that patriotism is either a weakness or a vice. The Journal is offered to his wife. The domestic scene invites speculation. How do Darby and Joan get along under the reading lamp? Is the felicity of the home unaffected by the internal strife of Brother Schuler and Brother Lorimer, the one always going to Geneva and the other to the ramparts? Or do husband and wife scare the children by the vividness of their opposing opinions? Some day the roof of the Curtis Publishing company will be blown off and as the débris comes down Mr. Lorimer will be found chasing Mr. Schuler in the direction of Valley Forge.

Could the strange case of these two editors be explained by the fact that Mr. Schuler is of Harvard and Mr. Lorimer is of Yale? Probably that inference would be unfair. After all, Roosevelt was of Harvard and Taft was of Yale.

Editorial of the Day

AMERICA AND JAPAN.

[New York Evening Post.]

It is easy to criticize a course which has made us the leader of the world's protest against Japan, on the ground, as we profoundly believe, that our people are opposed to our taking any such position. There has been throughout America no active hatred of Japan. California's exclusion acts have represented a special economic enmity along the Pacific coast and there have been constant efforts to foment a national distrust. But, on the whole, these have failed. On the whole, our people have had no more feeling against the Japanese than they had against the Germans before the latter crossed the frontier of Belgium in 1914.

Shanghai is now Japan's Belgium. Its violation has stirred the world's conscience, and the gallantry of its defenders has astounded Japan's military machine by delaying it if not actually defeating it.

But even with the Shanghai drama before our eyes our national sentiment has not hardened into an anti-Japanese feeling. We are not unwilling to let her keep her hold on Manchuria, providing that she keeps her word about the open door. We certainly do not want to go to war with her because of any mass hatred toward her; it does not exist. Nor do we want to go to war for China's sake, nor for the league of nations' sake, nor for the sake of the Kellogg pact. The only point on which we shall be compelled to act without thought of the consequences is the point of the killing of our nationals. That is why our Asiatic fleet has been ordered from Manila; it is to protect the lives of Americans in the international settlement at Shanghai.

The truth is that the power to force war rests in the hands of Japan, just as it rested in the hands of Germany in 1917. We must hope and pray that she will not exercise it. But meanwhile we must go along, avoiding every provocation and doing only the far eastern jobs that national self-respect requires.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

Even with all the freemasonry there is between dog owners, you've got to be careful. When we go around the block to give Thomas Atkins, the w. k. Sealyham, an airing we frequently meet other doggy people with their hounds. Tommy always mutters horrible Sealyham cuss words and repeats over and over again, "Lemme git at that mutt; I'll killim, I'll killim!" And the other hound cusses around and says, "Just gimme one bite at that sawed-off shrimp an' he won't stop running for five miles!" Then we speak very politely to the other dog owner and say, "Oh, what a lovely Scotty [or Kerry Blue or Poodle or Chow, or what have they]. How old is he [or she. But whatever you say you always guess wrong]?" And the owner of the other hound says, "Oh, thanks, and what a lovely little dog you have. Is he an English shepherd dog?" And we say no, that Tommy is half St. Bernard, half Bengal tiger.

But the other day we met a lady who was leading a dog so covered up with his cunning little woolen sweater and tall muff and galoshes that we couldn't quite make him out. "Nice dog," said we; "a Spitz, isn't he?" "I beg your pardon!" said the doggy lady, icily. "Sorry," said we; "what we meant to say was that your dog must be an Expectorator." After all, there is nothing like using polite words, and "Expectorator" is much more polished and cultured than "Spitz." "My dog," observed the doggy lady haughtily as she gave the order to her hound to proceed, "is a POMERANIAN." We were crushed and Tommy put his tail between his legs and slunk dejectedly all the way home. Anyhow, we went straight to the unabridged dictionary and looked up Pomeranian, and at the end of the description of the animal the unabridged said, "Called also a Spitz dog." But we can't carry an unabridged dictionary around with us every time we take the hound for an airing, so to avoid trouble after this we'll call 'em Pomeranians.

(But they are Spitzes just the same.)

WHEN RANGE WINDS BLOW.

When the winds blow on the ranges,
Water holes are ruffled pans,
Offering their brackish nectar
To the air thronged caravans;
When the clouds roll, grey and sullen,
Heavy, surging, beating things,
Then the birds drift in, gay tokens,
Homing travelers of Springs.

Nesting in the border rushes,
Near the grasses' promised seeds;
Building in the greening sagebrush,
Singing, swinging on the weeds;
They are here—through cloud and sunshine—
Coming with the season's change;
They renew the hopes we fashion
When the winds blow on the range.

No Use Writing to Any Such—Call a Cop!

(From the Wheaton, Ill., Record.)

ALEC, DOROTHY McLEOD
WRITE TO FIENDS IN WHEATON FROM CHINA

THE ADMINISTRATION'S CAMPAIGN against hoarders, started down in Washington, is now proceeding in deadly earnest. A hoarder is going to be put in the same class with racketeers, public enemies, traitors, pirates, hitch hikers, and those who steal milk bottles from the little babies in their gocarts in the park. Shame on you hoarders! Where's that dollar and sixty-five cents you had two weeks ago? Come now, dig it up or off you go to jail. And to think that we used to write in our Spencerian copy books, "Willful Waste Makes Woeful Want"; "A Penny Saved Is Two Pence Earned," and "Take Care of the Pennies and the Dollars Will Take Care of Themselves." A lot of people took those slogans seriously and saved their money. And look at the poor fish now—branded as wreckers of our nation's prosperity. See the commissions going around with long, sharp poles poking the hoarders out. And the poor boobs thought all the time they were just saving and deserved a medal. Gosh, this changing world! There's simply no keeping up with the blamed thing!

SONNETS IN A SEQUENCE.

X.

Hail and farewell, my lovers and my friends!
Here parts the road; the journey is begun;
Here in a pallid dawn discreetly ends
The path of many loves betrayed for one.
Not that your loveliness deserved my spurning,
Not that your bounty merited a blow,
Not that remorse, a fierce and covert burning,
Ravages not my spirit as I go,
But that my lying heart, that was so long
The blithe companion of a soaring quest,
Deserts the cloud, relinquishes the song,
Gives up her light to fill another breast,
And without conflict or the sound of cries

CAUSE OF KIDNEY STONE.

DR. J. S. EISENSTAEDT thinks phosphate stones in the kidney, ureter, and bladder result from infections. If a man has passed one or more such stones and wishes to avoid having others form he should see to it that infections are eliminated. The usual locations of the infection are in the tract from the kidney outward, though sometimes infections elsewhere in and near the pelvis and, in some cases, infections in distant parts of the body, such as the teeth or tonsils, may be responsible. The infections like those that cause arthritis are chronic in character and may not cause any symptoms at the locality where the infection enters.

In Dr. Eisenstaedt's investigation the staphylococci were the most frequently encountered microbes, bacillus coli ranking lower. In parallel investigations made by others bacillus coli was most often at fault. This differs from the infections which cause chronic arthritis in that most of those are due to streptococci.

As a rule infections of the urinary tract tend to disappear spontaneously in a short while, even though no antiseptics or other medicines are taken. The rule is that the various tissues of the human body have a marvelous capacity to rid themselves of bacteria. This tract conforms to that rule, though many people have had experiences in which the rule did not work.

The most frequent cause of persistent infection, in Dr. Eisenstaedt's experience, was an obstruction located somewhere in the tract. If this obstruction could be removed, as a rule, nothing further would be required for terminating the infection. He could find no evidence that eating a diet low in calcium, or in phosphates, was of service in the prevention of phosphate stones.

There is some proof that prolonged subsistence on a diet low in vitamin A tends to cause stones. He thinks this cause is not of any practical importance, since it operates only in people who are profoundly undernourished. Persons in a nutritional state only slightly below the normal level are not prone to stones. He considers that low nutrition due to a diet low in vitamin A acts indirectly by predisposing to infections.

His report is based on experience with phosphatic stones. However, he quotes some authors who do not think diet is a major factor in the causation of other kinds of kidney stones.

DEMENTIA PRAECOX.

A reader asks: Is dementia præcox curable? The man in question has no bad habits and always appeared normal until recently. The family attributed the trouble to financial worries.

REPLY.

Many cases of dementia præcox are sufficiently improved by treatment to go back into society and to become self-supporting. The term is loosely used and includes more than one mental disorder. Even when used in a more limited sense, those who have it vary. There are different types of the disease, and some are more curable than others. Aside from variation in the disease, there is variation in individuals. Which brings us to this: The curability depends on the case. In the cure of dementia præcox nothing suffices except training and hygienic living.

CHLOROSIS.

Mrs. J. L. writes: Please write something about the cause and treatment of chlorosis. A girl of 18 has been troubled that way for about two years. She doesn't improve at all. I give her steak and chops, and also milk and cream to keep up her strength. She hates liver. She goes to school regularly and was graduated from high last June.

REPLY.

When corsets were abandoned chlorosis became infrequent. Have your daughter wear loose garments, especially in the liver region. Other than this she needs to follow the laws of hygiene: Exercise in the open air, sunlight, regular bowel habits, proper foods, and possibly iron and copper tonics.

FIND THE CAUSE FIRST.

M. J. writes: I would appreciate if you would write as to how one may overcome nervous spells, such as tightening of the chest and nervous headaches. I have suffered quite a while from these. When the attacks come on I imagine things that I know are not true, and feel terribly depressed.

REPLY.

The first step is to make certain that the nervous spells are not symptoms of some organic disease, some affection of the brain or spinal cord or chest organs. If these possibilities are eliminated, there remains what may be termed the habit of nervousness or, better, the nervous personality. The cure for that is a matter of training. It is a question of behavior, attitudes, and reaction. If the taking of medicine is of benefit under such conditions it is because of psychic effects.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

WHO TO PAY.

Chicago, Feb. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A widow woman owning a flat building died recently without leaving a will. I am a tenant in the building and I am paying my rent to one of three daughters who is caring for the building and who seems to conduct all business affairs connected with the building. All members of the family live together in this building. Should rent be paid to a daughter in this manner or to an executor appointed by the Probate court?

J. K.

If you believe that there is a possibility of the others questioning the point, you might ask the daughter to give you a letter signed by all the heirs, directing you to make your rent payments to the daughter.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

SUBSCRIPTIONS.

Des Plaines, Ill., Feb. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—In 1925 I subscribed for a local paper for one year, paying in advance. Now they have continued to send this paper for six years and are demanding payment in five days. Can you tell me what the law is in regard to above? Can they really force collection?

W. J. S.

It is the general rule that if the subscriber admits that he originally ordered the paper and that he continued to receive it through the mail he is liable, until he has taken some action to cut it off. The limitation period on liability on such an implied contract is five years. We do not understand how you could claim to continue to receive the paper through the mail without expecting to pay for it.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

TREES REMOVED.

Chicago, Feb. 2.—[Friend of the People.]—Will the city take down free of cost to me [as I could not pay for it] two large trees between the sidewalk and curbing? I think the gas must have killed them this summer and I am afraid if a strong wind occurs they may fall on my house.

E. R.

I beg to advise that the two dead trees referred to have been removed by this department.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

28 YEARS AGO TODAY

FEBRUARY 8, 1904.

TOKIO.—Japan is through with negotiations. The Russian minister, Baron de Rosen, has been ordered to leave Tokio, and Mr. Kurino, the Japanese minister in Russia, has been told to demand his passports. An official declaration of war is expected tomorrow. The railroads are rapidly conveying troops to all ports of embarkation. Four Russian warships have sailed from Vladivostok. Russia's interests in Japan have been confided to the Austrian embassy. The Italian minister declined to assume the responsibility. It is reported that Russian troops have already crossed the Corean frontier.

ST. PETERSBURG.—"Japan herself has willed it; so let it be; God be with us." That is the concluding sentence in the Novoe Vremya's announcement that Japan has severed diplomatic relations with Russia. All hope of avoiding war with Japan is gone, although belief is expressed that hostilities may not begin for some weeks. The news that Japan had ordered the Russian minister to leave Tokio and had recalled her own envoy from St. Petersburg came like a bolt from the blue. Official Russia has felt all along that negotiations might be prolonged. The Russian reply to Japan's note was worded with a view of prolonging the discussion. Everywhere there is bitterness and anger at what is called Japan's hasty action.

LONDON.—A state of war exists between Russia and Japan, and actual hostilities will not be long delayed. That is the universal opinion in London, from the Japanese minister down to the man on the street, who believes that the Japanese are going to make a single mouthful of the Russian fleet in far eastern waters and probably gobble up Port Arthur as well.

BALTIMORE, Md.—For 16 hours Baltimore has been and still is at the mercy of a fire which seems destined to wipe out the business heart of the city. Twenty-five square blocks of the most solid and recently built structures are smoldering embers.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

FEBRUARY 8, 1916.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The house of representatives was treated to the unusual spectacle of Speaker Champ Clark and Minority Leader Mann joining hands in an effort to hasten consideration of measures of national defense. Party lines were broken and the peace at any price army of congressmen was put to ignominous flight when Mr. Clark and Mr. Mann asked the house to act favorably on two bills reported from the naval affairs committee. One increases the number of cadets at Annapolis by more than 500 appointments. The other provides for the enlargement of the Mare island navy yard at San Francisco.

WAR NEWS.—On the French front artillery engagements of great intensity were fought. A German blockhouse was destroyed near La Eisier. Great fires were caused in the important railway junction of Challerange in the Champagne. On the Russian front, Petrograd reports, successful mining operations were conducted against the Austrian positions in Galicia. In the Balkans, the Austrians are reported within four miles of Durazzo, Albania. The Serbs fell back to escape the envelopment by Bulgars at Elbassan. Bulgarian and Turkish troops moved toward the Rumanian frontier where Rumanian troops are concentrated. In the Caucasus, the Russians advanced beyond the Arkhar river and occupied a region on the northern shore of Lake Van.

CHICAGO.—All the pomp and stately ceremonial of the Catholic church await the coming today of the Most Rev. George William Mundelein, archbishop elect of Chicago, who will arrive from New York at 3 p. m. Visiting dignitaries from every part of the United States will have a part in the elaborate welcome which will mark his arrival in the archdiocese. Installation ceremonies will begin tomorrow morning at Holy Name cathedral.

GROTON, Mass.—"Teddy" Roosevelt Jr., son of the President, and who is in one of the Groton schools, is seriously ill of pneumonia. The attack developed from a cold contracted during the recent severe weather. The Groton boys, in a spirit of bravado, had been going about without hats or overcoats to inure themselves to extreme winter weather. As a result, five of them, including Teddy, have pneumonia.

CHICAGO.—Thomas Byrne, owner of the University flats, 6106 Ellis avenue, which were destroyed by fire which made homeless the occupants of 47 flats, gave each of the 47 families who were burned out $100 each. In the envelopes containing the money was a note stating: "And may it help you to get a new start."

CHICAGO.—Royalty will pay a tribute to the memory of Abraham Lincoln when Prince Henry visits Chicago. In Lincoln park on March 4 the titled visitor will place a wreath at the foot of the nation's war President. The ball in honor of the prince will be in charge of Ald. Honore Palmer. Harry G. Selfridge will head the finance committee to raise funds for the entertainment of the prince. He will have associated with him C. Fred Kimball, Medill McCormick, Clarence Buckingham, Charles H. Wacker, Marshall Field Jr., Graeme Stewart, and possibly Chauncey Keep.

NEW YORK.—Maria Halpin, who figured in the first campaign of Grover Cleveland for the presidency, died at her home in New Rochelle, where she had been living quietly for several years as the wife of Wallace Hunt.

WOMEN AND RETRENCHMENT.

Chicago, Feb. 5.—The Cook County League of Women Voters has been following the work of the Cook county board of commissioners and of the board of education. We consider THE TRIBUNE editorial of Feb. 4, entitled "Women and Retrenchment," not quite fair to the women members of those bodies.

In the first place, the policy of grouping the women commissioners together as though they acted as a unit gives a false and misleading impression. With the possible exception of their regularity in attendance at meetings, there is little more basis for speaking of the women members as a group than there is for lumping the men together. The women members, as do the men, show great differences in their attitudes and policies and in their voting records. The women should stand or fall by their records in office as individuals.

In the second place, we wonder if THE TRIBUNE in writing its editorial had the following information at its disposal:

Mrs. Fleming and Miss Sears on Jan. 11, 1932, cast two of the four votes against the rejection of the bid of the Amici Construction company, which was $13,000 lower than the other bids received.

Mrs. Fleming and Miss Sears, joined by one of the men commissioners, Mr. Miller, on Dec. 15, 1931, voted against the purchase of the Sullivan property at $128,000.

These same women commissioners, again joined by Mr. Miller, voted against compromising on a claim brought against the county for $18,000 by the allied contractors and urged that the contractors should prove their case in court.

Again, on Aug. 25, 1931, Mrs. Fleming and Miss Sears, with Mr. Miller, voted against the award of the nurses' home contract at $1,900,000, a cost which seemed excessive to them.

Mrs. Plumb and Miss Sears recently in budget committee were responsible for the saving of $50,000 in the budget for Oak Forest through the employment of a trained dietitian.

It was on a motion made by Mrs. Plumb that the Cook County School for Boys was discontinued as a measure of economy.

Miss Sears and Mr. Kavanagh, on Dec. 29, 1931, cast the only votes against letting a contract for milk for the Oak Forest institutions at 26c per gallon instead of at the low bid of 20c per gallon, which would have made a saving of $9,000.

Miss Sears has been the only commissioner who has consistently opposed the making of additional appropriations for the board of assessors. With President Whealan, Mr. Busse, and Mr. Miller, Miss Sears voted against the appropriation of $115,000 for the board of assessors and board of review, which was vetoed by President Whealan in September, 1931, and she alone voted against the appropriation of $50,000, which was passed in December, and the appropriation of $25,000 voted in January, 1932.

May we urge that the women commissioners be judged by their own individual records and that the entire voting record of the county board be taken into consideration?

As for the woman member of the board of education, Mrs. William S. Hefferan, she is the one member who is now constantly advocating a reduction in the cost of the business administration and of the operation of the schools.

We would like to remind THE TRIBUNE that Mrs. Hefferan has stood consistently for preventing extravagance in the building of new schools and that THE TRIBUNE has backed her in this stand in previous years.

The proposed reductions in school costs which Mrs. Hefferan has opposed have been those affecting educational activities which progressive educators deem most essential and which have been built up through slow and careful effort over a period of years for the benefit of the child for which the school exists. It is these very activities which have given the Chicago public schools their fine reputation throughout the country.

SAVILLA MILLIS SIMONS,
Public Affairs Secretary, Cook County League of Women Voters.

FROM SENORA ROBLES DE MENDOZA.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—Will you please be so kind as to do me the courtesy to correct a misquotation concerning my statement about women in politics which you referred to in one of your editorials in today's paper?

When I said that we are in the awkward stage and have not learned how to handle ourselves, and that we are at a loss when the occasion requires poise, self-confidence, and quick wits, I was referring only to my own countrywomen and was trying to emphasize the fact of our recent appearance in political life. I did not mention women of any other country.

My admiration for American women could never allow me to express myself in such terms concerning them, as I know their marvelous achievements in this field.

MARGARITA ROBLES DE MENDOZA,

WAGES AND RATES.

Chicago, Jan. 31.—There seems to be a rather widespread opinion that a reduction in the wages of railroad employés will result in a corresponding reduction in freight and passenger rates. As a matter of fact, these rates are established by the interstate commerce commission, and, as a matter of further fact, these rates were very recently increased; consequently a reduction in the meager wages paid to the rail employés will have absolutely no effect on these rates.

As a matter of further information, and to clarify another impression, the rank and file of the railmen who were so ably misrepresented at the auction were given absolutely no choice in the matter. No attempt whatever was made to poll the membership of the various organizations, the so-called heads of the organizations being only too well aware what the result of such a poll would be.

TALLOW POT.

A GRAPEFRUIT BLOSSOM.

Chicago, Feb. 2.—For several years my wife has amused herself by planting orange and grapefruit seeds in flower pots, which usually grew to sturdy bushes. Of course, when they grew too large they had to be done away with.

In July last she again planted some grapefruit seeds. They sprouted as usual and by this time are about 8 inches high. A few weeks ago one of the plants developed what seemed to be a bud, although it seemed hardly possible, and the bud has now opened into a bloom. It really seems strange to me that such a small plant should produce a bloom. I was under the impression that such a thing could happen only after the tree was several years old and had arrived at maturity.

HIGHER GAS BILLS.

Chicago, Feb. 3.—Wages have been cut, incomes reduced, but the cost of gas has increased. We were led to believe that the new gas would be cheaper, and now my gas bills average about 70 cents a month higher. I have inquired of my neighbors, and they too complain of higher gas bills. Will the gas company please explain?

MRS. B. R. DAVIDSON.

WITH WHAT?

Berwyn, Feb. 2.—Don't you think it would be only proper for you to advocate that we build a Chicago subway now? With so many people out of work and some millions of dollars lying idle in the traction fund, why wait?

J. L. BORDENAVE.

THE COST OF VETERANS' RELIEF.

Chicago, Feb. 3.—After reading that article in THE TRIBUNE of Feb. 1 about the soaring cost of veterans' relief by Mr. Silas Strawn I just had to write a few lines. Did he forget the years of 1917-1918 when the boys were doing their bit at one dollar a day, less $6.60 per month for insurance? Uncle Sam canceled 14 billion dollars of Europe's war debts but claims he cannot pay the veterans the bonus.

SWANSON OPENS HIS CAMPAIGN FOR RE-ELECTION

Points to 3 Year Record of Achievement.

State's Attorney John A. Swanson gave an accounting of his conduct of the prosecutor's office yesterday as he began his campaign for renomination and reelection. Four years ago he reluctantly acceded to the requests of business, labor and political leaders to become a candidate, he said, and, having been elected, he undertook to bring about speedy and vigorous prosecution of criminals.

"Much has been accomplished in the prosecution of criminals," Mr. Swanson's statement declared. "Many bombers, kidnapers, tax fixers, election crooks and looters of public funds, together with three gang murderers have been convicted during the last three years. These were the first convictions of this class of criminals in many years.

23 Per Cent Gain in Convictions.

"In the trial of criminal cases the percentage of convictions has increased 23 per cent. That these results have been accomplished without resort to improper judicial tactics that have been condemned by the Supreme court is evidenced by the fact that 72 per cent of the convictions have been affirmed—a much more favorable percentage than for many years past.

"In the tremendous investigation and prosecution of individuals involved in the sanitary district case, carried on over a long period of time under the able leadership of my first assistant, John E. Northup, four of those unfaithful public officials were convicted.

"Closing of numerous banks has placed upon my office unprecedented burdens which are being met with a thorough investigation by a special staff. Four dishonest bankers have already been convicted. Other indictments are pending and will be vigorously prosecuted as speedily as the conditions of the court calendar will permit.

The Bond Evil Corrected.

"The bond evil about which there was so much complaint in former administrations has ceased to be a problem in the Criminal court today. A bond now taken there is more than a scrap of paper, and the crooked bondsmen and the fake security are no longer aids to the organized gangster and crook in the Criminal court.

"In three years my office has collected more than $9,000,000 from personal property tax dodgers, an amount in excess of what my predecessors collected in eight years. We have also caused the return during these three years to victims of swindlers selling fraudulent stocks and securities in excess of $9,300,000 without the beating of drums or blowing of trumpets.

Points to Speedier Trials.

"More progress tending to speedy, prompt and efficient justice in criminal cases has been made during these three years under the most trying conditions than in a half century previous. Cases are now being tried in the Criminal court within a few weeks, where formerly they took months and years to reach."

Upwards of 100,000 persons have signed petitions requesting that he be a candidate for reëlection, Mr. Swanson declared. Adding that he knows people are interested in results rather than promises he concluded his statement with the following:

"I feel confident that the overwhelming majority of voters will approve this standard. I submit my candidacy with confidence, believing that the people want service, not words, and pledge myself, if renominated and reelected, to continue my honest and vigorous efforts to lessen crime, punish criminals and aid in bringing respect for law and order to this community."

Igoe Out for Governor.

Michael L. Igoe, Democratic national committeeman, minority leader in the house of representatives at Springfield, introduced himself to the voters as a candidate for the nomination for governor yesterday in a radio talk. He said his candidacy originated at a dinner held in Springfield last June when 68 out of 72 Democratic members of the house requested him to seek the office of governor.

"My long years of service as a legislator at Springfield, I believe, warrant the statement that I am thoroughly familiar with the methods of state government and with the operation and management of the various departments which go to make it up," Mr. Igoe said. "That service has also enabled me to become conversant with the constantly recurring problems which, from time to time, have arisen in every county in this state.

Cites His Assembly Record.

"I further believe that it will be conceded that I am cognizant of the problems that affect my own county and city. My acts as a member of the general assembly are a matter of public record and are subject to the scrutiny of the public. In casting my vote for or against any measure, I was always guided by what I thought was for the best interest of the people of the state."

Sheriff William D. Meyering is to manage his campaign, Igoe announced. He will open headquarters at the Hotel La Salle today.

The Democratic organization will meet tomorrow morning to discuss further the personnel of its state ticket on which a local candidate, in all probability Probate Judge Henry Horner will be pitted against Igoe.

STATE TO ASK QUICK TRIAL OF FOUR OTHER CANAL DEFENDANTS

The sanitary district graft conspiracy case did not end with the imposition Friday of prison sentences on T. J. Crowe and Frank J. Link, former trustees, and jail terms on John T. Miller and Martin Edelstein, former employés of the board. John E. Northup, first assistant state's attorney, and his aids expect to seek early trials this week for four other defendants in the case, and also must defend themselves Wednesday against charges of contempt of court.

The contempt charges grow out of the inquiry by Judge Philip L. Sullivan in the Criminal court into the custody of Timothy L. Connolly, fugitive ex-purchasing agent for the sanitary board, who was captured in California while the main trial was in progress. Mr. Northup must answer for snapping his fingers in Judge Sullivan's face during the Connolly inquiry.

Connolly was indicted with Crowe and the other defendants. He was also indicted on charges of bribery and larceny after his capture and refusal to turn state's evidence. His case may also be disposed of this week.

A woman employé and two former employés of the board were indicted in December, shortly before the main trial opened, when they refused to give the testimony which the prosecution sought of them against Crowe and his associates. They are Crowe's son-in-law, Donald R. Joyce, and Miss Agnes Ellen Callahan, chief stenographer of the district, charged with forgery, and Eugene Byrne, charged with perjury.

FATHER SAVED FROM SUICIDE BY HIS SON, 14

George Sloan, 50 years old, 414 Augusta street, Oak Park, a commission merchant, tried to commit suicide yesterday by inhaling the exhaust fumes from his automobile in the garage at the rear of his home. He was saved by his son, George Jr., 14 years old.

The boy, worried over his father's absence from the house, went to the garage, found him kneeling at the rear of the car and dragged him out. An inhalator squad of the Oak Park fire department revived Sloan and took him to the West Suburban hospital where it was said he will recover.

According to the police, Sloan had threatened to end his life after he had lost his savings in a bank failure. Two weeks ago, the police said, he wrote a note to his wife, Margaret, telling her to collect his insurance. His place of business is at 143 South Water market.

GLENN TO FIGHT PATERNALISTIC BUREAU SYSTEM

Attacks Rule of Parasite Jobholders.

individual hobbies and projects for increasing and extending the federal activities and expenditures and insist instead upon their limitation, restriction and in many instances upon their abandonment; if instead of threatening their representatives for not advocating increases in particular items in the appropriation bills they will advise them that it is their duty in this emergency, this national and international crisis, to act and vote as the representatives of our country, with the high intent and purpose to keep America sound and solvent."

Turning the mass of government reports and statistics of expenditure upon which he was at work, Senator Glenn cited the increased per capita cost of the federal government which was $7.89 in 1911 and $34.01 in 1931, a 450 per cent boost.

"The federal government has not been alone in its practices," the senator hastened to add. "The state governments expended in 1928 the sum of 319 million dollars more than their receipts, and in the same year the local governments spent two billion one hundred seventy-two million dollars more than their income. Sales of bonds, etc., provided the balance above income.

Opposition to Bureau Cuts.

"Is more data necessary to demonstrate that a total reversal of the federal expansion in its functions and activities must come? Yet every movement in that direction meets determined, well organized and, sad to say, almost invariably, effective opposition.

"The great growth of unnecessary federal expenditures has been graphically illustrated by reference to the home economics bureau which started with an appropriation of $10,000 in 1893 and cost the taxpayers $247,000 this year. It could all have been saved.

"The federal trade commission will cost us $1,731,766 this year, adding that much to the treasury deficit. Many of its activities can properly be classed as governmental interference in private business. The government would function as well if the commission were abolished.

"Do you favor reduction of federal government pay?" the senator was asked.

"We are all most reluctant to see wage and salary reductions come," Mr. Glenn replied, "but when those in private employment are taking reductions in their wages and salaries, when the federal treasury is running behind hundreds of millions of dollars annually there seems to be no sound reason justifying the position that all federal employés should be immune from the effects of the changed conditions."

JUDGE IS URGED TO DESTROY ALL SEIZED PISTOLS

Should guns confiscated from criminals be put to some useful purpose instead of being destroyed? The answer is an emphatic "no," according to Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director of the Chicago Crime commission.

The question was raised in a letter written to Col. Chamberlin by Municipal Judge Edward B. Casey, in which the judge said an athletic director of a Chicago high school had asked him for a confiscated gun of small caliber to use in firing starting signals in athletic contests. The judge said the gun was one of a number he had taken from criminals while sitting in police courts. Such guns, under the rules, are destroyed by the police.

"I feel that since the gun can be put to a useful purpose, perhaps it should not be destroyed," wrote the judge.

"It would be unfortunate not to destroy a gun which has been recorded as having been destroyed," replied Chamberlin, who pointed out that turning the weapon over to the athletic director would be a bad precedent, even if there were absolute assurance that it would never again be used for an unlawful purpose.

Col. Chamberlin then pointed out that there could be no such absolute assurance. The weapon might be stolen from the director, he said, and thus get into the hands of a robber who would use it in killing a man in a holdup. A disclosure in the investigation of a murder that the weapon had been recorded as destroyed, he said, would carry an unsavory reflection against all those instrumental in having the pistol saved.

SEEKS TO BOOST MILEAGE BUDGET OF U. S. SENATORS

Bingham Resolution Would Mean $20,000 Increase

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7.—[Special.]—Another little item of a few thousand dollars will go into the budget and come out of the taxpayers' pockets should a resolution proposed by Senator Hiram Bingham [Rep., Conn.] and pending in the senate audit and control committee receive approval.

SENATOR BINGHAM.
[Fotograms.]

It would be a matter of only $20,000 or so, but the Bingham resolution is calculated to set senators' secretaries jogging about the country on "official business." For it would authorize these $3,900 or $2,400 a year employés to receive mileage at the rate of 8 cents a mile for one round trip between Washington and senators' legal residences. "In the course of official duties" is put in as an excuse for the journey.

Applies to Two Sessions.

These contemplated secretarial jauntings would not be as luxurious as those of the senators themselves, for the senators receive 20 cents a mile for one round trip each session. This year's appropriation for mileage for senators is $50,000. On the other hand, the Bingham resolution carries a privilege that even senators don't enjoy. Senators' mileage applies only to the two regular sessions of each congress, but the Bingham resolution would count special sessions as well.

When senators travel in real style, of course, is when they are on a junket of investigation. Whether they investigate when they get there is sometimes another matter, one rather noted instance of this being a trip a year ago last Christmas, to inspect the everglades of Florida to see whether they were fit to be made a national park. Even the pleasant accommodations on board a chartered boat could not tempt some of the senators away from the even more pleasant accommodations to be found at the winter resorts on the Florida seaboard.

Must Use Drawing Room.

Senators on an investigation when their way is being paid out of the senate contingent fund have been known to find that nothing but a drawing room will befit their dignity. And since a drawing room requires two tickets anyway it has been found that a wife could go along without any damage to a senatorial conscience.

This practice has not found favor with more particular senators any more than has the habit of putting a wife or daughter on the pay roll—but not in the office—to draw some of the $1,205,500 which will go this year for the salaries of senatorial secretaries, clerks, and messengers.

"Suffered for many years from indigestion. I could not eat any acid foods or fruits. I denied myself of almost everything," says Mrs. W. W. Odiorne, Portsmouth, N. H. "Now I eat anything and if I think it will not agree with me, I just take ACIDINE. ACIDINE is wonderful."

Feel Old at 40?

Disturbed Sleep, Backache, Stiffness, Loss of Energy, Often Due to Kidney Acidity.

There are few things that sap your energy more, and make you look and feel years older, than functional kidney inactivity and excess acidity. These are also often the cause of other troublesome and worrisome complaints such as miserable Backache, Disturbed Sleep, Nervousness, Lumbago, Neuralgia, Sore Joints, Circles Under Eyes, Headaches, Muddy Complexion, Smarting, and Irritation.

To combat these conditions, when due to functional kidney inactivity, you really need two different kinds of medicine. First, you need a medicine to act as a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys, to help them in their functions of filtering and purifying the blood, thus reducing acidity. Second, you need another medicine to soothe and heal irritation and give nature a chance.

These two special kinds of medicine, in one package, known as Cystex, now may be had from your druggist under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. They are in tasteless tablet form, easy to take, and pleasant to young or old, yet work so fast they start circulating through the system in 11 minutes. Sufferers say they begin to feel marked improvement in 24 hours.

Your own druggist — the man you know is reliable—can tell you that these are established facts, and that Cystex (pronounced Siss-tex) is a splendid medicine, containing purest ingredients, which have proved a blessing to many of his customers.

This much is certain: If Cystex makes you feel years younger and stronger by combating these functional conditions, the small cost of 75c is a trifle, but if not completely satisfied, merely return the empty package and get your money back. Why suffer from delay and neglect? The guarantee protects you. Get Cystex from your druggist today.

ORDERS MAILED IN DRIVE TO GET 1,000,000 JOBS

Employers Will Be Given Service Stars.

New York, Feb. 7.—[Special.]—Last minute detailed instruction for the start of the national united campaign for business recovery were forwarded today to 10,800 American Legion posts and 30,000 local unions from the central headquarters of the campaign in the Hotel Biltmore here.

H. L. STEVENS JR. [Harris & Ewing.]

Sponsored by the American Legion, the American Federation of Labor, the Association of National Advertisers and the Legion auxiliary, the campaign has for its object finding jobs for 1,000,000 unemployed as a step toward conquering the depression and bring about the return of prosperity. In addition to the four organizations backing the drive, the Boy Scouts of America have volunteered coöperation and Scouts will be on duty throughout the country for messenger work and for general assistance in many other capacities.

Called Biggest of Kind.

The campaign is described as the greatest mass drive ever undertaken in a novel experiment to stimulate the life of a country in time of crisis.

The final "battle orders" for "zero hour," at 8 o'clock Monday morning, Feb. 15, were mailed to Legion post commanders and trade union presidents. Definite instructions were included and a national system of daily reporting of results by wire was set up. Special telegraph facilities are being installed to receive these reports.

The orders include announcement of the preparation of service stars, awarded where men are employed, as service stars were awarded during the world war. Supplies of these will be sent to local committees in 7,000 cities. The first awards will be made as soon as employment is found for men on the first day of the campaign. It is expected there will be rivalry for the earning of the first service star in each community. One million employers will be given an opportunity to earn this mark of achievement.

Canvass All Employers.

The orders direct that every community of the 7,000 organized be divided into districts of industrial units so that every employer of labor will be reached. It is also ordered that a final post meeting be held in every city before Feb. 12 for final instructions and rehearsal.

In every district there will be a team headed by a captain or lieutenant. The workers will be chosen not only from the Legionnaires but from all other organizations and groups making up the local committees. Every industry and business, large and small, every store and shop, office and factory will be canvassed.

The instruction to Legion post commanders were signed by Henry L. Stevens Jr., national commander.

Plea Made to Unions.

A special plea for coöperation with the Legion to the presidents of 30,000 local unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor was made by Matthew Woll, vice president of the federation, representing that organization in the drive.

The campaign received the indorsement of President Hoover when Commander Stevens conferred with him in Washington last week and promised to combine the drive for jobs with a plea in support of the President's appeal to the people against hoarding.

American Teacher in Syrian Town Disappears

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

JERUSALEM, Feb. 7.—Miss Enardt, an American teacher of the Protestant college at Latakia, Syria, has been missing for a week. It is thought that possibly she has been kidnaped by a Moslem fanatic trying to seek revenge for her missionary activities. She is 70 years old and has lived in Latakia for 40 years. The American consul general at Beirut has ordered a special inquiry and has offered $1,000 reward.

COOK COUNTY LEGION IS READY TO JOIN IN EMPLOYMENT DRIVE

Paul G. Armstrong, commander of the Cook county council of the American Legion, said last night that the local posts were ready to carry out the national organization's employment plan and would get to work on it as soon as the instructions are received.

"A committee of nine has been appointed," he said, "headed by E. K. Smith, and the general direction of the work will be in its hands.

"Cook county posts have individually and collectively for many months been doing what they could to relieve the distress and to help men to jobs. We have started a waste paper saving campaign and although we cannot tell just yet what will be the outcome we are hopeful that it will be a success. A number of posts have solicited part time employment for men out or regular employment and have found by a regular canvass of their territories that many such jobs are available. This is particularly true in the Cook county suburban towns."

They could assign no motive for the double shooting.

BLIZZARD FORCES 3 PLANES DOWN IN SYRIAN DESERT

JERUSALEM, Feb. 7.—(AP)—The rare spectacle of a heavy fall of snow in Jerusalem caused fears today for the safety of passengers of three royal air force planes believed to have made forced landings in the Syrian desert during the storm.

The planes were flying from Bagdad to Cairo in the company of nine other machines, all of which were reported to have landed safely.

Snow is most unusual in Jerusalem and its presence caused great interest among the inhabitants here.

EX-DICTATOR OF PERU BURIED AS CARNIVAL RULES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LIMA, Peru, Feb. 7.—In striking contrast to the thousands of gayly dressed merrymakers thronging Lima's streets and plazas during a three-day carnival celebration which commenced last night, a somberly clad crowd of 3,000 mourners assembled in the suburb Bellavista at 10 a. m. today to attend the funeral services of ex-President Augusto B. Leguia.

Religious rites attending the commitment of Leguia's remains to Baquijano cemetery, where they were placed in one of the walled niches common to Latin-American cemeteries, were of the simplest character. Official intervention in the ceremony was limited to detailing a small force of police to guard the hospital where he died and the road to the cemetery.

No official honors were accorded the ex-president who died while under prison sentence. The newspaper La Cronica which published the erroneous report that the government had offered to render the honors due an ex-president has been fined 5,000 soles ($1,800) under provisions of the so-called emergency law recently passed by the assembly.

Air Fleet Bombs Island; Warship "Torpedoed."

HONOLULU, Feb. 7.—(AP)—A vast fighting force of the air rose out of the horizon at dawn today, delivered a smashing attack on the defenders of the island of Oahu and then wheeled around and disappeared over the bend of the sea toward its floating base in the Pacific.

It was the first blow toward recapture of the Hawaiian islands for the United States. Sixty miles out at sea, 144 airplanes took off from the decks of the carriers and shot through the skies toward the dark hills of Oahu.

Withholding the blows of destruction from Honolulu—the skyhawks circled over the land air bases and rained down bombs while the defense, with its inferior air force, watched and waited.

"Fire" at Air Fleet.

The black defenders have fewer than half as many planes as the blue fleet under the war game rules and the commanders feel it would have been foolhardy to take the battle into the air. Instead, anti-aircraft guns formed the mouthpiece of the defense. Shrapnel was hurled into the sky against the invaders.

Strategy counted heavily in the first engagement of the war game, which tests the adequacy of the United States defenses against an enemy here. Though the attacking planes scattered bombs at various points on the island they did little damage except to put one battery of field artillery technically out of commission 24 hours.

The defending forces had outguessed them in advance. Swooping low over Luke Wheeler air field, the enemy planes bombed the aircraft grounded there, but the black defenders had anticipated the attack and the planes bombed were only dummies. The attackers also bombed a chemical warfare depot, but the defenders had removed the gas and no harm was done there either.

Subs Attack Saratoga.

Meanwhile submarines of the naval forces aiding in the defense attacked the huge airplane carrier, Saratoga, firing four torpedoes and making one direct hit which technically accounted for 19 per cent of its planes.

Scouting planes that roamed the skies all night spotted the dark shape of the Saratoga some 60 miles northeast of Oahu at 1 a. m. protected by four destroyers. Pilots believed its sister ship, the Lexington, to be near by. Defense commanders said the air attacks might continue several days.

While the maneuvers are only a game, they were severely realistic today in face of dangerous flying weather, low ceiling and strong winds. At army headquarters, which buzzed with activity, admiration was expressed for the skill and nerve of the navy flyers.

CRUISER MILWAUKEE HAS ENGINE TROUBLE; VOYAGE IS CANCELED

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 7.—[Special.]—Her engines crippled, the U. S. S. Milwaukee, attached to the cruiser division of the scouting force, is on its way to Boston for repairs instead of sailing with other vessels of the scouting force to join the navy's battle fleet in the Pacific. The Milwaukee is proceeding under her own power, but the engine trouble was serious enough to halt plans to have it join the battle fleet for maneuvers. It stopped in Hampton Roads for a short time on the way to Boston.

The cruiser Memphis, which had been scheduled to leave Boston on Feb. 14, now is on its way to Panama and the west coast to joint the battle fleet, more than 10 days ahead of its original schedule. The cruiser Chicago, which has been undergoing repairs at the navy yard here, sailed for the west coast today, and the Mablehead, now in New York, will leave to joint the battle fleet on Feb. 14. The supply ship Bridge sailed for Guantanamo, Cuba, today with a load of provisions for the scouting force. It may proceed to the west coast.

SHIP FIGHTS ICE TO REACH DISEASE SWEPT ISLAND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TALLINN, Estonia, Feb. 7.—The Estonian ice breaker Juri Vilnis today began to batter a passage across the gulf of Riga to the island of Runo where an epidemic of diphtheria has developed among the 285 Swedish inhabitants.

The Juri Vilnis is carring a doctor, nurses, and vaccine, and expects to arrive Monday.

The news of the epidemic was brought to the mainland from Runo by seal hunters, who said the island has no doctor or drugs with which to fight the disease.

COL. ROOSEVELT SAILS FOR NEW POST AT MANILA

VICTORIA, B. C., Feb. 7.—(AP)—Col. Theodore Roosevelt was on the Pacific today, bound for the war troubled orient and his new post at Manila as governor general of the Philippines. He made a brief visit here last night while his liner, the President Taft, was in port.

In an address to officials who welcomed him, the colonel pronounced Canadians he knew to be "stout men in a pinch."

A suit of the city to make special assessments against nearby property for the construction of the proposed State street subway will begin this morning before Judge Ross C. Hall. The judge informed attorneys for the city and protesting property owners who contend that the improvement should be made by bond issue, that he wanted all evidence and arguments completed by June. On Friday taking of evidence in a suit for condemnation of property for the State street widening was completed before Judge Hall, but he withheld his decision, as attorneys for both sides desired to argue this case in connection with the subway matter. A large model of the subway will be among the exhibits shown today.

Aldous Huxley Pokes Fun at Model T World

With Bottle Bred Robots That People It.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Brave New World," by Aldous Huxley. [Doubleday-Doran.] Published Feb. 4.

THE scene of Aldous Huxley's latest novel is the brave new world of some indeterminate future time when London has become the center of a vast model T Utopia. The symbol T has been achieved by a decapitation of the upper part of the cross. The Lord has been typographically changed to Ford and mass production and standardization have achieved perfection. Disease of body and mind have been eliminated. The pleasant vices have been retained, but none of the virtues as man now sees them. Life has achieved the pinnacle of mechanized ease and comfort. Every one is always happy.

ALDOUS HUXLEY.

You can imagine what a time any one like Aldous Huxley, with that sharp, bitter pen of his and that keen, satiric mind, would have with an idea like that! He simply cavorts through the pages. The book opens with a complete description of the processes by which human beings are scientifically manufactured, physically and mentally conditioned for their positions in life. There is no nonsense about all men being free and equal in Mr. Huxley's satiric Utopia. They are of five layers of economic and mental society, alpha, beta, gamma, delta, and epsilon.

Each group is conditioned physically, and by a sleep teaching or hypnopædia, to a perfect equipment for its station. The physical conditioning goes on in the bottles before they are "decanted," when they are immunized to all disease, their height, weight and coloring are determined, and their physical adaptability toward whatever work they are destined to do made certain. "In the bottle" they are all made perfect. For the lower orders there is a special "budding" process used so that identical twins to the number of ninety-six are produced perfectly equipped to do identical work on ninety-six identical machines.

But machines are not all of life in this "brave new world"; they are the means, not an end. New human beings are constantly being made to keep the machines going, and while the chief end of man is to "glorify Ford and to enjoy him forever," man has himself become such a machine that he is eternally happy.

Happiness is achieved by the simple process of removing from life any possible cause of emotional upheaval. There are no homes, no marriages, no love, and whenever any one gets even vaguely upset about anything there is a "soma" tablet to send him on a vacation to eternity or—in milder doses—to make him perfectly happy.

On the other hand, there is, from infancy, a great deal of erotic play between the sexes, all thoroughly cleansed of emotional consequences. One of the most obscene words in the language is "mother," and any decent young person in the London of the model T world blushes at the mention of a world "full of mothers, therefore of every kind of perversion from Sadism to chastity."

Into such a scene a savage is injected—a boy actually born [accidentally] of a model T mother and father and brought up on an Indian reservation in New Mexico. The latter half of the book deals with the reactions to the new "civilization" of such a youth, who has read only Shakespeare and knows nothing about how immoral and obscene it is to think with one's mind.

Mr. Huxley's satire is slashing and wicked, but it is extremely amusing. He debunks, with at times guffawingly funny means, the dream of a brave new world logically resulting from standardization and mechanization. To the thoughtful "Brave New World" is almost a debauch of humor. Everything about that world is so brilliantly pieced together by the author, and in that piecing it is so obvious that he had a gorgeous time.

Not one of the present day social-called sentiments survives the logical progress of mankind toward "happiness."

A couple of years ago some one in London told me that Aldous Huxley always had written about people he knew in his books, and having taken himself to the fastnesses of Italy [and later to a remote spot in France] he was done for, because he wouldn't find any one there to write about. Whether that was true or only a bit of the customary "pleasantry" among authors, the fastnesses have provided him with characters vastly amusing and situations that make stitches in sober sides. "Brave New World" is Swiftian, Rabelaisian social satire, which may bore some, but which will give to others, as it obviously gave to its author in its writing, gorgeous fun.

Mrs. Emil L. Alson, president, and Mrs. Louis Pitzele, general chairman, said they hope to realize enough from the charity event to complete purchase of the latest scientific device, a Drinker respiration or iron lung machine, as it is commonly called. Negotiations for the purchase of the respiration machine have already been entered into.

Good morning!

"Tomorrow and Tomorrow" has style. It possesses the pervasive beauty of distinction.

The subject—study of a woman who loves and is loved by two men of totally different viewpoints, ambitions personalities, and has a child by the one who understands her needs, but is not her husband—is presented with delicacy. Philip Barry, the playwright who wrote "Tomorrow and Tomorrow," and "Holiday," also successfully screened, is a keen analyst. He knows a lot about the delicate machinery of the human brain and those inner workings of what we call soul, which cause such unexpected uprisings in behavior.

I did not see the play from which the photoplay has been adapted, but understand that the picture follows it closely save in one particular. The English explorer into the fastnesses of the subconscious becomes, in the film, a Viennese pyschiatrist. This change, I am told, in no way affects the outcome.

The great Paul Lukas as Dr. Faber, famous foreign specialist and lecturer, endows the screen with another of his priceless characterizations. Always this man Lukas rings true. His sense of fitness never deserts him because he was born with it. That is a blessing with cannot be acquired. His sure touch and sensitive vibration to the demands of a rôle are unfailing.

And the late Robert Ames does such fine work as the husband! The best performance I have ever seen him give. It is gratifying, now that his sunny smile is gone and his voice stilled forever, to be able to pay him honest tribute.

Ruth Chatterton irritated me less in this picture than she usually does. In scenes toward the end she seemed actually to forget herself and become the woman she was portraying. She hangs on to that laboriously studied accent and continues to roll a round, cogitative and cagy eye; but her portrayal of Eve Redman is smooth and artistic. It will, without doubt, absolutely delight the many who are more capable than myself of appreciating Miss Chatterton.

I didn't care for Harold Minjir as Dr. Faber's secretary, Gillespie. Here was a rôle tailored for either Charles Ruggles or Roland Young. The lines, though relatively unimportant, would have proved a piquant relish as uttered by either of the two mentioned. Mr. Minjir only succeeds in seeming fresh to the verge of impudence.

"Tomorrow and Tomorrow" is beautifully staged and photographed and has been directed with ability and excellent taste. The dialogue—Mr. Barry's own—is like a spring of sparkling wate. to the movie pilgrim who, of necessity, travels through such weary wastes of conversational piffle.

See you tomorrow!

Heart Association Cites Greater Need of Funds for Work

Vital statistics of 1931, which reveal that the toll from heart disease increased in the United States over the rate for 1930, were cited yesterday by workers for the Chicago Heart association as the organization entered its final week of the sale of heart stamps. Mrs. Gertrude Howe Britton, executive secretary, emphasized the importance of the effort to bring the association's fund to its $15,000 goal by St. Valentine's day, to save the city's 60,000 heart sufferers from further hardships.

"In the first nine months of 1930," read a statement issued, "heart disease deaths were 131 out of the 796 deaths in every 100,000 of white people, and 242.8 out of 1,460.6 deaths in every 100,000 of colored people in the country. But 1930 was a good year, showing low death rates from all causes, while 1931, with the full effects of the economic depression showing themselves, had a higher death rate, especially in heart disease. Unless provision is made for at least normal care and prevention, the toll will be appalling this year and in years to come."

Ruth Page Adds to Her Honors in Art of Dance

She Uses Good Music and Respects It.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Ruth Page's dance program at the Goodman theater yesterday plainly classified as one of the major events of a season that is bringing out an unusual amount of dancing. Known for seasons past as a dancer of the first order herself, she made herself equally notable yesterday as the choreographer of the program in which she had the assistance of Blake Scott and her own dance group.

She starts as a dancer by being a musician. She uses better music than anyone else in her profession, and she treats it with respect, neither distorting it nor making awkward cuts. Upon it she puts the pattern of her dances, sometimes in the old ballet form, like the pretty little "Cinderella" by Marcel Delannoy which she brought out at Ravinia last summer, sometimes fantistic, like Ravel's Waltz, sometimes stylized, generally effective, and sometimes with a whirling flurry of excitement.

Three pieces by Ravel were new in dance form. There was the above mentioned Waltz, depicting aristocracy struggling with proletariat and finally overcome by it—a good theme, one would say, for latter day Russia—the "Pavane for a Dead Infanta" which depicted nothing but vividly expressed the mood of the music, and finally the well known Bolero.

Here color played an important part. A group of girls was seated in a semicircle, all in black with black masks, Mr. Scott, a gray gipsy in the center, all tapping out the rhythm of the piece with their heels. By ones, two and three they got up, danced and were seated again. Finally Miss Page entered, a spot of contrasting color, clad in white with red slippers and long red gloves. The dance built itself up, wave upon wave of motion, beautfully designed and beautifully danced until the final climax. There was one way that the climax could have been heightened, which was to have constantly brightened the tempo every time the perky little tune returned, but apart from that it was one of the best dances for a group that these eyes have rested upon in a number of seasons.

The music was arranged for two pianos and played by Pauline Pettibone and Ardath Janes. Incidentally it was an excellent way to present dance music of this sort. The scenery and costumes were by Nicolas Remisoff, who is as much of an expert in this line as Miss Page is in hers.

And others.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

ELMER RICE, who won the Pulitzer prize a few years ago with his "Street Scene," submits at the Selwyn theater another cross section of city life which he might have called "Office Scene." However, he rightly chose to avoid comparison with his prize winner, which was a play of outstanding merit in the field of realism. "Counselor at Law" is his title; to depict the petty routine of a lawyer's office is his purpose; and a lively limb of the law, who rose from rags to riches and is always kind to the downtrodden, is his hero.

This piece is a parade of twenty-eight characters of the sort that Mr. Rice's observant eye records neatly, but which require, for vivid interpretation, typecasting more adroit than the present company was blessed with. They come and go, in and out of the waiting room and inner sanctum of the firm of Simon and Tedesco, New York barristers representing Jewish and Italian contributions to the learned profession. They are, all but one, satellites revolving unimportantly around a central star, who is George Simon, the go-getting head of the office—a good fellow who wins all of his cases and seems like a superman until the grievance committee of the bar association camps on his trail.

"Counselor at Law" gives its audience the biography of Mr. Simon with ample details. Among other things it shows us that:

He nibbles chocolate candy in his swanky modernistic office.

He talks to a United States senator over the telephone, and politely snubs him, softening the rebuke by inviting him to lunch.

He has married a hoity-toity Gentile divorcée of the Westchester county aristocracy, and he somewhat blindly adores her.

He is adored, in turn, by his pretty private secretary, but pays no attention to her melting glances. Moreover, he shies off in startled virtue when a lady murderess whom he has saved from prison or worse clasps him in a vampire's embrace.

He is an ideal son to his old mother, and is always ready to help the poor folk of the slum neighborhood in which he was bred. But to his brother, who is the family disgrace, he talks in a style that probably provoked Cain to the original fratricide.

He lends $2,000 to a "society man" who is dangling around his wife.

He gets a poor woman's communist son out of jail, and is called "a capitalistic parasite" and other harsh terms for his reward.

Chiefly, however, he worries about what a high-hatted puritan named Francis Clark Baird, of the bar association's grievance committee, is going to do to him. Whenever Counselor Simon thinks of Mr. Baird, whom he calls "a Yankee," he becomes fidgety and pathetic. In conflict with Mr. Baird the counselor loses his well known nerve, and also his ability to think fast.

Years ago he had framed an alibi in order to prevent a minor sneak thief [a good boy at heart, of course] from receiving a life sentence. That was his only lapse of professional ethics, and its motives, he thinks, were laudable. He is not ashamed of the trick, for which he had a humanitarian excuse. But in the middle of Mr. Rice's chronicle this bit of suborned perjury arises to daunt the debonair counselor and to cause him to perspire freely.

Well, he wriggles out of the trap, and at the end is ready to continue his brilliant progress as a brisk American of immigrant antecedents who prospered and became a power in the land. I could not remain until the triumphant ending to discover whether or not Frances Scott Baird, the sleuth hound of the bar association, was really the father of Mrs. Dewitt Wilmer's illegitimate child; or whether Counselor Simon decided to trade his annoying wife for his charming secretary. But these things should have come to pass if Mr. Rice decided to tie up the ends of his somewhat unbuttoned plot.

Otto Kruger appears as the counselor—a rôle which is still being acted in New York by Paul Muni. The company, specially organized for a Chicago run, was not in the pink of performance last night; therefore remarks upon the play's interpretation may be reserved.

OUR SECRET AMBITION

Slump Strikes Hard Blow at Servant Class

Establishments Reduce Their Staffs.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

A KING without his crown may still be regal, but a butler minus his shirt front is just an ordinary every day specimen of the "genus homo." Imagine my embarrassment the other day when I inquired the name of Watkins, who had frequently ushered me across one of society's door mats. The reason for the "faux pas"—his complete transformation in a gray sack suit and black fedora.

Watkins [a fictitious name] was job hunting.

"This confounded depression. It hits everybody," he said, with a delightful English accent. "They let us all go—Bush the chauffeur, Linda and Marie, the chambermaid and the nurse, and me. Of course, they have to eat, so they retained Hulda."

This is one example. There are dozens more of the way Chicago's large and important households have had to "cut down" as the result of tightened purse strings. As a visiting economist remarked recently, "When business is hit, nothing reflects conditions more quickly than the home?"

But as every cloud has its silver lining [remember the old saying] so this picture has its happier side. If hard times have accomplished nothing else, they are demonstrating that the American woman is jealous of her reputation for being clever and versatile. When she once directed a "menage" with ten servants, she has discovered that the same house can be run with five, or again if a cook, a kitchen maid, a chambermaid, a parlor maid, a butler, and a houseman were formerly required, she has thrown in her own abilities and reduced the force to three. There are also plenty of instances in our town where socially prominent families, used to at least three servants, are getting along with one.

Just the other day a well known matron on Astor street answered her own bell wearing an apron. "You see, it is Thursday afternoon," she cheerfully explained, "and my one maid is out." The amazing fact is that she has given her efforts without consideration to charities this winter, reduced her household staff, and at the same time maintained all of the standards of polite living.

The manager of any one of the high class agencies in the city will tell you, in this connection, that the majority of servants accustomed to doing only parlor or chamber work are learning other household duties to fill just such positions. The parlor maid is rehearsing her table etiquette and the houseman is learning how to "buttle" and drive the family motor.

Seldom nowadays do you hear a servant complain because a guest on departure hasn't practiced the ancient custom of crossing his palm with silver or of a valet threatening to leave unless his employer keeps him in town at night instead of at his country home. Again there are comparatively few servants idle on a salary a third of the year because their master keeps a town apartment, a Lake Forest house, and a Palm Beach residence completely staffed the year around.

Today domestics are increasing the number of their duties, accepting less in wages, and doing it willingly—at least in most cases. There is the German couple attached to a Lake Shore drive house that does everything from the serving to the laundry. Last week the joint salary suffered a decrease from $180 to $100 a month.

And "couples," by the way, are the most popular form of employment now, the head of a large agency that supplies many of our "gold coast" homes told me yesterday. Hiring a man and his wife came into vogue with the movement from great establishments to apartments and now money scarcity has added to its popularity. The man does all of the serving, chauffeuring and gardening while his wife cooks and superintends the house.

The butler has, perhaps, suffered as much of a decline in numbers as any household servant and this not alone because of depression. Prohibition, blamed for things numerous and varied, justly and unjustly, is at least an accessory unto the fact that may result in the complete extinction of the ancient and honorable offices of butler. The antiquity of the position is proved by the word itself taken from the Latin "buticula," a little bottle, through the French "bouteilier," meaning bottler. But when there are no bottles?—— (The descerning reader has already correlated prohibition, butler, extinction.)

Fairness demands that mention also be made of the exodus of the city's first families from houses to flats as another contributing cause to the numerical decline of the butler. Then, too, he is characteristic of formality and the American trend is increasingly informal.

Another group having difficulty these days in finding positions are the laundresses. Commercial laundries have supplanted the home washtub in countless instances, and in the finest establishments, where a laundress comes to care for fine linens and laces, four days' work is now crowded into two. In the last fortnight four servants, including a laundress, from a Chicago household that has supported 17 servants, applied for new positions at a city agency.

Nurses, who represent American girls in more cases than any other servant classification, have been dispensed with by more than one young matron. It is difficult for these same girls to enter other lines of household work, for Americans nine times out of ten lack references for such jobs. As a Swedish cook once remarked: "Yes—ma'am! Anybody with a good reference—just one is enough—can get a job."

Three-fourths of the household help in Chicago is of foreign extraction, you perhaps know. Among the cooks the Germans, Swedes, and Austrians are most in demand.

FOUNDATION FOR DAIRY RESEARCH IS ESTABLISHED

Chicago Dealers, Producers Form New Group.

BY PAUL POTTER.

The establishment of a research foundation on milk and dairy products, to be supported by the milk distributors and farmers marketing in the Chicago metropolitan area, was announced yesterday by Frank H. Kullman, vice president of the Bowman Dairy company, representing dealers, and W. C. McQueen, president of the Pure Milk association, representing 19,000 dairy farmers in three states.

Scientific research and promotional work on milk, cream, buttermilk, butter, and other dairy products will be conducted by the new organization, to be called the Milk Foundation of Chicago. Its offices in the Engineering building will be opened March 1. Mr. Kullman will be president and Mr. McQueen vice president.

Planned for Two Years.

Plans for the foundation have been developing in the local dairy industry for over two years. Beginning July 1, 1931, every dairy farmer began contributing 1 cent per hundred pounds [46½ quarts] of milk into an educational fund for this purpose, and dealers adopted a check off of similar amount.

During the winter about $25,000 from each of the two funds has been diverted to the emergency relief agencies to furnish milk for the city's unemployed. The unexpended balance plus the continued payments over the next year will be expended by the new foundation, in coöperation with the National Dairy council, the national industry's educational and research organization.

"Practically all the 150 milk dealers in Chicago are contributing to the support of the foundation," Mr. Kullman declared yesterday. "The expenses of the scientific and promotional work will be borne equally by the distributors and the farmers."

Will Have 18 Directors.

The organization will be governed by a board of 18 directors, nine producers and nine dealers. Carl Deysenroth, a graduate of the University of Wisconsin and for eight years in promotional work in Chicago, will be general manager. Mrs. Elsie Lord, former nutrition specialist of the Milk Council, Inc., will have charge of educational work.

Organizations of similar character are already established in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Boston, Baltimore, Detroit, Minneapolis, Cincinnati, and other large cities. The new foundation will take over any present research work of the Pure Milk association and the Milk council. The latter organization of Chicago milk dealers, of which M. O. Maughan is secretary, will become a trade association, it was said yesterday.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: The Invitation

ARMY FLYER KILLED IN FORCED LANDING AT CHANUTE FIELD

Chanute Field, Rantoul, Ill., Feb. 7.—[Special.]—Second Lieutenant Albert L. Alexander Jr. of the Chanute field air corps was killed last night when a plane which he was piloting crashed in forced landing. The body was greatly burned. Lloyd W. Bender, son of Capt. Walter Bender of the air corps, who was a passenger, received slight injuries. The cause of the accident has not been determined, the plane having been destroyed by fire which followed the crash. It was a Douglass BT-2 powered with a Pratt Whitney Wasp engine. Lieut. Alexander's father is a captain in the United States army, stationed at Camp Stotsenburg, Philippine islands. Disposition of the body awaits advice from him.

POLICEMAN DIES AS 20 OFFER TO PROVIDE BLOOD

Detective Sergeant Thomas Burke, confidential assistant to Chief of Detectives Schoemaker, died yesterday at Presbyterian hospital. He failed to rally from an operation performed five weeks ago.

SERGT. THOMAS BURKE.

Sergt. Burke's life was prolonged a few weeks ago when Sergeants Ray Crane and William Sweeney gave him some of their blood in a transfusion. Yesterday physicians thought another transfusion advisable and twenty of Sergt. Burke's mates at the detective bureau appeared at the hospital as volunteers. Sergt. Burke was too weak for the transfusion when they arrived, however.

He had worked with Chief Schoemaker for twelve years, and was formerly a partner of Lieut. William E. O'Connor, who later became chief of detectives.

Sergt. Burke was 49 years old, and had been a member of the police department nineteen years. His widow, Mrs. Arletta Burke, 9024 South Ada street, survives. There are no children.

N. L. PIOTROWSKI, A FORMER CITY ATTORNEY, DEAD

Nicholas L. Piotrowski, 68 years old, 190 East Chestnut street, president of the Great Lakes Insurance company and former city attorney, died Saturday afternoon in the Billings Memorial hospital after a short illness, it was learned yesterday. Mr. Piotrowski was a native of Poland, coming to America when he was 19 years old. He studied law at Valparaiso university and was admitted to the bar in Indiana in 1889. Later he was engaged as a professor of physics and chemistry at St. Thomas' seminary, St. Paul, Minn.

N. L. PIOTROWSKI. [Lavecchia photo.]

He came to Chicago in 1892 where he since practiced law. He served as assistant corporation counsel from 1897 to 1902, and as city attorney under the Harrison administration from 1911 to 1915. In recognition for his services for raising war time relief funds for Poland he was decorated with the Polonia Restituta, one of the highest honors within the gift of the Polish republic. Last summer he was appointed a member of the library board by Mayor Cermak.

Besides a number of Polish organizations, Mr. Piotrowski was a member of the Union League club. Surviving him are his widow, Mrs. Theresa Piotrowski; a daughter, Mrs. Eugene C. Lang, and four grandchildren. Funeral services will be held at the Church of the Immaculate Heart of Mary, 10:30 tomorrow morning, where requiem high mass will be celebrated. Burial will be in St. Adalbert cemetery.

Deaths of a Day

BISHOP HILL, Ill. — [Special.] — Paul L. Johnson, 70, hardware merchant for 41 years, dropped dead at his home.

MRS. A. H. FARNUM DIES; WIDOW OF GRAIN BROKER

Mrs. Albert H. Farnum, 82 years old, died last night in her apartment in the Lake Shore Drive hotel, 181 Lake Shore drive, after an illness of several months.

She was the former Lillian Sturgis Toombs of Boston, and the widow of Albert H. Farnum, prominent member of the Chicago Board of Trade, who died in 1906. The Farnums came to Chicago in 1886. Until recent years Mrs. Farnum was active in social circles.

Surviving her is a son, Henry W. Farnum, a partner in the brokerage firm of Farnum, Winter & Co., 120 West Adams street. His wife is the former Lillian Drake, sister of John B. and Tracy C. Drake. Funeral services for Mrs. A. H. Farnum will be announced today.

POLICE UPSET ELOPEMENT OF YOUNG COUPLE

They immediately called on Irwin's sister, Mrs. H. M. Steele, of 7605 Kingston avenue. Meanwhile Evelyn's stepmother in Fenton, suspecting the nature of her disappearance, notified authorities, and they in turn communicated with the Chicago police. They found Evelyn and Lawrence at the Steele home. She was taken to the juvenile home.

"The trouble is," complained Evelyn, "that my family isn't modern enough. We wouldn't have had to try to elope if they had let Lawrence call on me at home."

HIT-RUN DRIVER GIVES SELF UP AS VICTIM DIES

Four Fatalities Raise County Toll to 120.

A man about 70 years old was struck and fatally injured last night by an automobile at Roosevelt road and Paulina street. He was taken to the county hospital, where he gave his name as Harry Schaff. He then became unconscious and died soon afterward.

The car which caused his death was abandoned at the scene, the driver fleeing on foot. About two hours later Vincent Loguidice, 22 years old, 908 Wolfram street, went to the Marquette police and announced he wanted to surrender.

"I was the driver who hit the old man," he said. "It was an accident I couldn't help, but I lost my head and ran. As soon as I thought it over I knew the only thing to do was to give myself up." Loguidice was held.

Toll Increased to 120.

This death and three others yesterday increased the Cook county motor toll since Jan. 1 to 120. The other victims:

Earl C. Howe, 35 years old, 584 Bryant street, Elmhurst. Fatally hurt when the car he was driving crashed into a steel post of a viaduct in Harrison street near Kenton avenue. He died at the Frances Willard hospital.

Mrs. Carme Gottfried, 48 years old, 924 East 42d street. Died at the county hospital of injuries suffered on Jan. 2 when she was struck by a sedan driven by Winstrom Tagney, 1212 Lake Shore drive, at Division and State streets.

Unidentified man, about 45 years old. Found dead at 43d street and Ashland avenue, apparently after being struck by a driver who did not stop.

Legislator's Car Hits Student.

An automobile driven by Ralph Church, 300 Church street, Evanston, state representative from the Sixth district, struck and injured Norman Christianson, 19 years old, a Northwestern university student, at Sheridan road and Noyes street, Evanston, last night. After his hurts had been treated at the Evanston hospital Christianson was allowed to go to the Delta Tau Delta house, where he resides.

$250,000 BLAZE PERILS OTTAWA BUSINESS AREA

Ottawa, Ill., Feb. 7.—[Special.]—The business district of Ottawa was threatened early today by a fire which destroyed the Orpheum theater and greatly damaged the Peoples Trust and Savings bank building. The fire was discovered in the upper part of the large theater building, two hours after the show house had closed. Soon the structure was a raging furnace from the basement to the third floor.

The La Salle and Streator fire departments were called on to help fight the flames. The entire downtown district seemed threatened with destruction.

From the theater the blaze spread to the roof of the bank building next door, damaging offices and lodgerooms on the upper floors. The bank, which has been closed since October, and a Woolworth store, which adjoins it, were damaged greatly by smoke and water.

Late today the origin of the blaze had not been determined. The loss will run close to a quarter of a million dollars.

One La Salle fireman was overcome by smoke, but was revived.

Society Enjoys Gypsy Dancer at Arts Club

Throng Fills Every Spot of Recital Hall.

WHERE another person could have sat or stood in the Arts club last night during the dance recital of the Spanish gypsy, Vicente Escudero, and his assisting artists, Carmita and Carmela, we don't know, for every available bit of space was occupied by an interested onlooker. The audience overflowed from the large gallery into the hall and we'll venture to say there were many who did not get much of a view of the stage and nary a glimpse of the talented dancers' feet. But all heard the much discussed snapping of Escudero's finger nails, the accompaniment to one of his solo dances, and judging from the applause finger nail rhythm is an art that soon will be studied by some of our amateurs who delight in learning everything new under the sun.

Preceding the recital supper was served on the stage and in the large gallery, and then, while the guests had coffee in the lounge, the tables were taken away and chairs set up for the program. Every one voted it one of the most enjoyable affairs ever given at the Arts club, which has many successful entertainments to its credit during the seventeen years it has been a part of Chicago's social and artistic life.

Some of those at last night's party were Ruth Page, who had given a dance recital earlier in the day at the Goodman theater, and her husband, Thomas H. Fisher; Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, who had with her Mr. and Mrs. Philip Maher, Miss Marie Rozet, Augustus S. Peabody, Prince and Princess Michael Cantacuzene, and Edwin Krenn; Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Winterbotham, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Paepcke, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur B. Slade, Mrs. Ellen Root, Miss Katherine Daniels, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Scudder, Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Zabriskie of Aurora, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Otis McG. Howard, Mr. and Mrs. Robert McCormick Adams, Mr. and Mrs. George C. Venard, Mrs. Lobdell Atwater, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, the latter looking unusually stunning in a gown of black satin with a wide bertha of black velvet edged with ostrich feathers, the sort of a dress which the dressmakers and shops call a Sunday evening gown.

Almost every one there last night was wearing formal evening clothes; this is a continental fashion which has lately become quite usual in this country where some years ago no one "dressed" on Sunday nights.

Among others in the audience were Dr. and Mrs. Frederick Moorehead, Mrs. Freeman Hinckley, Mr. and Mrs. Shreve Badger, Miss Alice Roullier, Mrs. Otho F. Ball, Miss Elizabeth McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Sheriff, Miss Katharyne Linn, Mrs. Jacob Baur, Mr. and Mrs. Walter G. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Clarke Dean, Mrs. Edward A. Leight, and Mrs. William H. Hubbard and a small party of young people, including her granddaughters, Miss Alice Means of Boston and Miss Cynthia Cook of Geneva, and Miss Constance Hasler.

Society Hears Churchill Lecture.

Society spent a delightful and pleasant hour and a half yesterday afternoon listening to the Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill deliver—although that is almost too formal a word for the ingratiating, charming way in which Mr. Churchill spoke—an address on "The Pathway of the English Speaking Peoples" at Orchestra hall. It was the last of the Town Hall series of lectures. The large audience looked unusually smart. There were, almost as many men present as women, who by the way, had dressed up their dark winter clothes with a flower or two at the shoulder, giving winter costumes a gay, springtime touch. Some of those who listened to Mr. Churchill and appreciated his serious and his humorous utterances, were Samuel Insull, who introduced the speaker, Godfrey Haggard, the British consul general, and Graham Aldis, president of the English Speaking union, who sat on the platform, Mrs. Aldis, Barrett Wendell, Mr. and Mrs. Adelai E. Stevenson, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Hinde, Mrs. William K. Kenly, Mr. and Mrs. Robert McCormick Adams, the British vice consul, Mr. Henderson, Howard F. Gillette, Mr. and Mrs. Huntington B. Henry, Mrs. Alden B. Swift, Mrs. Robert R. McCormick, Dr. and Mrs. Arthur, A. Small, Col. and Mrs. George T. Langhorne, Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Peacock, Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine, Dr. and Mrs. Wilhelm L. Baum, Mr. and Mrs. George M. Reynolds, Mrs. Joseph O. Watkins, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Merrell, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Borland, Mrs. Gabriel F. Slaughter, Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Carr, Mr. and Mrs. James C. Hutchins, Mrs. Chauncey Keep, Mr. and Mrs. James W. Thorne, Mr. and Mrs. H. Stillson Hart, Mrs. Raymond Dudley, Mr. and Mrs. Horatio Hackett, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gordon, Mr. and Mrs. Burt Massee and Mr. and Mrs. Orville Taylor.

Chinese Situation Luncheon Topic.

"Is the Chinese boycott of Japanese goods illegal in international law? If so, does its institution give Japan the right to oppose it by military intervention? What rights and interests does America have in China? Have these rights been violated, and if so, what, under international law, is the correct remedy?"

That paragraph is quoted from the invitations which the Chicago council on foreign relations has sent out to its fashionable membership to a luncheon on Saturday at the Palmer house which will be followed by a discussion of the question: "Does War Exist in the Orient?" Dr. Quincy Wright of the University of Chicago is to give the lecture and the invitations also stress Dr. Wright's qualifications. He is one of the leading figures in the institute of Pacific relations, and in 1918 and in 1921 acted as adviser on international law to the U. S. navy.

All of which makes us think, that if Mrs. James W. Morrisson, who has been delegate several times to the institute of Pacific relations, were still residing in Chicago, the League of Women Voters would probably keep her busy making talks about the present situation in the orient.

Friendly Aid Society Plans Card Benefit.

The Friendly Aid society met on Saturday to discuss ways and means and decided to hold its annual card party as usual to raise funds for its numerous charities. The benefit will be held early in May in the grand ballroom of the Stevens. Mrs. Weymouth Kirkland is acting chairman of the committee and Mrs. Ralph Fox co-chairman. Active committee members will include Mrs. Edwin W. Weary, Mrs. Charles Middlebrook, Mrs. George Wilson, Mrs. J. W. Stevens and Mrs. Alexander Jerrems.

Mrs. William Waller Jr. will depart this week to open her villa in Palm Beach for the remainder of the season. Mrs. Volney Foster, who spent last season at the Breakers in Palm Beach with her mother, Mrs. George White Baxter of New York, is expected to go there shortly for a visit with Mr. and Mrs. George A. McKinlock. Mrs. Baxter has leased a house for this winter.

Ross J. Beatty Jr. and Jack Beatty are occupying the Beattys' Palm Beach house on North Ocean boulevard, and have Richard Burke and John Fortune Jr. as their house guests. Miss Veronese Beatty is too engrossed in her sculpture study at the Art institute to go to Palm Beach this winter.

Mrs. John H. Winterbotham and her daughter, Miss Rue Winterbotham, are expected to return some time this week to their penthouse apartment at 1301 Astor street after an absence of about a year. They will stop on their way home for a visit with Mrs. Winterbotham's mother at Orange, N. J. Miss Rue, who is the namesake of her talented aunt, the late Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, has inherited the family gift for things artistic and we hear she has been making great progress with her sculpture in Paris.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Reynolds have left to spend several weeks in California, where both their son and daughter are living now, Arthur Jr. and his wife in Los Angeles and Mrs. Calvin S. Smith [Jeannette Reynolds] and Mr. Smith in Altadena.

Darrow Fulton has gone to New Orleans for a short visit, but Mrs. Fulton had to give up accompanying him because Nancy Bruce and Leslie, the Fultons' delightful young daughters, developed whooping cough and so their mamma could or would not leave them.

Style Show and Bridge Will Aid Charity.

Mrs. Edward I. Cudahy is chairman of a style show and bridge tea to be given on Thursday at the Congress hotel for the benefit of the Travelers Aid society.

Mrs. L. Sherman Aldrich of Hubbard Woods, Miss Ellen Holt of Lake Forest, and Mrs. William D. Kirkpatrick of Evanston will be delegates to the midwinter meeting of the alumnae of Smith college in Northampton, Mass., on the week-end of Feb. 19 to 21.

Among the numerous boxholders for Mary Hastings Bradley's "Black Kings and Cannibals" lecture at the Cheney-Goode memorial benefit this evening at Mandel hall on the Midway are Mr. and Mrs. Lorado Taft, Prof. and Martin Schutze, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Ashcraft, Harold Swift, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar J. Goodspeed, Dr. and Mrs. Quincy Wright, and Dr. J. Paul Goode.

Mrs. Britton I. Budd of 1500 Lake Shore drive has gone to Phoenix for the remainder of the winter.

Mrs. Joseph Card of Highland Park is visiting Col. and Mrs. W. H. McCornack in Phoenix.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 7.—Buying British has spread to the box office and radio dial. If you can't laugh at a British joke the home office doesn't want you to laugh at all and as for foreign singers, only those of established repute can breathe the British air and exhale it again in song.

A concerted campaign against alien performers and entertainers has begun, and notices of expulsion are being passed out right and left. "First rate international standing" is the label which the home office must have for all artists who seek entry in the future except that there is slight chance for "less well known artists who by their record or on the evidence of competent opinion, can claim to be able to contribute something new, distinctive or original in the way of musical performance or interpretation."

One of the first foreign actors affected was an American vaudeville performer who has been appearing in London, in the British provinces and in the dominions for the last ten years or more. His notice to quit the country was extended so he could fulfill engagements already booked, but after that he must go. He is Tex McLeod.

"I hate to leave you," he gagged on the night of his notification, "now that I've finally got used to your coffee."

American Negro performers often do much better here than in the United States. Consequently they are the most notable exceptions to the rule that foreign performers in England rarely stay long. Four of these, singers who appear as the "Harmony Kings," have been here since 1925. One has a daughter born and now in school here. They have been ordered to go.

Paul Robeson has not been told to leave yet, nor have Layton and Johnstone, but these two Negro singers pay a British staff around $1,000 weekly out of their own earnings.

Optometrists of Illinois Open Convention Today

Members of the Illinois State Society of Optometrists will hold their annual convention today and Tuesday at the Palmer house. The report of the committee on public information is based on a research made by the association into visional problems of moviegoers, according to Dr. O. H. Bersch, vice president of the society and chairman of the committee. The research has revealed that if a moving picture hurts a person's eyes the fault is with the eyes and not the picture, Dr. Bersch said.

Official Contract

By Charles True Adams

(International bridge authority; author of "Official Contract at Sight")

If one writes for very long on any subject, be it the laying of carpets or contract bridge, he will eventually play to his public. (Of course, he believes he has a public—every one does.) Now I know and you know—in fact, every one knows—that what the average player needs more than anything else is proper instruction in defensive play. This type of play, however, is seldom sensational. It has no flair. Offensive play, on the other hand, is usually full of startling possibilities. Moreover, Mr. Average Player will usually say, after reading a defensive pointer or two: "O, I think I would have done that," whereas if you show him a squeeze play he is amazed by the perplexities and possibilities of the hand.

Now, in actual practice this same player very often makes a squeeze play. He is not usually conscious of the fact, which probably is just as well, or he would continue in the thought that he was a very brilliant fellow, indeed. He nevertheless is constantly making, by chance or otherwise, clever end plays and he very seldom has the slightest idea of what to do with his cards when he does not have the declaration.

In spite of the fact that they are not particularly popular, a good New England conscience forces me now and then to give you a play of the defensive type. Yesterday's play-a-problem was one. This was the hand:

NORTH
♥—J
♦—K,7,5,2

WEST
♠—J,10,9
♥—A,10,8,3,2
♦—10,9
♣—6,4,2

EAST
♠—Q,6,3,2
♥—K,6,4
♦—8,6,4
♣—K,10,7

SOUTH (Dealer)
♠—A,K,5
♦—A,Q,J,3
♣—J,8

South dealt and bid a no-trump. West passed. North took out with two clubs. East passed. South bid three no-trumps and all passed.

You will note that North and South have a combined no-trump count of 27. This is a good deal more than the count ordinarily insuring a game. You will see, however, how clever defensive play can at times defeat hands which on the surface look as if they would easily produce a game and extra tricks.

West opened the ♥ 3, dummy played the J, East the K, and South the 5. East returned the ♥ 6, South played the 7, West the 8, and dummy discarded the ♦ 2. West now led the ♠ J, North played the 4, East the 6, and South took the trick with the A. South then led the ♣ J, West played the 2, dummy the 3, and East took the trick with the ♣ K. East now led the ♥ 4, South played the 9, West the 10, and dummy the ♠ 7. West then led out the ♥ A and the ♥ 2, setting the contract. Regardless of West's lead now, South takes the remainder of the tricks.

After taking in the second trick West can unhesitatingly take all the remaining hearts. He has no entry in his hand except in the heart suit. It therefore would be obviously futile for him to take in his ♥ A. To do so would simply result in setting up South's Q and robbing West's partner East of his remaining heart. It should be very clear to West that his one hope of defeating the contract is that his partner obtain the lead and lead another heart through South up to West's A-10 of hearts. He must, therefore, not only keep his teance in hearts intact but keep a heart in East's hand. The moment, of course, that East gets in with his ♣ K he leads his last heart and the game is over. Should East have failed to gain an entry, West would, of course, have lost one trick by refusing to lead his ♥ A. However, it is of very little importance to West and East whether South makes three-odd or four-odd. What they are really interested in is the possibility of stopping the game.

PLAY-A-PROBLEM: SOLITAIRE OR PARTNERS.

Play this hand tonight at your bridge game. Keep a record of the bid and play in the spaces provided. Numbers in the bidding squares are for successive rounds. Check your results with tomorrow's answer.

To play "Solitaire": Record the bids you think each hand would make in the bidding squares. After the final declaration has been made start the play, leading from the hand at declarer's left. As you play each card cross it off of the diagram and record it in the proper square, as S. 3, H. K, etc. In the last column indicate the hand which won the round and lead from that hand on the next round.

Many Cities Pay Tribute to Rosenwald

U. of C. Holds Services; Negroes Laud Him.

Eulogies on the life and works of Julius Rosenwald echoed yesterday in more than sixty cities as the colored race tendered its homage to the memory of the man who accomplished so much on behalf of the Negro. Radio and religious services were held in Chicago concurrently with those in other communities, but were not confined to colored audiences.

At the University of Chicago chapel Dr. Charles W. Gilkey, dean, conducted a morning memorial service commemorating especially Mr. Rosenwald's long service as a director and benefactor of the university. President Robert Maynard Hutchins participated, reading the favorite verse of the philanthropist, Rudyard Kipling's "If."

"The hundreds of editorial and other tributes that have appeared in the press of the whole country since the death of Julius Rosenwald," Dr. Gilkey said, "have made it strikingly evident that his high place in the estimate of his generation depends not chiefly on the amount of money he accumulated, or even the amounts he has given away, but rather on certain rare qualities in the man himself. The university honors today not simply a generous donor but even more a wise counselor and a beloved associate and friend."

C. H. Tobias, senior secretary for the national council for colored work of the Y. M. C. A., was the speaker on a nation-wide hookup of radio stations.

Last night at 7:45 o'clock the major Negro gathering of the day was held at the People's church and Metropolitan Community center, 4100 South Park way. Blocks of seats had been reserved in advance for the alumni of various colored educational institutions which had received aid from Mr. Rosenwald. These included Hampton, Tuskegee, Howard, Fish, Straight, Wilberfore, and New Orleans colleges.

Speakers were Edwin R. Embree, president of the Julius Rosenwald fund; William J. Parker, general secretary of the Chicago Y. M. C. A.; Dr. Roscoe C. Giles, physician; Dr. M. O. Bousefield of the Supreme Liberty Life Insurance company; Alexander L. Jackson, president of Provident hospital; H. C. Trenholm, president of Alabama State Teachers' college, and Albert B. George of the state parole board, who presided.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7.—[Special.]—President and Mrs. Hoover attended the morning service today in the New York Avenue Presbyterian church, the edifice known as Lincoln's church, for, while Abraham Lincoln professed no actual affiliation, he and Mrs. Lincoln attended services there more frequently than in any other church during his Washington life.

Vice President Curtis was entertained at the annual reception in honor of the Vice President, given by the Congressional club of which Mrs. Leonidas C. Dyer, wife of the representative from Missouri, is president. The Vice President was accompanied by his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Gann, and Mrs. Gann stood next her brother in the receiving line which was headed by Mrs. Dyer. The little clubhouse was crowded to its capacity and the guests danced for an hour before midnight.

The Polish ambassador, Mr. Filipowicz, was entertained at luncheon today by Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Grace Mather of New York who have been spending the midwinter at the Mayflower. Mrs. Mather was formerly Miss Winifred Holt, known in the late war as the lady of the lighthouse, for her work among the blind. She went to Poland at that country's invitation in 1921 to help in work for the blind, and she was decorated by the government.

The Charming Cheat

By Clara Sharpe Hough

SYNOPSIS.

Ricardo Dane visits New York in search of his aunt, Miss Filomena Stanley, his mother's half-sister. Ricardo's mother had recently died and left him heir to the ranch and mountain land in Romeu valley, California, where he had spent most of his life. He intended to find his sole remaining near relative and bring her back to Romeu valley. He had understood this to be his mother's dying wish. His aunt, an actress, had been out of favor with the family, although his mother had sent her checks.

Ricardo locates a Filomena Stanley, but instead of an aged aunt he finds a beautiful young aunt. She is living in a Bohemian studio with a Follies girl, named Frances. Ricardo readily believes this lovely creature, who acknowledges the relationship. His arrival was fortunate for Filomena, who had been out of work for weeks and was in a sad state financially. Ricardo showers her with gifts and moves her into a better apartment. He moves into the same building on another floor. Webster Sutton, a college friend of Ricardo's, visits New York. He and Eunice Greenway, a girl from home, who is studying in New York, are entertained by Ricardo and his aunt. Eunice is a friend of Ricardo's fiancée, Rachel Beatty. She heartily disapproves of Filomena. Web believes his friend is being trimmed and, before he leaves, tells him so. Ricardo learns that Web was right when Filomena is called home, due to the illness of her father. He goes with her and brings her back to New York to have his revenge.

INSTALLMENT XIII.

UNDER OBLIGATION.

Frances and Pendleton, and Emily came in with loud cries of "Hello, darling," and "O, Ricardo, you here?" and considerable laughter and some kissing.

Ricardo waited until they had their coats and hats off. Then, as Filomena was putting the box of cheese wafers on the tea table, he said, "Well, I'm going along. Come here a second, Fil."

She glanced at him doubtfully. But after all there were three other people here. Feeling quite secure, she tripped on her high heels to his side and slipped her hand through his arm.

"Sorry you won't stay, darling," she said sweetly.

"Can't possibly," he returned, "but just come here a second. I want to—"

With a sudden swoop he picked her up—small and light as he had expected to find her—and to a duet of pleased shrieks from Frances and Emily, he carried her into the bedroom and slammed the door.

With a sudden swoop he picked her up.

"Dickey—what on earth——" she spluttered as he dropped her in a heap on the bed.

"This. That's all," he said, sitting on the edge of the bed and trying a second installment on those more satisfactory kisses.

She struggled futilely for a moment.

Then suddenly he let her go.

"All right," he said, going to the door, "go on with your party. But you know who's boss here, don't you?"

No answer.

"Don't you? Or shall I show you again?"

"No! I mean yes," she cried hastily.

"Yes what?" He took a step toward her. "You know who's boss, do you?"

"Yes, I do."

"All right. So do they now," he nodded toward the living room as he opened the door. "So long, sweetheart," he called back to her, "see you tonight."

Nursing his anger very tenderly, Ricardo could keep quite a spark of life in it. He pondered his wrongs, night and morning, reminding himself that Filomena had lied to him, had cheated him, had laughed at him behind his back in the company of Frances, an unpleasant individual at best. He hoped fervently that he had repaid her in some slight measure in her own coin in that few minutes while her odious friends looked on. If they had laughed then, the laughter had hardly been in his direction.

One difficulty that he faced was that the false Aunt Filomena was so different from every one else in the world. It was actually easy to excuse her, to condone all that she had done. She was a woman and had not the same standards of honesty that a man has. This time honored and moth eaten maxim he found applied most aptly. Of course, Rachel Beatty was a woman as well, and there was no shadow of doubt as to her standards of honesty. She was as upright as any man could hope to be.

He did not doubt for an instant that the path of a chorus girl was beset by unscrupulous men with banknotes bulging their pockets, waiting for such innocents as Filomena. And after seeing the place where she had lived her short life before she came to the city, he felt that any girl who had been brought up in that odor of sanctity and boiled dinners and dried apple pie, was justified in getting the sweet things of life by almost any means.

And if he had been played for a sucker he had after all asked for it. He had practically thrown the thing into her lap. He recalled her detached manner that day at luncheon in the little candle lit village tearoom, when he had insisted on telling her everything about his mother and his aunt. He had scarcely given her a chance to refuse. Of course she could have explained instantly that she was another Filomena Stanley. Perhaps then he would have accepted her on another basis. They might have been friends. But he did not want her as a friend, he could not have her as a friend now. He wanted her in his arms as she had been for a few brief moments, he wanted the thrill of her warm responsive kisses.

But if Filomena did owe something to him, he on the other hand, owed a little something to himself and to his own rather casual untried standards. And he owed something also to Rachel.

At thought of Rachel now, something like panic came over him. He knew with a final definite knowledge that Rachel, on the broad piazza of the house at Romeu ranch, where he had always dreamed of her (Rachel in her white tennis clothes, Rachel riding up the winding driveway on her gray horse) did not complete the picture of his life. He had to have something more.

He could not even visualize Rachel's face until he rummaged for her photograph and set it on the table. Then he stood studying it and struggling against that sense of panic that came sweeping over him again when he thought of Romeu valley.

He had always known that this could not last. He had not expected it to snap with the extremely unpleasant rebound that that evening last week had brought. He had always known he would very soon have to go back to Romeu valley where Rachel was waiting for him.

It was a dream that now was just a little empty, a bit cold. He wanted something more than Rachel. Rachel was more like his mother than any modern girl had a right to be.

He knew without having to stop and think it out that his mother would have dismissed Filomena with a mere smile and shrug. She would have been able to see through the girl at once. He flinched a little as he fancied the neat way in which his mother would have swiftly and mercilessly told him off, had she been here to see what a fool he had been.

But surely his destiny was working itself out as it was meant it should unfold. Rachel need never know. Was it necessary that Rachel should know everything about him? Certainly not.

He studied Rachel's steady eyes that even in the photograph showed something of her smiling serenity of spirit. There was something eternally restful about Rachel. She was not so disturbing as a certain little pert-faced minx upstairs. But even looking directly at Rachel's pictured face, he could vision Filomena's laughing eyes under a saucy fringe of gold hair, and something melted in him like ice in April sun and left him shaken and eager for the sight and touch of her.

There was no use debating about it. He had to have Filomena.

Rachel need never know.

But first he must find the real Aunt Filomena.

Two days later, two days in which he had not seen Filomena, he faced another Miss Filomena Stanley, in the chill reception room of a boarding house in the fifties.

Aunt Filomena, to his slight chagrin, was neither old nor feeble. She might possibly have been nearing 50, but she appeared to be enjoying robust health, a tall, erect woman who reminded him of his mother in a vague fashion.

She unquestioningly accepted her nephew and was as ready to attach herself to him as his will-o'-the-wisp darling had been.

"I'll be glad to show you a little of New York," she volunteered kindly. "You'll want to see some of the sights before you go back to the west."

"I'm going back so soon," he said hastily. "You wouldn't want to—that is, I had an idea you might like to come back to the ranch with me? He had to ask her that, as he had sworn he would.

"Ranch?" queried Aunt Filomena without warmth.

"There's lots of room out there," he explained, felling a little noble about it. "Romeu valley is several thousand acres in size, as you may know, and we've a very comfortable place there. Not at all like living in the country, really, with the electricity—"

"Living in the middle of several thousand acres may not be like living in the country," returned his aunt, "but it's not much like living in the city. Which I happen to prefer. It seems to have agreed with you, though," she added politely.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Need Colonial Costumes.

"The choir to which I belong is contemplating taking part in a bicentennial celebration on Washington's birthday. We will be in need of colonial costumes which a number of our members are unable to rent. Do you think any of your readers have such costumes which they would be willing to give or lend to us?

"H. K."

Probably you have such a costume—a relic of a similar celebration or a fancy dress party—which is hanging in your closet gathering dust. Here's a splendid opportunity to put it into service again.

Movie Gossip as It's Heard in Hollywood

News of the Actors and Their Productions.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 7.—Richard Dix has discovered the latest in Hollywood gate crashing tricks. He ordered four musicians for a party he gave last week. What was his astonishment to have eight men turn up and occupy the musician's stand. Four of them merely turned music, opened and closed instrument cases, or sat and hummed. Dix discovered too late that it's become a Hollywood practice to carry a violin case and thus get past the butler who had been stationed to ward off the uninvited guests.

No actor or actress can pass the word around to a number of friends to drop in for a buffet luncheon some evening without having from a dozen to a score of uninvited persons show up. Few hosts have the hardihood to seek out the chaff from the wheat, after both are mingled in their living rooms, and urge the chaff to leave. They may recall the embarrassment that Lew Cody experienced. Lew threw a party for some writer friends at his Beach home last summer, failed to recognize two members of the Los Angeles Times drama department whom he had invited, and requested them to go home. Which they promptly did.

The biggest bunch of gate crashers that ever gathered under one roof in Hollywood were the scores who showed up at the Beverly Wilshire hotel for the big party following Ben Lyon's wedding to Bebe Daniels. The crush was so great—the truth is, that more than 200 ate at the wedding repast—that when it came time for Constance Bennett to wed Marquis Henri Falaise recently, Connie remembered with horror the experiences of her friend Bebe, and had the wedding party guarded. The guarding was so successful that even invited guests had a hard time getting in to join the nuptial group at George Fitzmaurice's house.

The Fox Film company paid Noel Coward, British playwright, $150,000 for movie rights to three of his recent plays, "Bitter Sweet," "Easy Virtue" and "Cavalcade."

Seeks a Way to Protect Big Sister's Things

Demands of Baby Unfair to Older Child.

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"I have two children, a little daughter 5 years of age and a son who just had his first birthday.

"I'd like to teach the baby—and well I know it will be a slow process, but I don't know how to go at it. I want him to grow up having respect for big sister's and our belongings. I thing it's unfair to expect the older child always to give up what she is playing with because the baby wants it. She is very sweet about it and loves the baby and I want to keep up that spirit."

It seems odd, but this is the first letter that has ever come in to this department making this very point of protecting Big Sister's property rights. And it is a good point and one which has its roots in a keen sense of fair play. One does not usually find it among parents with second babies. One is much more apt to find mothers saying, "O, he's only a baby and you're a great big girl—let him have it."

Especially when Big Sister is so really little herself as to be only 5 years old, it is most important that she feel conscious that her rights are being looked out for. A new baby makes a big enough dent in the atmosphere. He can be absorbed happily into a family or not, depending upon how he is treated. The wise mother does not allow him to supplant the other children in her concern.

Now, to get down to practical suggestions. I thinn the best safeguard for Big Sister's possessions is for the baby to be trained in line with the suggestions that have appeared here from time to time. These have been directed toward the idea of satisfying and developing baby's sense of touch in general.

Apply that also to Big Sister's things—that is, let him hold and feel them for a moment or two—then relinquish them. Her perishable belongings like best beloved dolls, etc., might be kept out of reach when not in use. When he becomes insistent, usually something he likes as well can be substituted—or if necessary, he or the desired object can be removed. This is about all the space left. Further hints might be found in our general leaflet, "Don't Touch," which will be sent on receipt of stamped, self-addressed envelope.

New Skin, Auxiliary Eyelashes Offered at Beauty Sessions

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 7.—(AP)—New skins for old and auxiliary eyelashes for persons who consider themselves cheated by nature are two of the innovations in beauty culture to be demonstrated at the annual meeting of the American Hairdressers' association, opening here tomorrow.

The new skins, it was explained, are attained by a liquid which peels off the surface skin. The process requires about ten days.

The auxiliary lashes are attached to the genuine lashes giving the desired illusion of luxurious growth. Eyelash dyes also are included in the 80 exhibits along with a wrinkle eliminator, a complex device fitted with suction tubes and vibrator cups.

Edward Strauss, president of the association, announced that this year's hair dress will feature the "prosperity wave," which will have innumerable variations.

Married Happiness Cannot Be Gauged by Yearly Income

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Can we be sure of happiness in marriage on a combined income of $3,600 a year?" The question appears in one of today's letters.

Answer: Happiness in marriage cannot be guaranteed on any stated amount per annum. Thirty-six hundred or thirty-six thousand a year, it is not the money that is coming in that counts. It is how the income is spent.

Happiness in marriage is not bounded on all sides by the income factor. Not by a good many facets. Entering into the scheme of happy marriage are dispositions, compatibility, respect and all the other well known elements. You cannot isolate money, enshrine it as the ruling god and expect it to order: "Here, you two, on this much and so per year you ought to get along happily."

Nevertheless, the importance of an income cannot be relegated to the inconsequentials, either. It's romantic love's bad break that it cannot soar above the dollar. There's always the rent day to face. And another and another rent day, to say nothing of the food bills, clothes, home furnishings, and all of the etceteras.

So the dollar becomes pretty necessary in the business of maintaining a state of mind compatible with harmonious living. However, that does not mean that happiness cannot be found on an income of less than thirty-six hundred. The average family income in this country of ours is less than two thousand dollars a year, a statement that speaks for itself here. Thirty-six hundred a year must loom large and exceedingly properous to this group.

If income were everything, thirty-six hundred a year could be voted a substantial guarantee for a hopeful young couple. But, as said already, the relation between money and married happiness does not rest on the amount with which the pair start, but on what they spend their money for.

"A willingness to use money wisely," as one of our best authorities recommends, "is one of the foundations of a happy marriage."

On planned and wise spending thirty-six hundred to a pair of young marriage adventurers can be made to look like a fortune. But on badly planned spending it can be made to look worse than a dole.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

"Dear Miss Blake: When my fellow takes me home he kisses me good night. Should I permit this? J. P."

Are you the one and only girl for him? The answer would solve your problem.

Sunday Night Frock Boasts French Accent

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The uses of Sunday night frocks are spread all over the week for they are the kind of informal clothes that in these lean times are the better part of dress up styles. In Paris, where the crisis is being taken very hard, indeed, most of the chic women one sees at the theater and roundabout the town of an evening wear dresses that were designed for Sunday night goings-on.

The usual way of giving the Sunday night dress an evening atmosphere is to whack off, or leave off the sleeves and t increase the cutout line of the neck beyond ordinary daylight depth. One Paris dressmaker has a new way of lending the soirée touch to her Sunday night dresses, and that is by slitting the long sleeves, from wrists to above the elbows, and by doing the same thing at the back of the bodice, slitting it right down to the waistline.

This makes a provocative detail and also fortifies the wearability of the frock. Vera Borea, who is a mighty clever lady, is the creator of this type of dress, one model of which is shown in our sketch.

The dress shown is made of dark red crêpe georgette, and the long bishop sleeves are slit on the inside from the wrists to the elbows, while the back of the bodice is open in the same way. A bright red necklace made of enameled plaques and bracelets of the same provide all the jewelry necessary. The high waistline, broken by a V-topped panel in front, is a chic detail of this dress.

Dancing Instructors Take a Few Lessons at Convention Here

One hundred and fifty pairs of dance shoes tapped, tangoed, and foxtrotted yesterday across the gold room floor in the Congress hotel as the dance instructors of eight midwestern states learned the latest routines of stage and ballroom. Stars from many cities strutted through the measures of original or adapted dances, under the auspices of the Chicago Association of Dancing Masters, at its second annual joint meeting with the fifth district, Dancing Masters of America.

Leo Kehl of Madison, Wis., president of the Chicago association, all but stopped the show as he whirled his partner, Miss Agnes Klein of Milwaukee, through the mazes of the "Sally and Jim" tango, which was featured by Sally Eilers and Jimmie Dunn in a recent movie. And R. G. Huntinghouse and Irene Dorngwast provided contrast to the swoops and swirls with a number they called the "Night Club Foxtrot." It is designed for execution on a crowded floor and the steps are as short as the tango's are long.

Legion Employment Bureaus Find Jobs for 6,000 in Month

Unemployment relief bureaus conducted by American Legion posts throughout the state have found work for more than 6,000 men during the last month, it was announced yesterday. Half of those jobs were obtained by Cook county posts.

The Legion unit at Fort Sheridan, comprised principally of officers and enlisted men in the garrison there, arranged to have work given to 110 unemployed civilians in temporary reconstruction of post buildings. Originally it had been planned to have the work done by the enlisted personnel.

Careful Grooming Plus Chic Clothes Make the Modish Girl

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Of course, you are familiar with that old bromide about clothes making the man—and the woman. Let's see how that applies to our women of today.

Let's see if it is clothes that make the woman. Or clothes along with a couple of other things! Naturally, we are speaking here of attractive women. Women who sell themselves well on appearance. Women who are recognized as something a little above the average.

Let's take any ordinary woman of our acquaintance; that is, a woman not especially well groomed, not especially attractive. Then let's take her to the smartest modiste we know of. Turn her off with the command to the modiste that she be fitted properly and beautifully in dress.

The modiste, in turn, might present us with a bill for a thousand dollars or so—but would our experiment of extracting a beautiful woman from clothes alone be a success? Of course, they will make a lot of difference. The colors will be becoming, we will assume; the lines good for her particular silhouette. There will be dress taste.

The woman we've chosen for the experiment will react to the tonic of smart dress. She will be smarter in her bearing, no doubt. Still there is her hair. It's not anything like the thing of beauty it ought to be, either as to quality or dressing. If we turned this woman over to an artistic hairdresser and he brushed life and beauty into her hair and then dressed it for more youthful becomingness, that would pretty nearly turn the trick, in addition to the clothes.

No, we'd say clothes make the woman—after she has made everything she can of herself. After she has availed herself of every modern hygienic and beautifying measure. Then clothes hurdle the race for beautifying prizes. They count. Don't think we're attempting to disparage the influence of smart, becoming dress. But they count only where careful grooming is their backdrop.

THREE MEALS A DAY

From the Tribune Cook Book

Food Talk.

BY MARY MEADE.

When your next door neighbor tells you she has a good cookie recipe and offers it to you, accept it with thanks and a mental reservation for, a good cookie recipe is just as important as a good cake recipe. The ingredients should be of the best, and the measurements specific and accurate—though, the amount of flour has to be relative. We make this last exception because flours vary, and you can only judge the amount you need after you have baked your sample cookie. Suffice it to say, that the less flour you do put in your cookie dough, the more tender the baked cookie will be. And we all like light, tender cookies as well as light tender cakes.

If we are to pass judgment on cookie recipes, we will notice that the best of them call for little or no liquid. The reason is the one just given above. More liquid means that we will need more flour for the dough, and the greater the amount of flour, the tougher the cookie will become. When we do find a liquid included in a recipe, particularly if it is a rich cookie we are after, the liquid is frequently sweet or sour cream. The reason for this is that a heavy cream behaves in cooking as two-thirds of a cup of milk and one-third of a cup of fat does. Inasmuch as the milk and fat proportions are the approximate equivalent of the heavy cream we may substitute the fat and milk for the cream if we wish. In conclusion, unless the cookie recipes call for cream, the best recipes for rolled cookies will be those which require no more than one-quarter of a cup of liquid.

Pre-heat your oven for about thirty minutes before you begin any cookie baking. You will probably find that 375 degrees Fahrenheit, what I term a "moderately hot" oven is the best average heat for dropped or rolled cookies. Some recipes may specify either a higher or lower temperature, but they are not among the average group. Take one or two cookies, when you feel their dough is the right consistency bake them on a greased inverted pie tin. If the samples "run wild," during the baking, you need more flour. However, drop cookies will spread more than rolled cookies, so place the former on a cookie sheet about one inch apart, and the latter may be placed close together.

Two or three cookie sheets should be used for baking. A sheet which I like very much is made of aluminum and does not have to be greased for baking. That's a time saving point, too! With three sheets I make large batches of cookies, generally doubling the ordinary recipe. One sheet is being filled while the other two are baking. Those in the oven are so timed that one will be completing the last few minutes of baking while the other is just beginning. The use of three sheets keeps any one busy—but a nice amount of cookies will result for a minimum of work and time.

It is essential that you follow beating directions in the recipe below, or your cookies will not come up to standard.

Then add the vanilla, milk, and dry ingredients, which have been sifted together. Drop by the teaspoonful on a cookie sheet. Place a seedless raisin in the center of each cookie. Bake in a moderately hot oven for about eight or nine minutes. The oven temperature should be 375 degrees Fahrenheit.

THE SIDEWALKS OF N. Y. CRY FOR THE BUM'S RUSH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 7.—[Special.]—This city has begun a drive to rid its streets and doorways of beggars and panhandlers, but so far the work of the newly formed police "nuisance squad" has not clicked. Today there is a moocher to every block and sometimes five or six. Apparently the cream of the vagrant crop throughout the country has taken up winter quarters in Manhattan and visitors are beginning to complain of the rudeness of the alms seekers.

Twenty special detectives have been working for four nights in the Times square theatrical section without making any appreciable dent in the panhandling population. The city welfare council has appealed to the public to direct the beggars to one of the 13,500 beds available in various agencies and meal tickets have been issued by the thousands which may be purchased and given to the alms seekers instead of dimes and quarters.

Still They Come.

Every effort, however, has failed and the town is overrun with professional vagrants who laugh in your face or curse when you suggest they try the municipal lodging house or the Salvation Army.

The panhandling situation is worse than it has ever been before in New York City, but the authorities hesitate to deal sternly with the mendicancy problem because of the difficulty in distinguishing the professional panhandler from the unemployed man who has been driven to seek alms.

Vagrants, lush workers, flop filchers, drifters, tramps, and plain bums have been sweeping down on the city since last December. Approximately 50 per cent more arrests are being made for ride stealers on incoming Pennsylvania and New York Central trains than in past months.

Sob Sister Brigade.

Women panhandlers are not new here, but they are growing more nimble than ever before. The lost pocketbook, street car fare or telephone change plea has been discarded for weeping stunts.

"Mister, please give the price of a telegram to my mother," is a favorite approach on the street, and inside the railroad stations the sobbing female panhandlers usually need a dollar to get to their destination—the nearest gin joint.

The restaurants are having considerable trouble with fairly well dressed moochers who have learned that people are easy to approach just after being fed. Accuse a beggar of being drunk in this town and he will reply scathingly, "It is weakness from starvation," and you are lucky if he does not do a fall for your benefit. The subways are a lush ground for the beggars. They seldom are legitimate alms seekers, but there is always a doubt and that is the reason they collect a harvest of small coins.

There is ample provision for all destitutes here and so far, according to the registration bureau for homeless, not one person has been turned away for lack of a place to sleep. Nevertheless, few of the professional panhandlers will go to a welfare home.

There is a lot of psychology in the different techniques of the touch, but one bleary eyed fellow on 42d street has summed it all up in a sentence. He asks: "Could you slip an old bum a quarter for a drink?" He is one of 42d street's outstanding psychologists.

Woodruff and Geyer Case Up Today; May Delay Trial

The case of George Woodruff, former chairman of the board of the National Bank of the Republic, and Norman O. Geyer, former president of the Waukegan State bank, charged with conspiracy in connection with the closing of the latter bank, will be called for trial again today before Circuit Judge Edward Shurtleff at Woodstock. The trial was postponed two weeks ago because of negotiations which were under way for reopening the closed bank and the Waukegan National bank, closed at the same time. State's Attorney A. V. Smith of Lake county said yesterday that he would not oppose another continuance if it is sought for the same reason.

ENDS HIS LIFE WITH POISON.

Floyd Young, 45 years old, committed suicide by taking poison yesterday in his home at 3639 Sheffield avenue, leaving a list of persons who owed him money and a note asking that his dog be given to his daughter, Mrs. Betty Devorcheck, 1940 Fremont street.

New York, Feb. 7.—(AP)—The New York Rangers continued their supremacy over the Chicago Blackhawks tonight with a 1 to 0 victory in the fifth meeting of the season. The Hawks have not beaten the National league leaders this season, and only twice earned ties.

The game was fast only in brief bursts and held little to excite 10,000 fans. The Hawks did not open up until Butch Keeling of the Rangers had pierced their tight defense in the second perid for the game's only goal.

Johnny Roach, Ranger goalie, was the outstanding player in the game. Time and again he made seemingly impossible stops. His work was especially impressive in the third period, when the Hawks put their whole strength into a futile effort for the tying goal.

First Period Dull.

The game was off to a dull start as defensive play confined the early action to the middle of the ice. A few long shots and unsuccessful passes made up the offensives.

After several minutes of this Frank Boucher got loose with a goal in sight, but March stopped him at the cost of a hooking penalty. Boucher was the only Ranger to get past Gottselig and Wentworth while March was off and Gardiner stopped his hard shot.

Keeling Beats Gardiner.

Paul Thompson opened the second period with a long range attack on Roach and he almost clicked on a forward pass to T. Cook. Roach cleared the puck just in time. The Rangers came back a moment later with a fast passing attack and Gar-

Shamrocks Still Partners with Fliers, Play 1-1 Tie

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 7.—[Special.]—Chicago's Shamrocks and the St. Louis Fliers remained in a tie for second place in the American Hockey league here this afternoon when two overtime periods failed to break a 1 to 1 tie. The game left the two teams two games behind the league leading Kansas City Pla-Mors.

The first goal came in the second period, when a shot bounced off Goalie's Karakas' stick, caromed off Red Jackson's club and went into the net, giving the Fliers a lead.

It was during this period that the Fliers attempted to rush the Shamrock goal with a lineup of forwards, but were kept out of danger.

Pulling Karakas out of position twice in the second overtime period, the Fliers scrambled close to the Shamrock net. They failed in their attempts, however, when the Chicago defense covered over.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 7.—Eugene Lamb, Milwaukee, today won THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S Silver Skates for men in the second annual Milwaukee meet at Gordon park. Lamb finished with a total of 90 points, as a result of one first place and three seconds. Twenty-three thousand persons saw him triumph.

Madeline Horn, 20 year old Beaver Dam skater, captured the girls' senior Silver Skates trophy by making a clean sweep in the three events in her class. Harvey Buchholz, Milwaukee, totaled 80 points and won the award for the boys' intermediate competitors.

More than 200 skaters participated from Milwaukee, Madison, Racine, Beaver Dam, Oconomowoc, West Allis, and Wauwatosa. Al Kucera, Wilbur Marks, and Jimmy Brouder, Chicago stars, appeared and competed, but were not eligible, the rule barring out of state entrants having been made a year ago. Kucera's performances were outstanding.

DETROIT BEATS TORONTO, 3 TO 1; CONACHER HURT

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 7.—(AP)—The Detroit Falcons, fighting to keep their record of only one loss on home ice intact, downed the Toronto Maple Leafs, 3 to 1, here tonight in a hard and fast National Hockey league match that proved costly to the league-leading Toronto team.

The Leafs took an early lead when Jackson scored midway in the first period, but Frank Carson, Detroit star, tied up the game before the end of the session. Herbie Lewis scored for the Falcons in the second period, and Carson again scored in the final session.

OLYMPIC FUN IS OVER; BOBSLEDS TAKE OFF TODAY

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lake Placid, N. Y., Feb. 7.—The grim phase of the Olympic winter games will begin tomorrow when the sedentary bobbers of all nations go bob-bob-bobbing down the trough in the slope of Mount Van Hoevenberg. Fortunately, there are still some survivors of the practice runs and they will fill the seats on the sleds when the competition begins at a very early hour in the morning with the death-defying dashes of the two-handed bobs or bobiets.

But there was a demonstration today which tended to show that it is not only foolish, but quite unnecessary for any one to sit on the bobs when they take the slide. The casualties of the practice runs, about a dozen all told, including four major injuries to the Germans, had received so much publicity that the business men of Lake Placid, who are business men after all, with an investment at stake, were afraid the bob run would receive a bad name with prospective customers who might wish to recapture the spirit of childhood's happy hours by sliding down hill on sleds.

Man Watches Moe.

Prospective customers do not ordinarily wish to be strewn about the wide open spaces of the great, silent north in pursuit of the spirit of childhood's happy hours and sent home on blotters. And yet the daily casualty reports imparted just a faint suggestion that a slide down the mountain on a bob was something like a leap from a high window without the use of a net.

Therefore, in today's experiment intended to reassure prospective customers, a bob was dispatched down the Hoevenberg slide unassisted and also unhampered by any human agency. The bob was ballasted with four sand bags named Eenie, Meenie, Minie, and Moe, although a head man of the Lake Placid sports objected to the name of the last sand bag and suggested that

79 Laps Stolen in First 3 Hours of Bicycle Race

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Thievery was carried on at a brisk pace as soon as the starter's gun popped last night at the Stadium in Chicago's 27th six day merry go round of bicycle riders. Inside of five minutes after 15 teams had assumed their arduous duties one outfit had stolen a lap and from then on the thefts occurred with such a rush that by midnight a majority of 7,500 spectators didn't know just what the situation was.

From the mass of early thefts, evidently staged with the idea that some of the selling platers could be encouraged to withdraw from the affair, emerged two teams with a slim lead. At midnight, after three hours of dizzy pedaling, the veteran Reggie McNamara with his mate, Harry Horan, and the French pair of Alfred Letourner and Marcel Guimbretiere were one lap in advance of the others.

Chicagoans Lose Lead.

An hour before that, the Frenchmen and the Chicago-Belgian American A. A. team of Steve Wagner and Pete Smessaert were setting the pace by the same margin.

The desire of the boys to show they were serious about their work was evidenced by the fact that after three hours of pedal pushing 79 laps had been stolen. The outstanding failures in this particular line of bicycle endeavor were Gregory Flatow and Tony Schaller, two of the six Chicagoans engaged. In three hours they had dropped five laps behind the leaders. The next worst pair was Franco Georgetti and Freddie Spencer. They were only one lap ahead of the caboose team.

Before the race was five minutes old De Lille, the Belgian, and Rodak, the Chicago Pole, stole a lap. This jam was instituted by Pijnenburg, the Hollander, who is in his first American competition. He found the field a bit more energetic than he anticipated.

The lap picked up by De Lille and Rodak didn't give them much pleasure. Inside of five more minutes they had been caught by four teams. In a few more minutes another jam moved six teams up a notch. Letourner and Guimbretiere and Audy and Peden were in both of these mad dashes. De Lille and Rodak got into one of them, thus keeping themselves in a tie with the two others.

All in Tumbling Form.

The early jamming subsided when the series of spills got under way.

Most of the boys who fell merely picked up enough splinters to make themselves ideal salvage material for a lumber concern. In the first upset Audy, the tiny blond Canadian, Kroschel, and Wals tumbled. Right on top of this Schenk's bike crashed as he was going into the east bank. His misfortune dumped Spencer, Horan, and Bresciani out of their seats.

Bresciani, an Italian, suffered the only hurt of consequence. He sliced open his hand, but it was taped up hurriedly and he resumed work.

Wagner and Stockholm, both Chicagoans, also tested the sliding qualities of the board surface. Wagner was unhorsed when his rear wheel collapsed on the east turn, but avoided injury. Stockholm did a nose dive for no apparent reason and escaped with nothing worse than a skinned right elbow. Later Bulla and Wals also flopped when their tires blew up.

TODAY DEADLINE IN WEST SECTION GOLDEN GLOVES

This is the last chance for Chicago amateur boxers to enter the west section trials of the Golden Gloves tournament. Entries for the west side meet, which will start one week from tonight at the Ashland Boulevard auditorium, close at midnight. All letters received postmarked Feb. 8 will be accepted.

And while the subject of entries is at hand, Chicago's amateurs on the north side of the city should remember that the deadline for the Loyola university tournament is Thursday. The north side Golden Gloves trials will be held Feb. 18 and 19. Entries for the south side meet at White City will be accepted until next Monday at midnight.

Toman Back Again.

Another of the veteran Golden Glovers who has come back for another chance at a title is Jimmy Toman of the Opal A. A. Toman was a member of the 1930 squad. Last year he fought in the semi-finals of the middleweight competition at the Stadium. However, he broke a bone in his hand and although he was certain of a position on the team was unable to fight. Toman reports he's back in shape and that there'll be no stopping him from winning the 160 pound championship and meeting the New York winner in Madison Square Garden on March 28.

The Opal A. A. also has two other high powered entries in the preliminaries. Duffy Dvonch, the much tattooed sailor, is slated for the heavyweight title, according to his friends, who base their assertion on his victory in the outdoor Central A. A. U. tournament last summer. Then there's Pat Sullivan in the welterweight division. Bob Little of the Opals is authority for the statement that there'll be a big celebration on 22d street if one of these lads wins a Golden Glove.

Entry Lists Grow.

While this is the final week of preparation for Chicago boxers before the qualifying trials, the out of town teams now are setting the pace. Dan-

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Thirty thousand watched the boys of Chicagoland strive for ski championships yesterday afternoon at Riis park. For more than two hours, 70 lads, ranging from nine year old Russell Vastine Jr., to the senior division, sped down the slide and jumped into space. Distance and form counted in the final standings compiled by the judges from the Norge and Ogden Dunes Ski clubs.

After two postponements, yesterday's tournament was favored with perfect weather. The temperature made the snow packed slide and hill almost perfect for jumping. Moderate weather helped the crowd to enjoy the events.

The champions, George Sedivec, Ed Petrick, Harvey Nilsen and Eddie Hansen, each received a gold medal offered by THE TRIBUNE in its second annual ski promotional.

Two Win Easily.

In two of the four age classes, the winners were hard pressed to gain their laurels. George Sedivec was far in front in the 12 year old and under division while Harvey Nilsen, a flaming red head from the Norge Ski club, had slight cause for worry in the 15 and 16 year old class. Harvey not only won the division championship with 110.75 points, which combined his score for distance and form, but also leaped 41 feet to win the gold medal awarded for the longest jump of the tournament.

The commissioners of the northwest park district, cooperating with THE TRIBUNE, made this tournament superior to the inaugural last year. The Northwest park district drum and bugle corps headed the parade of contestants and officials to the slide, where, promptly at 1:30, the first of the contestants came slipping down the wooden platform to try the hill. Before that, for an hour, the clerks of the course had been busy in the fieldhouse passing out numbers and arranging the cards for the judges.

Crowd of 30,000 surrounds Riis park slide to watch the second annual boys' ski tournament sponsored by The Tribune and Northwest park commissioners. Thousands described an arc at the foot of the hill while other thousands not shown in the picture gathered in less advantageous positions behind the slide, but all enjoyed the skill and daring of the youthful performers, who ranged from 9 to 17 years of age and over. Harvey Nilsen, winner of the 15 and 16 year old class, is leaving the slide for a 41 foot jump, the longest of the day.

SMITTY—IN THE SWIM

Olympic Fun Over; Bobbing Starts Today

It be rechristened some distinctly Nordic name. However, other headmen in Lake Placid have a high regard for customers named Moe so the name of the sandbag was allowed to stand, to the great chagrin of the ultra-Nordic interests.

Moe Gets Playful.

With the sandbag Moe at the wheel of the sled, there was discoursed the most artistic descent of the Mount Van Hoevenberg bob run ever seen by the eye of man. The sled took the double turn at the place called Zig-Zag with hardly any rise from the floor of the trough, whereas those sleds which have been cracking up in the adjacent valleys have been rising high along the rim and going over the top.

The sled executed some special maneuvers on another curve, spinning around for three complete turns before the sandbag personnel under the guidance of the redoubtable sandbag, Moe, decided to continue the run and headed straight down the alley again. There was another skid after all the turns had been executed and the sled was bobbing gently along the straight-away going to the finish. At this point Moe, out of sheer boredom, flipped the sled over, spilling all the sandbags.

Pros Do Half-Hearted Job.

This was all very embarrassing to the Olympic bobbers as it seemed to indicate that a staff of sandbags presented just the correct degree of intelligence and skill for bob-bob-bobbing down hill on a sled.

The newspaper photographers and moving picture men also arranged a demonstration, engaging two professional bob-sled pilots to stage a spill at an agreed price of $10 each. This demonstration resulted in a squawk, but inasmuch as the two bobbers were professionals, the squawk cannot be scored in official international squawking contest.

The boys came down the run, as agreed, and spilled with nice precision when they reached the range of the cameras, but, though the man at the brake flung himself gracefully into space, describing a pretty arc and landed in a careless posture, the man at the helm forgot to let go and floated down the course with the 300-pound bob riding him, which was turnabout and fair play.

However, the photographers scored the demonstration as only half a spill and after some squawking and counter-squawking, all on an unofficial basis, the bob ers were paid off on a 50 per cent basis.

Moe Proves His Skill.

The sandbag team under the captaincy of the sandbag Moe, made such easy work of the bob run that the business men of Lake Placid began to fear that they had over-under-rated the Mount Van Hoevenberg slide business. The fact is that the bob-run, with its promise of contusions and abrasions or worse to the contestants, has appealed strongly to the buzzard instinct in the customers and therefore is expected to draw more business to the hotels and the gate than any other single event on the Olympic program.

A race between sandbag bobs, traversing the course in record time with no prospect of injury to any human bobbers would not draw enough patronage to keep an amateur in finnan haddie for a day. Therefore a nice balance must be struck between conservatism, to reassure the prospective pleasure bobbers who may wish to bob somewhat, after the Olympics are over, in pursuit of that happy childhood spirit and the buzzard customers who hope and fear that some of the Olympic bobbers will be injured in no minor way.

About Mr. Eagan Again.

Mr. Eddie Eagan, the American society bobber, the grand old man of the Olympics, who has been competing in football, amateur boxing and bobbing, boy and man since 1917, regards his bobbing as part of a life plan. Gene Tunney, who is Mr. Eagan's friend, had a life plan and Mr. Eagan, who is now an attorney-at-law in New York, naturally aspires to the highest position in his chosen profession, which would be the United States Supreme court.

Inasmuch as Supreme court judges spend much time sitting down, it was quite natural that Mr. Eagan should abandon Olympic bobbing, in which he formerly represented the United States, and go in for the sedentary training which is to be acquired in bobbing. He has cultivated a very graceful seat and seems qualified for the circuit court of appeals already.

Bobbing on a bob-sled should not be confused with obbing on the heels, which is a recreation of veteran prize fighters. Bob-sled bobbing is performed on the sole of the trousers and the only prize fighter in recent years who has done his bobbing entirely on the sole of his trousers is Fainting Philip Scott of England.

WEEK'S SCHEDULE.

Iowa at Minnesota.
Northwestern at Indiana.
Purdue at Ohio State.
Marquette at Wisconsin.

Tomorrow.

Bradley at Illinois.

Wednesday.

Butler at Wisconsin.

Saturday.

Purdue at Chicago.
Minnesota at Indiana.
Iowa at Northwestern.
Michigan at Michigan State.

The Big Ten basketball teams, examinations and nonconference junkets out of the way, resume title business tonight with six universities in action. A seventh — Wisconsin — meets Marquette with a declaration that a previous defeat by the Hilltoppers will be avenged.

The schedule brings into action Purdue, which has been absent from conference competition so long many have forgotten that the Boilermakers still are in the thick of the championship fight with two victories and one defeat. Purdue plays Ohio State at Columbus and since the Buckeyes have returned from an eastern journey which saw them defeated Saturday by the Navy, 35 to 32, Purdue should win.

Northwestern Faces Fight.

Northwestern, the only undefeated team, starts the second half of its schedule tonight against Indiana at Bloomington, with prospects of a hard fight. The Hoosiers only lost by six points at Evanston.

Minnesota, which now holds second place in the Big Ten race with four victories and one defeat, takes on Iowa tonight at Minneapolis. The Hawkeyes won their first Big Ten game Saturday night, when they whipped the Unversity of Chicago, 43 to 25. That triumph practically assures the Maroons they will have complete and final possession of tenth place.

Iowa's showing, the basis of its hope tonight against the Gophers, rests on sophomore talent which joined the team following the first semester. Bennett, a six foot five inch center, led the newcomers with 12 points against Chicago, scoring four times from the field. Krumbholz, a forward, counted six points Saturday night while Selzer, at guard, also scored six points.

Iowa Lineup Strengthened.

Iowa also will be a worthy foe for Northwestern this week-end at Patten gymnasium now that Coach Rollie Williams has strengthened his lineup. Northwestern beat Iowa in the first encounter, 32 to 26.

Moffitt of Iowa took second place in the individual scoring by his work against Chicago when he got eight points on three field goals and two free throws. Moffitt, in five games, has scored 53 points, only three behind Joe Reiff of Northwestern, the leader, who has had the advantage of an extra game. Capt. Norm Daniels of Michigan now is in third place with 50 points scored in six games.

CUE STARS PLAY FOR CROWN AND $35,000 TONIGHT

Kieckhefer Meets Reiselt in Billiard Final.

BY FRENCH LANE.

A fifty point billiard match will be played by Augie Kieckhefer of Chicago and Otto Reiselt of Philadelphia at Mussey's amphitheater tonight for the world's three cushion championship and a pot of money which, within a year, will aggregate some $35,000.

After three weeks of play Kieckhefer and Reiselt come together in the 66th game of the championship series tied at seven games won and three lost. They are the only survivors in a field of 12 gathered from the three cushion stars in all parts of America.

The actual money passing into the hands of the winner of tonight's championship match is $10,000. But the average income from a world's three cushion champion's exhibition play usually is more than $25,000, making the crown a valuable one to own.

Kieckhefer Is Favorite.

On the eve of the championship match Kieckhefer ruled as a slight favorite at 11 to 10. But this was chiefly due to home town popularity. Students of billiards agree there has been but little difference in their play throughout the tournament, although Kieckhefer in his ten games scor l a few more points than his Philadelphia rival.

Fighting for a championship will not be a new experience for either player. Both are former world's champions. Reiselt first won the title in 1926. He lost it the next year to Kieckhefer, but regained it 40 days later when he defeated Kieckhefer, 800 to 240, in 293 innings. Johnny Layton dethroned Reiselt in 1928 and beat him again in the championship match of 1930. Last year when Art Thurnblad of Chicago captured the championship, Reiselt finished fourth.

While both are of German descent, tonight's finalists are native Americans. Kieckhefer was born in Milwaukee in 1889, and Reiselt a year later in Philadelphia.

Augie Is a Surprise.

Kieckhefer long has been rated as one of the masters of the difficult angle game, but his chances of winning back the championship this year were not considered bright at the beginning of the tournament. More than a year ago he suffered a physical breakdown. He spent a greater part of last year in a Milwaukee hospital, and his admirers were afraid he was not strong enough to undergo the rigors and nervous strain of three weeks' championship play.

But he has grown stronger with every game and has shown iron nerve and splendid courage, coming from far behind to win some of his games.

Reiselt for years has been a student of billiards and is one of the authorities on the diamond system. When in stroke he is one of the fastest scoring players in the game.

The championship game, which starts at 8:15 o'clock tonight, will be preceded by an afternoon match, in which Gus Copulos meets Frank Scoville in a playoff for fourth place. There will also be three playoff matches tomorrow, two of them to break the fourth place tie, the other a battle for second place between the loser of tonight's championship game and the present champion, Thurnblad.

EMIL ST. GODDARD FIRST IN OLYMPIC DOG SLED DERBY

Lake Placid, N. Y., Feb. 7.—(AP)—Emil St. Goddard, youngster from The Pas, Man., drove his sled dog team of huskies to victory today in the second 25 mile race through the Adirondacks, completing the 50 mile Olympic exhibition.

The veteran Leonard Seppala, who once made the greatest of all dog sled runs with the diphtheria serum from Fairbanks to Nome, finished second, less than seven minutes behind St. Goddard, but he was unable to keep as close to the youngster today as he did over the rough 25 mile route yesterday. The differences in their time yesterday was less than two minutes. St. Goddard's time for the 50 mile run was 4 hours, 23 minutes, 12 5-10 seconds.

FOUR CHAMPIONS AND A THRILL

Bruin Murphy Beats Hoosier Murphy, 28-23

The Murphy boys, Charley of Purdue and Charley of Loyola, one time center of a college basketball controversy which had the midwest upset, met again last night on the Fronton court. And when the shooting was all over Charley of Loyola and the Chicago Bruins had whipped the other Murphy's Hoosier All-Stars, 28 to 23.

It was a bangup game with the teams evenly matched until the closing minutes. The first half ended 10 to 10 and in the final period the count was tied three times. Even so, the Bruins more than doubled the Hoosiers in the matter of goals from the field, getting 13 to the Hoosiers' six.

Free Throws Aid Hoosiers.

Phenomenal free throwing which scored 11 times in 14 attempts kept the losers in the game. Thirteen personal fouls were called on the Bruins while the Hoosiers were penalized only three times. Johnson counted five of the visitors' penalty shots.

When the two Murphys met during their college days, Purdue's Murphy won by one point in an overtime game. Last night Loyola's Murphy had the better of the individual argument. Loyola's Murphy registered two field goals and as many free throws. Purdue's Murphy had one goal and two free throws.

Although topped by several inches, Loyola's Murphy secured the center tipoff 13 times to 11 for Purdue's Murphy.

Team Work Brings Victory.

The Bruins' victory, however, was based on team play, and the passing attack of the final minutes. Ralph Miller's fourth goal gave the Bruins a 22 to 20 lead. Red Barak tapped in a follow shot and then, after Reeves' free throw, Art Bramhall broke away twice under the backboard for goals which decided the result. It was the third defeat in 31 games for the Hoosiers and also ended their 16 game winning streak.

In the preliminary game the Pioneers also did a bit of upsetting when they whipped the Cuyler-Lake View Night school quintet, 31 to 23.

30,000 Cheer Boys' Daring in Ski Meet

until recent years, proved a magnet yesterday. Thousands who arrived early occupied all vantage points at the foot of the hill. The latecomers, perforce, were satisfied to assemble on the far distant bunkers of the golf course to catch a glimpse of the skiers.

Experts won, but all credit is due to those who tried and failed. Each boy was permitted only two trials. Those who fell in one of these attempts practically were eliminated, but several established creditable marks. Those who fell, unable to hold their feet after a futile attempt to better existing marks, provided more thrills for the crowd than the champions.

At least one of the many gave a superb exhibition of how not to jump, for he took off with both skils pointed skyward and landed on his back, to tumble to the foot of the hill in a snow cloud raised by his wooden staves as they checked his downward flight.

Vastine Makes Long Jump.

George Sedivec of Cary, Ill., won the event for boys 12 years of age and under principally because he kept his feet on both of his trials. But Russell Vastine Jr., the 9 year old phenomenon, took second prize, a silver medal, when he made the longest jump for his division, 20 feet.

Ed Petrick of the Fox River A. C. won the gold medal for boys 13 and 14 years of age when he had two jumps of 24 feet each. Hans Hermansen, unattached, was second in the final standings, only 1.25 points behind.

Harvey Nilsen, son of Karl Nilsen, former national champion, had no trouble in the division for boys 15 and 16 years of age. His point total, 110.75, was the best of the afternoon. Norman Petersen, a team mate of Nilsen from the Norge club, was second while George Petriak of the Fox River Athletic club finished third.

Norge Takes Team Prize.

Eddie Hansen, another Norge jumper, captured the title in the senior class for boys 17 years of age and over. He had distance marks of 38 and 34 feet. Merritt Koch, of the Forest Preserve Ski club, was second only a half point behind Hansen, but had a leap of 39 feet, the best in his class. Louis Cernocky, of the Fox River A. C., was third, only 1.75 points behind the winner.

The Norge Ski club won the team championship by scoring 16 points. This total included two first places and two seconds. The Fox River Athletic club was second, although unattached skiers counted more points. The Forest Preserve Ski club came last.

Gubbins Presents Prizes.

After the meet Joseph F. Gubbins, president of the Northwest Park district, presented the individual and team prizes. Karl Nilsen accepted the silver cup, emblematic of the team title, in behalf of the Norge Ski club.

The judges of the jumpers' form were Trygve Maseng and Christ Steiner. Judges of distance were Thorleif Narup and Olaf Thomassen. Fred Bruun was referee of the tournament and Karl Nilsen chief of the hill.

The course was policed by the Northwest park district force in command of Chief of Police Art Bruhn. The officers had no difficulty keeping the thousands behind the restraining ropes so that all had excellent opportunity to see the contestants.

VIRGINIA VAN WIE WINS CROWN IN COAST TOURNEY

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 7.—(AP)—Miss Virginia Van Wie, Chicago golfer, won the annual Los Angeles midwinter women's golf tournament today, defeating Mrs. Louis B. Cheney, the former Leona Pressler of San Gabriel, Cal., 3 and 2 in the 36 hole final.

Short approach shots made Mrs. Cheney fair game for the Chicagoan, who could have ended the match on the thirty-second hole but for a reversal in which she took three putts and halved with her opponent. Mrs. Cheney then captured the next hole and they halved the thirty-fourth.

Mrs. Cheney missed a four foot putt on the eighteenth and finished the morning round 3 down. Miss Van Wie was 4 up at the afternoon turn. Miss Van Wie was in especially fine form in the morning round, sinking putts of 20, ten and 15 feet to run away with the seventh, twelfth and thirteenth holes.

West Section Golden Glove Entries Close

ville, Ill., and Peoria, Ill., open their championship tournaments tonight. On Wednesday the Lafayette, Ind., boys start throwing gloves. Vincennes, Ind., and Milwaukee boxers open up Thursday.

From 21 cities in five states championship teams will march on Chicago for the Tournament of Champions at the Chicago Stadium starting Feb. 29.

Chicago's intercity squad this year undoubtedly will have a larger out of town representation than ever before. Grand Rapids, Mich., long noted for the caliber of its amateur boxing, has entered the Tournament of Champions for the first time. Milwaukee, equally famous, will be back for a second time with a stronger team if reports of the entries in the tournament can be believed.

Milwaukee Tourney Large.

Last year six of the eight Milwaukee boxers survived the first rounds of the Tournament of Champions and one of the boys made the squad and later took the trip to New York and Washington, which was part of the reward offered for skill and courage.

More than 100 boxers will compete in the Wisconsin Golden Gloves tournament at the Eagles club in Milwaukee Thursday. The finals are scheduled for Feb. 19 and the report is that the Eagles hall on Wisconsin avenue, which seats 5,500, will be sold out.

For the first time the Wisconsin athletic commission, which controls amateur boxing as well as professional, has permitted unlimited entry and an unlimited number of tournament bouts.

Anyhow, we have dropped the price of

Overcoats

They are $30 and $40

And should you want Shirts, the sale prices are $1.85 (were $3.50 to $5.50)
Ties —$1.15 (were $2.50 to $4.00)
Pajamas—$1.55 and $2.35 (were $2.50 to $7.50)
Socks —65c and 95c (were $1.00 to $2.50)

REORGANIZATION OF ROGERS PARK HOSPITAL HALTS

Committee Announces a New Finance Plan.

BY AL CHASE.

Owners of first mortgage bonds in the Rogers Park hospital have been advised by T. E. Williams, secretary of the bondholders' protective committee, that negotiations with the owners and the creditors have been broken off completely as a result of reorganization plan not having been observed. The committee declares that it has been forced to the reluctant conclusion that no sound plan of reorganization can be worked out with the present owners of the hospital."

S. T. KIDDOO. [Moffett Photo.]

Holman D. Pettibone is chairman of the bondholders' committee. The members are: S. T. Kiddoo, treasurer of Fairbanks, Morse & Co.; L. T. Kelley, Jacob Best, and Edwin L. Read.

The committee urges the bondholders to deposit their bonds at once with the Chicago Title and Trust company, stating "it is imperative that this action be taken at once so that your committee will be placed in a position to act for all outstanding bonds. Every effort will be made to place this property again upon an earning basis. Hospital experts, who are familiar with the property, report that it is well built, well equipped, and in a strategic location. With proper attention and management there should be little doubt of the eventual payment of the first mortgage bonds."

The Rogers Park hospital, at 6970 North Clark street, is a six story fireproof structure with 102 beds in small wards and individual rooms. It was financed by a $200,000 Cochran & McCluer Co. 6½ per cent bond issue which has been reduced to $182,500. These bonds are a first lien on the real estate and equipment of the hospital. The hospital also has a second mortgage of approximately $45,000 and also owes about $50,000 to general creditors. It is said to be operating at the present time at less than 50 per cent capacity.

Depression Hits Hospitals.

"The general business depression has adversely affected privately owned hospitals as well as all other forms of business," the committee states, in reviewing the situation. "In the latter part of May of last year, we were notified that the Rogers Park hospital would not be able to meet the interest on its bond issue June 1 and would not pay the bonds which matured on that date.

"Steps were immediately taken to institute careful examination of the affairs of the hospital, its past and current earnings and its possibilities for the future. While this investigation was being made and while we were conducting negotiations with the owners of the hospital relative to this default, a petition in bankruptcy was filed in the federal court by creditors of the hospital, hoping to have the hospital corporation adjudged bankrupt and its affairs liquidated. Answers were filed to the petition by the hospital, denying insolvency and steps were taken by us to keep the matter in status quo until a reorganization could be effected.

Long Negotiations.

"Your representatives conducted a long series of negotiations with the creditors of the hospital and with the owners in an attempt to formulate a sound plan of reorganization. Under this proposed plan, the interest on the first mortgage bonds due June 1, 1931, was to be paid and commencing Feb. 1, 1932, the hospital was to deposit with the Cochran & McCluer Co. $1,400 per month, to be applied to payment of interest maturing Dec. 1, 1931, and as soon as that was fully paid, to be further applied in liquidation of the currently accruing interest until all back interest had been paid.

"Following this, the hospital was to deposit monthly an amount sufficient to pay current interest and not less than $4,500 per year to be applied in retirement of matured bonds. No payments were to be made on account of the second mortgage nor to secondary creditors of the hospital until all interest due on the first mortgage bonds had been brought up to date. Other requirements were to be assumed by the hospital which further protected first mortgage bondholders."

And then, as stated in the first paragraph, the negotiations went haywire, the hospital failed to pay interest and other requirements of reorganization and the bond committee decided that the situation was a flop so far as the present owners were concerned—and now are going to try and pull things together along other lines.

Estimate Youngstown's Operations at 35 Per Cent

Youngstown, O., Feb. 7.—Steel mill operations in the Youngstown district this week will be at about 35 per cent of capacity, it was indicated today. This is unchanged from the rate of production at the close of the current week but 1 per cent under the operating schedule at the beginning of the week.

The Mahoning Valley Steel company is recalling several hundred men to work at its sheet plant at Niles, which will resume Monday after one week of idleness, making a total of six of eight mills rolling. An accumulation of orders will allow production on a 75 per cent basis, with several more turns than in other recent weeks.

Profits of 277 Companies Shrink 48 Per Cent in 1931

Standard Statistics reports that total net earnings of 277 domestic corporations for 1931 were $400,969,000, a decrease of 48.5 per cent from 1930. Industrial profits contracted 53 per cent, rail earnings 58.8 per cent, and utilities' net 7 per cent.

PEOPLES GAS 1931 PROFITS SHOW A GAIN

Data on Natural Gas and Stock Deals.

BY O. A. MATHER.

The Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, which supplies Chicago with gas, made public it formal annual report last night. It is the first of the Insull operating companies to report results for 1931. The report is unusually interesting because it gives information not only of its operations in a year which witnessed completion of the big project of piping natural gas from Oklahoma to Chicago but of operations in the securities markets.

G. F. MITCHELL
[Moffet Photo.]

Net earnings of Peoples Gas last year set a new high record, although it sold less gas than in 1930. The decline in gross revenues was practically offset by lower operating expenses and taxes, while the company increased its non-operating income more than its interest charges increased. Included in "other income" was $372,563 in stock dividends received from subsidiary or affiliated companies, whereas in 1930 such income was $299,159.

Sells Less; Earns More.

Gross operating revenue for 1931 was $36,898,769, a decline of $2,981,858 from 1930. A decline of 5.26 per cent in gas sales is attributed to general business condition by President George F. Mitchell. However, net income was $7,562,582, an increase of $364,510. This income was equivalent to $10.95 a share on 690,000 capital shares outstanding. Net income for 1930 was $7,197,072, or $11.50 a share on 625,400 shares.

The consolidated balance sheet shows that Peoples Gas owned 59,075 shares of its own stock at the end of 1931. Stock transactions during the year resulted in a loss and writedown to market value of $4,064,216. The company drew $2,498,183 from reserves for taxes and other purposes to cover part of this depreciation and the balance was taken from surplus. Thus, while surplus earnings above dividends last year were $2,170,844, the net increase in total surplus was only $409,343. Surplus earnings after dividends in 1930 totaled $2,304,052. Total surplus now stands at $29,160,787.

Writes Down Stock Owned.

The 59,075 shares of Peoples Gas stock owned by the company was written down to $6,970,850, or $118 a share, which was the closing price on Dec. 31, 1931. The company also owned 106,818 "rights" to purchase additional stock and these were carried at $133,522, or $1.25 a right. Peoples Gas shares on Saturday sold in the market as low as 99¾ and closed at 100⅝.

The report states that reserves used in offsetting the depreciation on stock transactions are not required now. Taxes declined $402,000 last year and a federal income tax claim for $1,396,932 for 1919, 1920 and 1921 was settled for $5,014.

As the result of bringing natural gas to Chicago, Peoples Gas now is distributing a mixed gas consisting of 55 per cent natural and 45 per cent manufactured gas. In furtherance of the pipe line project, the Insull interests organized the Natural Gas Investment company. The Peoples Gas Subsidiary corporation, itself a Peoples Gas subsidiary, advanced $19,189,775 to the Natural Gas Investment company, holding the latter company's note for this amount and also owning more than 79 per cent of its capital stock.

Data On Pipe Line.

The Natural Gas Investment company owns 26.62 per cent of the capital stock of the Texoma Natural Gas company, which supplies most of the gas in Oklahoma; also 26.62 per cent of the capital stock and $15,977,500 of the bonds of the Natural Gas Pipeline Company of America, which owns and operates the pipe line from Oklahoma to Joliet, Ill.; and, finally, all of the capital stock and a note for $2,919,897 of the Chicago District Pipeline company, which brings the gas from Joliet to Chicago. The total investment of the Natural Gas Investment company in the assets of these companies is $19,340,068.

President Mitchell says the company had 11,988 registered stockholders at the end of 1931, of whom 7,506 were Chicagoans and 1,249 were Illinoisans outside of Chicago. Thus, more than 73 per cent of the stockholders were residents of Illinois. The financial statement, as of Dec. 31, 1931, shows current assets of $15,448,704 and current liabilities of $11,490,691. Total assets were $233,884,184.

Bond Market Dips as Public Stands Aside

New York, Feb. 7.—(AP)—Investors and traders in the bond market generally stood on the side lines last week and total sales dwindled to the lowest since last November.

At the same time it was pointed out by some dealers that many securities displayed a strong undertone in the face of a number of apparently destructive factors.

Influences which were supposed to affect the market one way or another were the far eastern disturbances, the new Reconstruction Finance corporation, the railway wage reduction agreement, the drop in car loadings and traffic, and the prospects of an easy money policy being inaugurated by the federal reserve banks.

Rail Bonds Decline.

The railway bonds indicated some pessimism over their situation and exhibited a declining trend most of the week. While wage cuts and governmental relief bills held out hopes of betterment, it was believed that these had been largely discounted by the substantial rise in the prices of low priced carrier liens since last December. The decline in railway operating income was viewed as the greatest deterrent to any immediate improvement in the transportation section.

Bonds of Japan, Australia, and New South Wales were the features of the foreign department. Nipponese loans declined sharply as the Shanghai trouble took on a more serious aspect, but most of the rallied later and recovered the greater portion of their losses. Australian and New South Wales obligations dropped when the latter defaulted on interest payments due Feb. 1. The commonwealth, however, later agreed to make good the interest and filed suit against the state for the money advanced. Thereupon these loans got back practically all of their losses.

United States Securities Firm.

United States government obligations were firm, although their advances were modest. Investors in government loans are still holding to the belief that the New York Federal Reserve bank will soon reduce the rediscount rate. Large financing which must be negotiated by the treasury before March did not seem to have any appreciable affect on the listed loans.

Utilities and industrials were irregular and their price ranges narrow. The utility section was under some pressure because of the campaign for lower rates throughout the country.

U. S. Treasury to Offer $75,000,000 Bill Issue

Washington, Feb. 7.—(AP)—Secretary Mellon announced today the treasury would sell $75,000,000 in 93 day treasury bills on Feb. 11. The bills will be dated Feb. 15, and will mature on May 18, when they will be redeemed at face value. The money received for the bills will be used to retire $75,400,000 of treasury bills which mature on Feb. 15.

HOLIDAY SPURT IN STEEL TRADE SPENDS ITSELF

Steel producers have practically exhausted the momentum of the Post-holiday rise and have reached a stalemate requiring heavier demands from the automotive industry and the seasonal track demands of railroads, according to the magazine Steel.

Railroad buying appears a certainty, though in a lesser degree than a year ago, so soon as adjustments following the wage reduction are made, the magazine said. The continued absence of Ford is a drag not only to the steel markets but also to other low priced automobile manufacturers.

In the two weeks ended Feb. 6 the average rate of steel production was 28½ per cent. Last week Pittsburgh and Youngstown mills curtailed, but a substantial rise at Chicago and Buffalo proved an offset. This week Cleveland and Chicago mills may taper off, but a further rise at Buffalo is expected to maintain the average.

Due to a reduction of $1 a ton in sheet bars at Cleveland and Youngstown; $2 a ton in cast iron pipe at Chicago, and 50 cents in malleable iron at Youngstown and Pittsburgh, steel's iron and steel composite is off 8 cents to $29.84.

It was said the Sino-Japanese trouble had little effect in the steel industry except for suspension of a few shipments to Shanghai due to the uncertainty of delivery.

No war orders have been placed though Japan's importation of 16,348 tons of lead, 82 per cent of this country's exports in 11 months last year, now is regarded as significant.

Colorado Fuel and Iron Co. Speeds Up Munnequa Plant

Pueblo, Colo., Feb. 7.—(AP)—Operation of the Munnequa plant of the Colorado Fuel and Iron company, will be speeded up this week. Nine departments will go on six or seven days a week production and in two other departments operations will be on three and four day runs. This resumption constitutes the biggest schedule since the major departments were reopened three weeks ago.

Unload 220 Barrels of Gold at French Port

CHERBOURG, France, Feb. 7.—(AP)—More than 220 barrels of gold, amounting to $11,000,000, were unloaded from the steamer American Shipper today and sent by motor trucks to the Bank of France in Paris. They had been shipped from New York.

SUCCESS OF TRADE SHOWS HERE CALLED BEYOND EXPECTATION

The success of the various trade show in Chicago during the past week exceeded expectations, according to the trade observers of the Chicago Association of Commerce. Registration at the interstate merchants council was good, and the leading wholesale dry goods distributors reported a very good volume of business.

In the millinery and ready to wear fields the dollar volume of the orders was reported ahead of the same week in 1931.

Attendance at the automobile show in the Coliseum during the first half of the week was about equal to that of last year. Salon exhibitions rated an attendance about 30 per cent ahead. Exhibitors at the show reported good interest and fair sales, but comparisons with last year were a little discouraging. Automobile retailers appear confident of their ability to dispose of as many cars as last year, since their sales last week showed a great increase over the past few months.

Reports from the steel industry still point to a brighter situation, although buying was not particularly heavy during the first part of the last week. Specifications have been coming forward at a fair rate with all consumers represented. Indications are still valid that automotive and railroad interests are expected to come into the market for steel in the near future.

It is reported that the total of Chicago building permits during the past few weeks was the lowest for any month since 1900.

N. Y. Life Ins. Co. Reserves $63,000,000 for Dividends

New York Life Insurance company has announced that it has set aside for dividends payable to policyholders in the year 1932 the sum of $63,000,000. Its annual statement for 1931 shows that it paid to living policyholders in that year the sum of $156,096,109.08 in dividends, matured endowments, annuities and surrender values. Payments to living policyholders amounted to about two-thirds of the total of $227,583,935.39 paid to policyholders and beneficiaries. Death claims paid during the year amounted to $71,487,826.31. Assets exceed the liabilities by over $119,000,000. Investments are chiefly in a diversified list of first mortgages on real estate, and bonds of the United States, states, counties and cities, railroads, public utilities and industries.

Set Up Agencies to Carry on Work of Relief Pool

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7.—(AP)—Seventeen loan agencies are to be set up to conduct field activities of the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

Howard W. Sims, chief examiner of the Chicago Clearing house association, was named manager of the agency which carry on the work of the corporation in the Chicago area.

In making the announcement tonight the corporation revealed that the treasury has already paid in $150,000,000 of the organization's $500,000,000 capital stock.

The other loan agencies and their managers are as follows: Boston, Harry A. Saunders; New York City, Charles A. Miller of Utica, N. Y.; Philadelphia, O. Howard Wolfe; Cleveland, M. J. Fleming; Richmond, R. H. Broaddus; Atlanta, W. S. McLarin; St. Louis, O. M. Atterberry; Kansas City, Mo., Roy L. Bone of Topeka; Dallas, Warren Andrews; El Paso, E. W. Kayser; San Francisco, William A. Day; Los Angeles, F. F. Bold; Portland, Ore., R. B. West; Salt Lake City, W. L. Partner; Seattle, C. R. Shaw, and Spokane, D. L. Davis.

Other agencies are to be established soon. Application blanks for loans, the corporation said, will be available soon for distribution.

AIDS CREDIT BANKS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7.—Directors of the Reconstruction Finance corporation held an extended meeting here today to make their final plans for extending relief under the powers given them by congress and important developments in the next few days were indicated. Railroads will be among the first to benefit by the operations of the corporation and it became known that a number of such applications already had been filed and had been forwarded to the interstate commerce commission for study, before loans are made.

The corporation it also was learned had agreed to take care of any part of an offering of $15,000,000 of 5 per cent debentures of the federal intermediate credit banks, which are not handled in the usual banking channels, by Feb. 15. Under the law the federal corporation is permitted to handle this type of security. It represents short term paper, but is not now rediscountable at the federal reserve banks, although these banks are permitted to buy and sell these debentures.

This is the first instance in which it has been formally announced that the corporation is prepared immediately to act under the powers conferred by congress. As to loans to private interests the policy, it is understood, will be not to announce the identity of any borrower, the theory being that this might not serve the best interest of the applicant.

Purposes General.

The intermediate credit banks are affiliated with the federal farm loan bureau of which Eugene Meyer, governor of the federal reserve board and chairman of the board of directors of the Reconstruction Finance corporation was formerly the head. In normal times the debentures of these banks have been marketed without difficulty. The present offering, it was said, was for the general use of the system.

Officials of the federal farm loan bureau are hopeful that the securities of the intermediate credit banks will be made rediscountable at the federal reserve banks by revision and adoption of the Glass banking bill and believe that if this is done it will be no longer necessary to call upon the reconstruction finance corporation for aid. It is possible that all of the offering will be taken by private banking institutions before Feb. 15, but if this is not done the Reconstruction corporation will give its aid.

Dawes Sees Hoover.

Gen. Charles G. Dawes, president of the Reconstruction corporation; Ogden F. Mills, who has been nominated by President Hoover as secretary of the treasury, and Mr. Meyer conferred with President Hoover at the White House today to report on the progress that had been made in getting the work of the corporation under way. They would not discuss their visit.

Enactment by congress of the federal home loan bank bill, one of the administration relief proposals, may not be pressed by President Hoover, some of the Republican leaders said tonight, if the reconstruction finance corporation gives material aid to distressed mortgage holders, and the Glass banking bill is revised by liberalizing the provisions under which paper is eligible for rediscount at the federal reserve banks in such a manner as to give additional aid.

ANALYSTS EYE NEW SLUMP IN COMMODITIES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 7.—The steady decline into new low ground last week of prices of sugar, copper, zinc and other commodities and major foodstuffs was followed closely by economic observers. It was noted that two of these staples, sugar and copper, continued to sink in spite of world stabilization plans to support them.

The record of the week shows that both raw sugar and raw sugar futures went to new all time lows; that copper export prices went to new all time lows; that zinc broke into record low ground, along with rubber and cocoa; that hide futures went to new lows for contracts, while hides for cash set a new low record of 6.5 cents a pound; that, in the foodstuffs group, corn, oats and lard sold for cash prices lower than ever before recorded.

Analysts are puzzled by this general breakdown in prices. It was believed that the worst in commodity and foodstuff prices had been passed a year ago, when, after a succession of new lows, prices turned upward again.

The situation in the sugar markets, while admitted by the trade to be critical, is not complex. Cuba has insisted that Java must make public her plans for the 1933 crop in detail before the Antillean island will announce its plans with respect to this year.

Domestic Meat Business Slow, Armour Reports

Armour & Co., in its review of general packing house trade conditions, says:

"There were still very plentiful supplies of meats available last week, and domestic business again was generally slow. Somewhat lighter live lamb receipts brought about higher prices, which were not, however, reflected in the dressed trade. Foreign business, for the first time since the holidays, showed some signs of improvement in activity. Collections were only fair."

JEWEL TEA CO. EARNS $4.87 A SHARE IN '31; EMPLOYES INCREASE

In 1931, a year of depression, the Jewel Tea company increased the number of its employés and its operating units, maintained wages and salaries and paid an extra dividend to stockholders. A decline in volume of business, which resulted largely from lower commodity prices, was considerably offset by reduced expenses, according to the annual report issued last night by President M. H. Karker.

Total sales last year were $13,742,691, compared with $15,521,791 in 1930, a decrease of 11.46 per cent. About three-quarters of the decline in dollar sales was attributable to lower prices. The average number of employés last year was 2,612, compared with 2,539 in 1930, an increase of 2.87 per cent. The number of operating units at the end of 1931 was 1,334, compared with 1,280 at the close of 1930, a gain of 4.22 per cent. Although salaries and wages were maintained, total expenses were reduced 10.52 per cent.

Net earnings for 1931 were $1,363,783, equivalent to $4.87 a share on 280,000 shares outstanding. The company paid its regular annual rate of $4 and an extra dividend of 50 cents. The company wrote down the market value of stock owned by $67,848 and then added $84,166 to surplus, which now stands at $2,404,356. Net earnings in 1930 were $1,705,293, or 46.09 a share. The balance sheet as of Jan. 2, 1932, shows current assets of $4,680,635 and current liabilities of 1,119,281. Total assets were $8,129,397.

Hear Deal Is Completed.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TORONTO, Can., Feb. 7.—The Jewel Tea company has completed negotiations with the Loblaw Groceterias, Inc., for the acquisition of the 77 Loblaw stores located in the Chicago area, according to reliable information available here today. No details as to the contract, however, were available.

GIANNINI READY TO CHALLENGE ELISHA WALKER

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 7.—(AP)—Reiterating that he holds proxies representing a "decisive majority" of the shares of Trans-America corporation, A. P. Giannini announced today he would leave Tuesday night for Wilmington, Del., to contest the management of Elisha Walker, present head of the corporation.

The annual meeting of stockholders is to be held at Wilmington Feb. 15. Giannini, founder of the corporation, has stated that he plans to wrest control from Walker at this meeting. Interests connected with the Trans-America management have challenged the assertion that the Giannini group had obtained proxies for a majority of shares.

Giannini said the associated Trans-American stockholders, his faction, would be represented at the Wilmington meeting by United States Senator Hiram W. Johnson of San Francisco and Hugh Morris of Wilmington.

SLOW MOTION MARKET SHOWS WALL ST. MOOD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 7.—Perhaps the falling of the last week's stock market into an almost motionless condition indicated, as well as anything else could do, the status of the financial mind.

There had not been the uninterrupted advance since New Year's day that occurred in the corresponding period of 1931 and 1930, but the "January rise" had been considerably larger than in either of those two years and was therefore sooner spent.

The halt in last week's market was possibly more interesting, from the fact that it occurred while events of evident financial importance were sweeping across the scene, but a market which is occupied chiefly in feeling its own pulse is always an uncertain indicator.

Market Lacks Stimulus.

The slow recovery in steel production from its customary year end inertia has no doubt deprived the financial mind of at least one stimulus which it possessed at this time one and two years ago. Weekly returns of railway freight loadings have not contributed a picture any more cheerful than that of 1931 and earnings have not yet had the chance of showing the effect of the higher rates and the wage reduction agreement. The two first months of a year used in the longer past to be periods of mere financial drift. Perhaps they still have something of the traditional midwinter character.

The President's "drive against hoarding" brings into the foreground a phenomenon of the period which has hitherto been discussed in undertones. It is not that money hoarding, even up to the hundreds of millions of dollars, is a novelty in times of American business depression. It reached immense sums in 1907, for instance.

Easy to Understand.

There has always been hiding away of money by depositors frightened about their banks, unable individually to feel confident as to what institutions were "safe" and what were not, and influenced by a prevailing atmosphere of panic. There has been such hoarding on this occasion, and it is not hard to understand. In so far as bank depositors of this kind have contributed to the present hoarding, the President's appeal is useful. The work of the reconstruction corporation, accompanied by concerted public statements of responsible men at the head

RAILROAD LOAN REQUEST BRINGS UP NEW QUERIES

Scope of Relief Program Under Consideration.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 7.—Announcement of the Pennsylvania railroad that it would apply to the Reconstruction Finance corporation for a loan to finance electrification and terminal improvements caused conjecture last week as to whether such a purpose would be within the scope of the corporation. The corporation may assist projects already started, but whether undertakings such as electrification will be construed as eligible remains to be seen.

However, that strong roads like the Pennsylvania and the New York Central should apply to the corporation for funds was considered appropriate in railroad circles. This reasoning was elucidated by Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, in testimony taken at the time legislation for the creation of the corporation was under consideration.

Speaking before the subcommittee of the banking and currency committee of the senate, Mr. Willard said that if the railroads "had to depend on the ordinary money markets today, with the uncertainty which the people seem to have about everything—our institutions as well as our currency—they would have to pay rates so high that they ought to be avoided if possible."

Just Suppose.

"Suppose," continued Mr. Willard, "the railroads borrowed $1,000,000,000 under this plan, and got it at a reasonable rate of interest. Suppose also they got it somewhere else, and paid 2 per cent more. That would be $20,000,000 a year and that would be a charge upon the cost of transportation."

Queried by Senator Brookhart as to whether the railroads overbuilt during the boom, Mr. Willard replied:

"So it appears."

What disposition the Reconstruction Finance corporation makes of the Pennsylvania's application may never be known, because the finance corporation's directors have indicated that it has adopted the policy of privacy which usually pertains to banking operations. News statement of loans applied for and granted are prohibited by the act.

Would Open Way for Others.

Should the finance corporation extend the Pennsylvania the aid it proposes, the way would be open to finance other major improvements by the railroads. Without finally abandoning its plans, the Baltimore and Ohio has announced indefinite postponement of action on its proposed new passenger terminal in Philadelphia. The New York Central has sought to delay some grade crossing elimination because of current financial conditions. Completion of its west side improvement would be materially aided if the finance corporation contributed toward this purpose.

Meanwhile, the American Railway association has issued to members a questionnaire on interest and maturities, including equipment trusts, bills payble and overdue, bank loans and capital needs in 1932. This information would be used by the Reconstruction Finance corporation and the Railroad Credit corporation.

CANADIAN ROAD'S 1931 REVENUES OFF 20 PER CENT

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 7.—(AP)—A decrease of 20 per cent during 1931 in total operating revenues of the Canadian National railways was shown in a preliminary report issued today. It showed the 1931 total approximated $177,273,700, compared with $221,770,000 in 1930.

A decrease of 13 per cent in operating expenses was computed from the 1931 total of $169,688,000, compared with the 1930 figure of $195,259,507. Net operating revenues consequently were $7,585,700, as against $26,510,938 in 1930.

Final figures will be given in the railway's annual report to be presented to parliament soon. Officials said, however, the 1931 traffic earnings "were the lowest experienced in any year since the present Canadian National system came into existence, but the operating performances were such as to very considerably offset the severe shrinkage in business."

WHEAT MARKET NERVOUS OVER FAR EAST NEWS

But War Boom in Prices Fails to Materialize.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

The world's wheat markets are in an extremely nervous condition as a result of the Chinese-Japanese situation. Expectations of greatly increased speculative buying in commodity markets due to war disturbances has thus far failed to materialize, as has also the winter wheat crop scare.

Prices in all markets moved within narrow limits last week, covering about the same ground as the previous week, Chicago May wheat sold between 57¾c to 61¾c, as compared with 56¾c to 61¾c the previous week, while a year ago the range was 81½c to 82½c, and two years ago it was $1.16½ to $1.23¾.

Narrowness of the price range with a net loss of ⅛@⅜c on wheat for the week was somewhat of a disapointment to trade leaders. Whether a continuation of cold weather conditions will result in heavy crop losses is yet to be determined. Crop experts say that the change to lower temperatures was more beneficial than harmful to the crop as it checked growth and so far has not injured the root.

New Factors Develop.

Failure of wheat markets to advance sharply is attributed to absence of a large speculative short interest, a break in the security market, and to business depression in general. Whether activities on the part of the Reconstruction Finance corporation with its $2,000,000,000 will eventually help the commodity markets to advance to a higher price level, is for the future to determine.

Numerous factors of a constructive character developed during the week. Italy revised its import quota of foreign wheat to 20 per cent bread and 80 per cent durum which became effective Feb. 1. France increased its foreign allowance of wheat to be milled from 3 per cent to 10 per cent. The Indian acreage was reported as 2,000,000 acres in excess of last year, as given by official returns, but due to steadily increased consumption in that country there are no prospects of a surplus, and imports are necessary.

The Japanese rice crop is 3,500,000,000 pounds short of last year, and imports of 1,000,000,000 pounds are said to be necessary. China has been taking Canadian wheat freely, but it is understood that shipments from America are to be shut off somewhat, although about 75 per cent of the 15,000,000 bushels of wheat bought from the farm board has already been shipped. Russia acreage of all grains is 11 per cent short of last year, and the spring planting program is said to be 22 per cent larger.

Farmers Market Wheat.

Farmers in the southwest have marketed wheat more liberally. Mill consumption in that territory was of good volume as was also the situation in the northwestern states.

The federal farm board is making fair sales of wheat for export, obtaining relatively better prices than the futures market. In its various operations in cash wheat with millers and exporters it is obliged to trade in futures to a moderate extent. The farm board was said to be responsible for heavy sales of futures by speculators who use farm board's brokers, but its operations have been misconstrued as big speculators have taken advantage of the farm board houses to operate on a large scale. So far as known the farm board still has around 27,000,000 bu of futures, a good percentage being in the northwest. Those who have May wheat sold to the farm board are likely to be forced to deliver the grain.

Closing trades on Chicago March wheat were at 55½c, May, 58⅜@58½c; July, 58⅜@58⅝; September, 60⅛@60¼c. Prices for the week follow:

Corn Markets Out of Line.

Corn markets have been out of line all season, and there were indications of an adjustment to nearer normal conditions. Reports from Iowa were of a reduced demand from the northwest, and more disposition on the part of farmers to sell. Illinois and western Indiana farmers who have sold fairly of late were dissatisfied at lower prices at the close of the week and indicated that they were disposed to hold off for a time. Eastern and southeastern demand was the most unsatisfactory in years. Corn prices are low, consumption is of a good average, possibly a little heavier as a result of lower temperatures and speculative trading on the part of the general public remains limited and shows no signs of enlargement.

OUTPUT OF STEEL INGOTS IN JAN. IS LEAST IN 24 YEARS

Steel ingot production in the United States for January, as calculated by the American Iron and Steel institute, showed a slight gain over December, but was the smallest for the first month of the year since 1908.

The calculated output of all companies was 1,461,290 tons, a small increase over the previous month, when output was 1,302,399 tons, but substantially less than that of January of 1931, when the total was placed at 2,458,689.

With the exception of December, the total for January was the lowest since September of 1921. In no first month of the year, however, Iron Age's records show no such small output since 1908, when the January total was only 934,000 tons. The institute's tabulation goes back only to 1917.

Operations during January averaged at 26.54 per cent of capacity, as increased from 23.58 per cent in December, but this compared with 42.86 per cent in January of last year.

ATLAS POWDER.

The Atlas Powder company reports net income for the year ending Dec. 31, 1931, amounting to $746,453 after deducting fixed and other charges. Sales for 1931 amounted to $12,093,830, a decline of 26 per cent compared with 1930.

Commonwealth Customers Pay LESS for LOANS

$2.93 is the average Monthly Cost of a $225 loan under COMMONWEALTH'S Reduced Rate. This allows 25 months for repayment. There is no lower cost than this in Chicago.

THE personal property which nearly every family owns and the signatures of husband and wife enable one to secure any amount up to $300 quickly and easily.

THERE ARE NO fees or deductions. You may take 25 months or pay all or part sooner. Interest at the Reduced Rate is charged only while you keep the money.

Why pay more than HOUSEHOLD'S LOW RATE on loans? . . . .

Household loans, $50 to $300 to families at reasonable rates. Rate on loans above $100 almost one-third lower than maximum permitted by small loan law.
